SMITH TRANSIT VIEW APPEARS CHANGED; FOR CITY REGULATION

HIS ATTITUDE CLARIFIED

STICKS TO ONE COMMISSION

But Would Designate Three Resident Members to Control City Transit Alone.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 4.—On the eve of the legislative session the views of Governor Smith on the New York City transit situation and the control of public service matters generally have been clarified. It would appear that what the Governor had in mind when he urged upon the Reorganization Commission a merger of the Public Service Commission and the old Transit Commission, now known as the Metropolitan Division of the Public Service Department, has been greatly misunderstood by all concerned, including the general public.

Incidentally, there is reason to believe that any hopes the Republicans may have entertained of profiting politically by a rift between the Governor and Mayor Walker over transit will fall to the ground.

Whereas it had been gleefully prophesied in certain quarters that a situation had arisen where the Governor might be "put into a hole," it was predicted here tonight that, in keeping with precedent, the "acts" would contain the Republican majority. Coverage was thought unlikely, the majority in the Legislature should fail in line with his recommendations.

Republicans who learned tonight of the Governor's actual position on transit regulation under the reorganized State Government professed to be greatly surprised and declared that it represented a radical change in his attitude, as defined in the memorandum he filed in December with the Reorganization Commission.

That body held a meeting this afternoon at the Capitol, but did not take up the Governor's transit recommendations nor any other question likely to arouse controversy. The commission merely went over bills that have been drafted under its auspices to carry out a series of minor recommendations made by the Governor.

How the Governor Stands.

The Governor's position, as defined this evening, would appear to place him in the closest kind of accord with the views from time to time expressed by Mayor Walker in relation to New York City transit. What the Mayor was prepared to fight was a proposal to consolidate the functions of public service regulation throughout the State, including New York City in a Public Service Commission which, the Governor suggested, would be composed of four members of the present commission, with the three former Transit Commissioners now constituting the Metropolitan Division added.

This, as the Mayor viewed it, would have involved placing New York City, as regards regulation of fares and operations of the transit companies, at the mercy of a body that, in most instances, would have a majority of up-State members who would be lacking in understanding of the city's transit problem and not in accord, for partisan or other reasons, with what the City Administration was seeking to accomplish for the betterment of transit conditions.

Incidentally, of course, there has been no end of veiled hints and suggestions that the Governor's proposal might prove by design to be intended as the opening wedge for an increased fare drive, the success of which might be promoted by shifting from the three New Yorkers who were transferred from the Transit Commission to the Metropolitan Division under reorganization responsibility for a regulatory policy that might prove unpopular in New York City and unacceptable to the city authorities.

Under the statute creating the new Public Service Department with its two divisions all the functions and powers exercised by the old Transit Commission are specifically and beyond all equivocation transferred to the Metropolitan Division, and to that division alone. The Governor, it is now learned, never intended that there should be any change in that provision. In substance, the Governor's views are believed to be as follows:

Against State Regulation.

He has never changed his opinion that regulation of transit operations within New York City by a State agency would be unwise and unjustified. He believes that as the State has turned over to the city as its agent the exercise of police powers and powers over education, it should, in a similar way, delegate its powers of public service regulation.

The Governor, when he made his recommendations to the Reorganization Commission, had in view for one thing stripping William A. Prendergast, Chairman of the Public Service Commission and a Republican, of powers that under the statute as its present form allow him to interfere with the internal organization of the metropolitan division. For example, he might be in a position to veto the proposal of John F. Gilchrist, head of the old Transit Commission, to retain Samuel Untermyer as counsel for the metro-

Greece Invites Bids to Raise $50,000,000 in Sunken Ship

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—A treasure estimated to be worth $50,000,000 is lying at the bottom of the sea in Navarino Bay and the Greek Government is inviting bids for its recovery.

A proposal is sought from all nations and privileges will be granted over a period of five years to the country offering the best salvage royalties to the Greek Government on whatever is recovered.

A minimum of 33 per cent. is cited and in addition a deposit of about $20,000 with the Greek State will be required at the signing of the contract.

The treasure was lost when the British, French and Russian squadrons sank the Turkish fleet in 1827. It is stated that the Turkish Admiral's flagship alone carried over $25,000,000.

Already $250,000 in bullion has been raised.

SPREAD OF DISORDER ALARMS MEXICANS

OUTLAWS MURDER AND ROB

Church Denies Hand in Clash in Leon in Which 11 Are Said to Have Been Executed.

By The Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 4.—Mexico City is deluged with tales of revolutionary disturbances in various parts of the republic. Within the last three days there have been a murder and two hold-ups by bandits only a few miles from the capital, and one train and six automobiles have been attacked and the passengers robbed within forty miles of the city.

Newspaper dispatches and private messages to friends in various parts of different States have been suppressed by Federal soldiers and eleven of the leaders executed at Leon, State of Guanajuato.

Not all of the rumors can be confirmed. Mexico City is noted most of the time for alarming reports of disturbances in other parts of the country, but lately they have been more persistent than usual and picture a grave condition of general unrest, with numerous clashes occurring at various places.

The best informed observers feel the situation has possibilities of grave developments. They say they would not be surprised at any developments, either more active and more extended disorders or the simmering down of affairs without reaching a crisis.

Apparently the discontented elements throughout the republic are without central leadership or coordination and have no dominant figure around whom to rally.

The Sol, which is the organ of the Regional Confederation of Labor and close to the Mexican Government, declares that "the anti-Mexican campaign of the enemies of this country is taking the form of the circulation of alarming lies regarding disturbances, revolutionary plottings and uprisings."

The paper minimizes the rumors of trouble which are flooding the capital, but admits that "some hostile elements" have been arrested both in Mexico City and elsewhere for seditious activities.

Capital Excited Over Bandits.

Reports that Catholics, as such, are involved in any of the revolutionary disorders or that Catholic leaders were among the revolutionaries executed at Leon were denied today by the Catholic Episcopate, which added that the Episcopate had not altered its attitude in refusing to endorse armed opposition over the religious situation.

The War Department declares that the Federal army is in control of the situation throughout the country, and is suppressing and will continue promptly to suppress all uprisings. The department denies that there is any general revolutionary movement under

TILSON OFFERS FUND FOR THREE CRUISERS TO QUELL REVOLT

SILENT ON COOLIDGE'S VIEW

MOVE TO ELEVATE GUNS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—A revolt by House Republicans on the Naval Appropriation bill which might have proved embarrassing to President Coolidge was checked today when Representative Tilson, the majority leader, announced that he was considering the advisability of offering an amendment providing the money to start work on the three cruisers of the 1925 program ignored in this year's budget after the declaration of the President that construction of them should be deferred pending another arms conference.

Mr. Tilson's announcement, which was made with the knowledge of the President, but not with his authority, is interpreted as a decision on the part of the Republican organization of the House to take the lead in authorizing funds for the cruisers in view of the determination of many Republicans and a large body of the Democrats to ride roughshod over the Administration policy.

Mr. Tilson discussed his proposed amendment with President Coolidge last night. He declined to [illegible] what views the President expressed on the matter, but it is understood that Mr. Tilson told the President that an amendment making appropriations for the cruisers would be passed by an overwhelming vote, and that the politics of the situation compelled the Republicans to take the initiative in order to checkmate the Democratic minority.

Moves for Elevation of Guns.

Coincident with Mr. Tilson's move and a continuance of debate in the House on the naval bill, the House Naval Committee took action that may complicate the situation provoked by the failure of the Administration to call for appropriations for the three cruisers and two rigid dirigibles authorized in the 1924 program.

The committee went on record in favor of elevating the guns on American battleships so as to give them range equal to that of British ships of war. This was done in the face of the British protest that such elevation would be contrary to the spirit of the Washington arms treaty, a protest that prompted the House in 1926 to reject a bill proposing changes in structure on eleven battleships with a view to placing them on a parity in gun range with the capital ships of the British Navy.

Today's House debate on the naval bill was one of the most colorful in that body at this session. It brought forward the critics of the Administration's naval policy and indicated that there is a deep undercurrent of sentiment favorable to larger naval appropriations.

The charge was made by Representative Black of New York that President Coolidge was playing politics with the navy.

"In this bill," he said, "the House will decide whether Congress considers the political future of Calvin Coolidge of more consequence than the safety of the Republic."

Andrew Sees Our Navy Third.

The day was also marked by the announcement of Representative A. Piatt Andrew of Massachusetts, an Administration Republican, that in his opinion, the American Navy now ranked "a poor third," and that Congress now

Four Killed, 37 Injured, as Pitch Explodes On a French Ship at a Baltimore Pier

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 4.—An explosion late today on the French sailing ship Richelieu, loading coal pitch at the Curtis Bay piers of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, is believed to have killed four employes of the railroad and loading companies, one of the dead, Percy Lewis, being identified and three men being missing. Thirty-seven other men are in hospitals suffering from serious injuries.

Fire in the inflammable cargo followed the explosion and negro workmen dashed wildly about the pier and on the deck of the ship, while dense smoke poured from its hatches. Double alarms brought fire companies and ambulances quickly to the pier, with all the doctors and nurses available at the hospitals.

Wearing gas masks, firemen descended into the hold of the burning ship and brought to the deck ten or more negroes, all badly burned. As the firemen emerged from the hold partitions gave way, rendering further rescues impossible. Engines and fire boats poured streams of water into the blazing ship, but the fire raged for three hours before it was subdued, minor explosions under the decks driving the firemen to a distance several times.

The vessel began to list from the weight of water in her hold and the firemen were ordered to sink the vessel to avoid further explosions.

Captain Jules Garnet, master of the Richelieu, said tonight he did not think any of the members of the crew or any of seventeen French cadets aboard the Richelieu had been injured. He seemed certain none of them had been killed, but he will not be able to make a complete check-up until tomorrow morning.

He was sitting in the cabin talking with a New York representative of the firm loading the ship when he was thrown to the deck by the first explosion. He ran from the cabin to find men dashing about the pier with their clothes afire and a dense cloud of smoke pouring from the holds. The cause of the explosion will be the subject of an official inquiry tomorrow.

PHONE ACROSS OCEAN IN SERVICE FRIDAY

New York-London Calls by Radio May Be Made Daily From 8:30 A.M. to 1 P.M.

LIST FOR USERS OPEN TODAY

Talks Limited to 12 Minutes at $75 for First Three and $25 for Each Thereafter.

The transatlantic wireless telephone service between New York and London, preparations for which have been going on for some time, will open on Friday, Jan. 7. The announcement was made yesterday by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company with the declaration that the rule of first come, first served, be in force and that appointments for calls will be accepted beginning at 1:30 o'clock this morning.

All any one will have to do after that is to call "long distance" and give the number of the telephone wanted in London, or the name and address of the person wanted, and then wait for the connection to go through, just as is done now with long distance calls in this country. If the telephone number in London should be busy the call will be completed as soon as it is possible, and in the meantime others on the waiting list will be taken care of in the order of their applications.

The service will be available daily between 8:30 A.M. and 1 P.M. New York time, which corresponds to 1:30 P.M. and 6 P.M., London time. Each call will be limited to twelve minutes, and the charge will be $75 for the first three minutes, and $25 for each additional minute.

Service May Be Extended.

For the present the service will be limited to the metropolitan districts of New York and London, although if the system works well it may be extended to other parts of both countries. This first service is in the nature of an experiment, although engineers have talked across the ocean in tests with striking success.

Privacy cannot yet be assured to those conducting conversations, as the present stage of radio art does not permit the safeguarding of conversations from others who may have apparatus with which they can tune in on the wave length being used. At first, it is reported, both a long and a short wave length will be used, so that engineers may determine which is the more satisfactory. The tendency to experiment with short wave lengths, which is a return to first principles in radio, is growing steadily among radio engineers, nearly all of the large companies interested in radio having large short wave experiment stations. It is hoped, after a time, that both privacy and great accuracy may be assured to those who talk across the ocean, and that it may be possible to conduct large business affairs in this way as well as to indulge in emergency conversations of a social or family nature.

The first effort at communication on Friday will be between Walter S. Gifford, President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and Sir G. Evelyn P. Murray, Secretary of the General Postoffice of Great Britain.

King Not to Initiate Service.

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP).—Hopes that King George and President Coolidge would talk across the ocean to inaugurate the transatlantic radiophone service were given up today, when it was announced that lesser lights would officiate.

Service on the radiophone system has been set to begin on Jan. 7. The Postmaster General informed the public today that all would be ready at 1:30 P. M. London time (8:30 A. M. New York time) Friday for Londoners to converse with persons in New York.

When it became known recently that the service was to be opened to the public there was a great scramble for enrolment among those who wanted to use the system on the opening day. Such a situation has been created, however, that the Postmaster General may decide to draw lots.

The initial ceremonies and conversations will consist of a few formalities or an exchange of greetings; then the service will be turned over to the staff of trained operators, who will make connections as the calls come in. For the preliminary service the hours between 1:30 P. M. and 6 P. M. have been

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Jan. 4.—Harold F. Webster, 29 years old, a real estate salesman, of Miami, Fla., who confessed early this morning that he had murdered his mother-in-law, Mrs. Catherine Gallaway, yesterday at the [illegible] Garnet, was held this morning by Justice of the Peace Walter R. Jones, of Hempstead, without bail for the Grand Jury, charged with murder in the first degree. The evidence will be presented to the Nassau County Grand Jury on Thursday. District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards said he would move for an immediate trial.

Webster made his confession six and one-half hours after he had been taken to the Mineola Courthouse, from the home of Dr. Bassett, husband of Mrs. Webster's sister, Emma, where all, including the year-old son of the Websters, had been guests during the week-end. The confession followed constant denials of circumstantial evidence connecting him with the murder and his mother, Mrs. Alice Garrison of 735½ Patchen Avenue, Brooklyn, with burning an overcoat from which the police believed a button found beside the dead woman was torn.

Hair Also Provided Clue.

The evidence included another button from a sack coat, a strand of brown hair and finger prints. "The sack coat button was exactly like those on a double-breasted blue serge coat worn by Webster from which a button was missing, and the hair matched his own.

In his confession Webster, who had seen his wife, Blanche, and Mrs. Bassett to the station on a trip to New York, said he had returned to the Bassett home to ask his mother-in-law for a "square deal." He said she had threatened to separate him and his wife, and that he wanted her not to oppose his returning with his family to Miami to "make good." First, he said, he called Dr. Bassett away from the house with a fictitious telephone call. Then he went to the house. There, he declared, Mrs. Gallaway struck him. There was a struggle and he ran to the kitchen, got an iron bar and struck her over the head with it several times, he said.

He said that after he had killed Mrs. Gallaway he went to his own home, told his mother what had happened and they burned the overcoat, which was bloodstained.

Mrs. Garrison, the wife of C. E. Garrison by a second marriage, had already told the police, in an effort to corroborate an earlier story by her son, that she had burned the overcoat because it was shabby and to prevent him from returning immediately to Miami.

Mother Doubts Confession.

She was in a room adjoining the one in which her son sat with District Attorney Edwards and the police when she was told of the confession. She screamed and fainted. On being revived by a physician she declared that she did not believe he had committed the crime. The police handed her a note from Webster informing her he had confessed and directing her to turn over to the police some other blood-stained garments, but she insisted he had not written it. But later in the day, after she became calm, she wrote him a note, saying: "You done it to protect yourself."

Mr. Edwards released Mrs. Garrison, who had spent the night at Mineola with her husband, and sent her back to her home in a police automobile.

"I can get her back any time with a subpoena," he said.

Mrs. Garrison's note to her son read as follows:

Dear Harold, My Darling:

Try to be brave. I think things will come out much better than I expected, only try to keep up. You done it to protect yourself. Try to keep up. The way they speak you will only get a short time because you done it to save yourself. You can write me any time, they told me.

Fairchild Introduces in House a Resolution Pledging Support of President's Policy.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—A new aspect was given today to the Government's policy with respect to Nicaragua's internal political disturbances when the White House spokesman let it be known that the Administration's maintenance of armed forces on Nicaraguan soil had a significance extending beyond mere adherence to established custom in protecting American and foreign lives and property in certain Latin-American countries. A political as well as humanitarian and pecuniary concern was indicated as a basic principle of the presence of American bluejackets and marines in Nicaraguan territory.

Protection of American rights granted to the United States by the Nicaraguan Government in 1916 to build an interoceanic canal through Nicaraguan territory and establish a naval station on Fonseca Bay, a Pacific Ocean harbor, were cited by the spokesman as a factor in the determination of current Administration policy in addition to the traditional course of protecting lives and property.

Disclosure Variously Construed.

This disclosure aroused marked interest. It is being construed in various ways. Of the several angles of interpretation given to it that which stands out conspicuously is that the Administration now desires to justify its landing of armed forces in Nicaragua on the ground that its national interests, acquired in pursuance of a policy of defense and the promotion of commerce, are menaced by the alleged effort of the Labor Government of Mexico, headed by President Calles, to set up a Bolshevist control in Nicaragua and thus drive a wedge between the United States and the Panama Canal.

From all appearances the Administration has decided to come out boldly in a justification of its Nicaraguan venture by the contention that our national safety is involved. There never has been any formal official declaration that the Government felt that Mexico was taking advantage of the civil war in Nicaragua to drive a Bolshevist wedge between continental United States and the Panama Canal, but it is well known that Government officials claim to have evidence to that effect, though an effort by Representative LaGuardia to ascertain in an official way whether there was such evidence got nowhere.

Asks Support of President.

Evidence tending to support the opinion that the Administration has determined to stand flatly on justification of its course in Nicaragua was furnished by a resolution offered in the House today by Representative Fairchild of New York, a Republican member of the Foreign Affairs Committee. This pledges the House to support the President in his Nicaraguan policy, makes special mention of the proposed interoceanic canal as an element in our policy of protection and expresses the opinion that the United States Government should support the Dias Government against any aggression by any foreign power.

The significant utterance at the White House was amplified, although cautiously, at the State Department. There it was conceded that, naturally, the proposed Nicaragua Canal was one of our interests, and to this was added that any interests we had in Nicaragua would be threatened by "revolu-

Mussolini Tames Night Clubs; Bars Dancing, Allows Music

ROME, Jan. 4 (AP).—Cabarets, night clubs and all similar haunts of nocturnal amusement throughout Italy are being "tamed" by order of the authorities, giving rise to stories of the possible complete closing of the resorts, in line with Premier Mussolini's plan to make this year one of intense labor, with a minimum amount of play.

Regulations issued by the authorities restrict the hours of operation and prohibit dancing of all kinds. Cabarets may remain open from 10 P. M. until 2 A. M. Jazz bands may play and performers may sing, but not a single performer or visitor may dance.

Not only the Charleston, black bottom and foxtrot, but old-fashioned waltzes and two-steps come under the ban. Police officials will keep vigilance on the side-lines to prevent violations.

Two of Rome's three cabarets have already closed. The remaining one is offering "jass concerts" to patrons with enough will to control their response to jass rhythm.

Celler Offers Bill to Prevent Further Issuing of "Personal Padlock Injunctions."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Adoption of a resolution by the Senate calling upon Secretary Mellon to reveal what part Wayne B. Wheeler and the Anti-Saloon League had in fixing the poisonous denaturants in industrial alcohol, a vigorous defense of the sobriety of the members of the House and sharp criticism of two Federal Judges in New York for issuing "personal padlock injunctions" were among the demonstrations over prohibition in the National Capitol today.

Another development bearing on prohibition was the announcement of the House Committee on Ways and Means that hearings would start next Tuesday on the Administration bill authorizing the Government to acquire stocks of medicinal liquor, with General Lincoln C. Andrews, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, the first witness.

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment continued its fight with a statement that the meeting of the Committee of One Thousand to be held in Washington Thursday is "a tacit confession of the failure" of the prohibition law. The statement also attacked the affiliation of the United States Steel Corporation with the dry movement.

Edwards Asks for Information.

The resolution calling on Secretary Mellon for information on the Anti-Saloon League was introduced by Senator Edwards of New Jersey and passed the Senate without discussion, but a hot debate followed its adoption, in which Senator Heflin of Alabama criticized Mr. Edwards for mentioning yesterday the incident involving the arrest of Governor Brandon of Alabama for alleged violation of the dry law. The charge against Governor Brandon was later dismissed.

The resolution calls upon the Treasury for copies of laws under which poisons have been used as denaturants, as well as copies of letters that may have been exchanged with officers of the Anti-Saloon League on the subject.

The defense of the House was made amid applause by Representative Underhill, Republican, of Massachusetts, who replied to statements made yesterday by Representative Celler of New York that "members of Congress drink, and sometimes drink to excess."

"I do not believe there is another body of 435 men drawn from all walks of life," he said, "who indulge less in intoxicating liquor than the members of this House."

"Reflection" on House Resented.

Mr. Underhill began by saying that Mr. Celler's remarks were not only a reflection "but almost an indictment" of every member of Congress. "I have been a member of this body six years," said Mr. Underhill. "During that time I have been a constant attendant upon the meetings of the House. I have never seen but one member on the floor of this chamber under the influence of liquor. He only served one term and was defeated for re-election.

"I have never in the corridors of the House office building or elsewhere seen but four other members of this body under the influence of liquor. Two of those men are dead and the other two are not members of this present body. I have read during these six years at a hotel where an average of 100 members of Congress make their abode, and there, in the evenings and sometimes I am up rather late at night—I have never seen one single member of Congress enter the doors of that hotel or leave the doors of that hotel under the influence of liquor.

"I probably know as many members of this body as any member of Congress. Most of them I can call by their first names. I count them all friends of mine. Except those who advocate a change in the Volstead law I am not a man who drinks to excess or becomes intoxicated."

Two Judges Are Named.

Judges Knox and Thacher of New York were the Federal jurists whose names were brought into the row-by situation by Representative Celler, in introducing a bill to prevent Federal Judges from issuing what he described as "purely personal injunctions in padlock proceedings" he authorized a statement in which he said:

"A number of Judges, including Judge Knox of New York in the case of United States vs. Jack and Jill's Chop House, Inc., and Judge Thacher also of New York, in the case of United States vs. Charles Aaron and others have lately issued personal and roving injunctions. In the former case

HANKOW, Jan. 4.—Admiral Cameron, Consul General Goffe and the Chinese Chief of Police had a conference this morning concerning the protection of the British Concession and reached an agreement which included the withdrawal of the naval detachment and the volunteers and the policing of the Concession by Chinese-controlled uniformed officials.

Immediately after the British forces were withdrawn coolies, with agitators, swarmed into the Concession, dismantling the sandbag redoubts and stealing the bags. Foreigners were chased but not injured.

"Stand by" was sounded at 3 P. M. and the naval detachment was ordered ashore again. But tonight this order was countermanded because of the possibility of opening fire. The situation is very grave.

Foreigners Unsafe in Streets.

Throngs are swarming in the streets, but the Chinese Chief of Police has taken responsibility for the conduct of the crowds, stating that it would be most dangerous to order Chinese troops to enter the Concession unless in a case of extreme urgency.

Foreigners walking the streets, however, are no longer safe from stone throwing, accompanied by yells of "Kill the foreign dog!"

At the headquarters of the volunteers the armory is being dismantled and the contents removed to H. M. S. Bee.

The war memorial cenotaph facing the Consulate has been defaced by the removal of its bronze chains and name plates, as well as the chipping of stonework.

Call to Seize Concession.

It is possible that the arrangement at this morning's conference was bona fide, but a Nationalist mandate inflamed the rowdy element, giving the agitators an opportunity to incite to

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 4.—When Daniel McHenry, a mild-eyed man of 30 years, was questioned today by detectives concerning his part in the hold-up of the Townsend Printing Company's payroll of $1,586 in December, a year ago, he astonished his hearers by admitting the charge readily, and declaring that he was the Vice President of the Townsend Company and still holds that position, and has a $50,000 interest in the concern.

Blaming "drink and wild women" as his weakness, McHenry gave the details of the hold-up, in which he drove a rented car, aiding three other men in the robbery of Milton E. Townsend, President and Treasurer of the printing firm. His share in the loot was about $300, which, he said, he spent in drinking and "having a good time."

To verify the statement of McHenry, which first was given orally, the police sent for Mr. Townsend and Charles H. Kirshner, President of the Bankers' Mortgage Company, trustee of an estate valued at $100,000 inherited by McHenry from his father.

Mr. Townsend said McHenry's story was all true and added that the money taken in the hold-up had been restored by an insurance company.

Mr. Kirschner said he had reimbursed the insurance company.

"I will not prosecute McHenry," Mr. Townsend said. "Anyway, I couldn't identify him as one of the men who robbed me, I never saw him."

According to the confession, Messrs. Townsend and Kirschner have known for some time that the police were seeking McHenry, who was known to the detectives merely as a "former employe" of the Townsend concern. Mr. Kirschner assisted McHenry to leave Kansas City after the hold-up, according to McHenry's confession, and Mr. Townsend sent him money to return to Kansas City last August.

Two of McHenry's companions in the hold-up were sentenced to the penitentiary after pleading guilty to their part in the crime.

Michael Cudahy, Packer's Son, Held in Jail After Mother Prevents Marriage to Actress

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Jan. 4 (AP).—Plans of Michael Cudahy, aged 19, one of the packing family, to wed Marie Astaire, an actress, against the wishes of his mother, were frustrated tonight with the detention of the youth in jail here.

The erstwhile bride-to-be was sent back to Los Angeles with Robert O'Brien, who was to have been the best man.

Cudahy had attempted to obtain a marriage license in Los Angeles and Ventura Counties, but was forestalled by his mother, the widow of John Cudahy.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4 (AP).—The aid of the Los Angeles Sheriff's office was enlisted today by Mrs. John Cudahy in a search for her son, Michael Cudahy, who thrice today failed to obtain a license to wed Marie Astaire, an actress, also known as Esther Bronberg.

The mother sent word to marriage license clerks in two counties neighboring Los Angeles County that her son was under legal age and told them to refuse a marriage license.

"He's only a child, just 19, and because he's attractive and has money, he becomes the target of all sorts of persons and I'm all upset over it," said Mrs. Cudahy. "He's got with some who are drinking and now it's this."

Young Cudahy, accompanied by another young man and Miss Astaire, appeared in Santa Ana, Orange County, at about 4 o'clock this morning and demanded a license. The License Bureau refused to open before the usual time and then, when the trio appeared, refused the license.

Returning to Los Angeles from Santa Ana, they were foiled by the memory of a license clerk who recalled that Cudahy's sister, who recently married, was 23. The clerk at once called Mrs. Cudahy when the youth gave his age as 22 also. The third unsuccessful attempt was made in Ventura County.

"This personal injunction has the effect of restraining the commission of a misdemeanor. It deprives a man of trial by jury. I am for restraining the Judges in this regard. These personal injunctions which can follow a person over the United States are highly dangerous.

"They are worse than a 'lettre de cachet,' which was an order, by royal decree, of arrest, and sometimes exile, without trial.

Wet Leader Attacks Gary.

Speaking for the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, Captain W. H. Stayton, its head, said tonight that Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, was the "virtual creator of the Committee of One Thousand" and is "confessedly swayed by reasons for prohibition enforcement which will not bear the test of the principles of free government and in fact are susceptible of being used to the injury of men like Judge Gary and of the interests which they represent and claim to serve."

"In an interview with him appearing in THE NEW YORK TIMES of July 31, 1923, and afterward embodied in a letter sent out at the expense of the United States Steel Corporation and widely broadcast throughout the United States, Judge Gary frankly stated that the Steel Corporation was for prohibition 'because it pays' and that under it advantages claimed to have accrued to the workers in American industry, particularly those in the steel industry, have been coupled with an improvement in the working ability and disposition of the employes.'

"No one can question that it is not only the right but the duty of the officers of the Steel Corporation as such officers or for the corporation itself to do anything it can in its corporate capacity to increase the effectiveness of the work of its employes, but when a corporation asks a Government to intervene and to deprive a workman of his pleasures or amusements, or even of his bad habits if you will, in order that the corporation and its stockholders may get better results from its workmen, it is treading on very dangerous grounds.

"For, if a Government can take away a workman's right to a glass of beer and thereby stop his capacity to enjoy himself, it can as easily take away Judge Gary's opera box so as to make him put in more time at his work and to produce more for the laborer."

Gives Figures on Washington Arrests.

Introducing a resolution to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment, a bill to repeal the Volstead act and a resolution to authorize manufacture and sale of light wines and beer, Representative Cochran of Missouri made public statistics bearing on arrests in Washington for 1926, which, he declared, indicated the prohibition law was impossible of enforcement. These statistics, according to Mr. Cochran, were given to him over the signature of Major Edwin B. Hesse, Superintendent of the Washington police.

"'Under the Sheppard law, which includes intoxication on the public highways, drinking intoxicants in public and driving vehicles while intoxicated, 13,904 persons were arrested,' he said. 'For violations of the Volstead act 5,305 arrests were made. Of the number arrested for violating the Sheppard law only 137 were arrested for drinking in public places, making 13,767 who were arrested on the streets during the year for being intoxicated.'"

TABLEAUX RECALL BATTLE.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 4.—Nine tableaux, depicting scenes here during the Revolution, attracted a large throng here tonight on the second of the three days' celebration of the sesquicentennial of the Battle of Princeton.

The tableaux included a scene in which Morven, the home of Richard Stockton, one of the three Princeton graduates who signed the Declaration of Independence, was raided by Hessians.

The performance was concluded with a tableau representing the Peale picture of Washington, when, in the midst of the Battle of Princeton, he learned that his favorite General, Hugh Mercer, had been mortally wounded.

The scene was the battlefield, now the farm of Dr. Henry Hale of New York. It was suggested last night by Professor William S. Myers that the property, including the old battlefield and the Hale home, be acquired for a memorial similar to that at Valley Forge. Judge Edward A. Armstrong of Princeton offered to donate the first $1,000 toward such a memorial. Dr. Hale has signified his willingness to cooperate.

SAYS WIVES TALK TOO MUCH

Court Gives Opinion After Hearing Husband Lectured 15 Minutes.

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 4 (AP).—Wives talk too much, in the opinion of Judge Samuel Shay of the Camden Criminal Court.

The jurist so asserted today after he had listened for fifteen minutes to Mrs. Alexander Prokop upbraid her husband, whom she charged with desertion, and had spent three minutes trying to halt her testimony.

"I'm convinced," Judge Shay said, "that such domestic trouble is due to the fact that wives talk too much. Wives would be a lot better off if they talked less. You took this man for better or worse, but your troubles have not reached the limit where they cannot be forgotten."

The Judge advised the pair to adjust mutually their differences and dismissed the case.

Rendt of Richmond, will be guests. Peter J. Brady President of the Federation National Bank, will be toastmaster.

GIRL'S ARREST COINCIDENCE

Accused of Attempted Extortion, She Says She Is McManus's Daughter, but He Denies It.

Colonel Earl McManus, special prohibition investigator for New Jersey, was summarily dismissed from office yesterday by Colonel Ira L. Reeves, Prohibition Administrator, "for the good of the service." At the same time Colonel Reeves announced that seven Secret Service agents from Washington were running down reports that a group of bootleggers had conspired to "get" him and had subscribed a fund of $150,000 for that purpose.

These announcements followed by only a few hours the arraignment in Hoboken of a young woman, arrested in West New York, who said she was Mrs. Earnly Mayardi and that she was a daughter of Colonel McManus. She was accused of trying to "shake down" a saloon keeper for protection. Mrs. Mayardi was paroled in $1,000 bail in charge of her attorney, Isadore Stern of Newark.

Mr. Stern also is attorney for McManus, and until yesterday was attorney and a director in the Ivori-Craft Company, of which Colonel Reeves has been President. The resignations of both were accepted last night.

Stern said last night that the young woman arrested was McManus's daughter and had been "more or less disowned" by her family for marrying Mayardi, a Spaniard, who is a butcher and lives at 128 West Sixty-fourth Street, New York. He would not comment further except to say that the case would have "sensational developments."

Act Unjustified, Says McManus.

McManus at his home, 23 St. Lawrence Avenue, Maplewood, said flatly last night that the young woman was not his daughter. Of his dismissal by Colonel Reeves he would say only that "the action of Colonel Reeves is unjustified and is due solely to his effort to cover up himself." He said he would give out his whole side of the case this afternoon.

Colonel Reeves also said that within a day or two he would give out a statement telling in detail why he let McManus go. He asked for McManus's resignation on Monday, he said, and receiving no reply dismissed him yesterday. McManus was one of Colonel Reeves's own appointees, taking the office of Chief Enforcement Officer on Oct. 12, shortly after Reeves was appointed Prohibition Administrator for New Jersey by General Andrews.

For two months Colonel McManus was in charge of raids all over New Jersey, but on Dec. 15 a notice was posted in the prohibition office saying he had been relieved of that work and assigned as a special investigator to make a survey of the liquor situation.

Reeves Tells of Plot.

Colonel Reeves said that what information he possessed about the supposed plot against him did not indicate the bootleggers were planning physical violence against him, but were merely determined to get him out of office.

"If there is any truth in the reports of a conspiracy," he added, "it is because of my vigorous activities in prohibition enforcement."

The occurrence which caused the arrest of the young woman was in the saloon of Arthur Cummings, at Fourteenth Street and Palisade Avenue, West New York, on Monday night. Cummings was at the bar when a man came from the back room and said there was a woman who wished to speak to him. Cummings went back and found a young woman, of good appearance and well dressed, accompanied by a young man who spoke with a foreign accent. According to Cummings the young woman immediately broached the subject of protection money. Charges of liquor selling had been made against his place, he said she told him, but they could be "fixed up."

Says She's McManus's Daughter.

"You know there's been a change in the prohibition department and I'm the new collector for this district," she continued, according to Cummings's story to the police. "I represent McManus. I'm his daughter."

"Who is McManus?" Cummings said he asked her.

"Don't you know?" he quoted the girl as saying. "He's the big man in prohibition enforcement in New Jersey."

Cummings said he then told her: "I'm not violating any law. Why should I pay you any graft?"

"I've got the evidence in letters," the young woman replied, according to Cummings.

Then, Cummings said, she displayed three letters addressed to Colonel McManus at Prohibition Headquarters. Cummings then called the police of West New York and the young woman and her companion were taken to Police Headquarters.

The couple were paroled in charge of Mr. Stern, and yesterday morning were arraigned before United States Commissioner Edward R. Stanton at Hoboken. The man was permitted to go, but charges of attempted extortion were laid against the woman. She was again paroled in the custody of Mr. Stern.

The three letters were examined and were found to be anonymous. Their dates showed they had been sent after McManus had ceased to be general enforcement agent, and they were addressed to the old prohibition offices.

MAYOR ADMITS WET TOWN.

Northfield's Executive Thinks Only Civil War Can Stop Drinking.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 4.—Mayor Eugene Swilkey of Northfield in his annual message to the Council today said that in the light of his sixteen years in public office he could not see "how the Eighteenth Amendment could possibly be enforced through any procedure short of civil war."

"The rumors, complaints and police records of the past year have indicated that bootlegging and liquor trafficking is going on in Northfield the same as in practically every other community in the United States," the Mayor said. "Perhaps the greatest preventive of enforcement is the legal profession, because the bootlegger with the price, can and does buy the best legal talent in the country."

Year-Old Harbor Liquor Patrol Abolished Due to Lack of Funds; Failure Is Denied

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The Treasury Department has abolished the special customs harbor patrol which was formed about a year ago in New York to supplement the efforts of the Coast Guard in prohibition enforcement. The men who composed it will revert to their former status under the customs service, and as such will continue to search ships.

The change, as explained here tonight, is a change "more in name" than anything else, and does not at all signify a failure of the special patrol. While in the nature of an experiment its abandonment, it was asserted, does not mean a "failure."

It was added that in the allocation of money appropriated by Congress it was considered necessary to put it "where it would do the most good."

Plans for the patrol were worked out last Fall in connection with Coast Guard work. Customs inspectors, guards and laborers were utilized and their number was augmented by four or five prohibition agents. All were sworn as such. Boats of the Collector of Customs were used in the inspections and searches conducted. All the men will now go back under the customs service, except the prohibition agents.

The search of incoming vessels will be continued. The Coast Guard, it was pointed out, will still be on hand to operate against rum smuggling.

STAYS NEW RECIPE FOR POISON ALCOHOL

FINAL DECISION DUE JAN. 12

Concern Charges Formula 1 Is a Peril to Workers—Says It Also Lowers Quality of Products.

A temporary injunction to prevent enforcement by the Federal Government of the regulation by which Formula 3-A, specially denatured alcohol, may no longer be withdrawn for use in the manufacture of varnishes, lacquers, stains, polishes, disinfectants and liquid soaps other than toilet soaps was granted yesterday by Federal Judge Grover M. Moscowitz to the Lacquer and Chemical Corporation, 214 Fortieth Street, Brooklyn. Hearing on the application for a permanent injunction was set for Jan. 12.

Action was brought by Colonel Lewis Landes of 165 Broadway, acting for the corporation, naming as defendants Chester P. Mills, Federal Prohibition Administrator for the Second District of New York; David H. Blair, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury. Twenty-seven reasons are set forth in support of the appeal for the injunction.

It is charged that Treasury Decision 3,941, on which the action is based, requires that the corporation cease the manufacture of its products by the use of Formula 3-A, whereby five gallons of pure methyl alcohol are used in every hundred gallons of pure alcohol, and that Formula No. 1, in which crude wood alcohol is used, be substituted.

The lacquers and other products of the corporation can be made only at great risk to the health of employes under Formula No. 1, the plaintiff charges, and this has created a problem of employment that is bothersome. Of especial danger to workmen with cuts or other wounds on their bodies is the crude wood alcohol, the corporation charges.

The corporation declares it has built up in the last two years a business based on the quality of products manufactured under Formula 3-A, has convinced the Treasury Department chemists that its products cannot be used for beverage purpose and has never been charged with violation of the Federal Prohibition act. The same quality of product cannot be manufactured by use of the formula now permitted by the Government, it is charged, and legal rights are violated in the revoking of the use of the old permits.

The action of the Lacquer and Chemical Corporation is the first important move of its kind to stop the Treasury Department by legal injunction from carrying out its plans for poisoning alcohol in an attempt to cut down its use for beverage purposes.

Search for a non-poisonous denaturant of industrial alcohol is bound to fail, in the opinion of Dr. Lewis H. Marks, Executive Secretary of the Industrial Alcohol Manufacturers Association. Dr. Marks commented yesterday on the poisoned alcohol situation, stressing the willingness of the manufacturers to follow any regulations the Government may adopt. He expressed the hope that a denaturant making the drinker violently sick without leaving permanent ill-effects could be found and said that his association had endowed a research fellowship three months ago at the Mellon Institute, Pittsburgh, to search for such a denaturant.

Industrial alcohol manufacturers have been "greatly harrassed" and are carrying a "tremendous burden of almost innumerable governmental regulations," according to Dr. Marks, and they feel that some formula for denaturing alcohol must be adopted permanently before the industry can be stabilized. He explained that of seven formulae established by the Government in the last year five had been revoked and another had just been altered, and that each change had caused the manufacturers considerable expense through the alteration of machinery and the waste of raw materials on hand.

POLICE HELD IN SHOOTING.

Federal Patrol Officers Are Arrested for Fatally Wounding Man.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 4.—Two immigration border patrol officers fired upon a boat in the River Rouge today. As a result one of the occupants of the boat is dying in Del Ray Industrial Hospital and the officers were ordered held by John D. Watts, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney, on charges of assault with intent to kill and murder.

Lawrence Campeau, 28 years old, is near death with three bullets in his abdomen. The immigration officers charged with the shooting are Fred W. Pratz, 28, and George McKenna, 34.

According to John Campeau, 19, brother of the dying man, who was in the boat when the shooting took place, the two officers ordered those in the boat to come ashore. Campeau said they were testing a new outboard motor and before they could put about the officers opened fire, several bullets striking the motor and others hitting Campeau, who was at the helm.

The officers admitted they might have shot at the wrong boat, mistaking it for another craft. No liquor was found in the boat, according to the River Rouge police.

RUM DEATHS HERE ARE LAID TO EXCESS

Dr. Harris's Survey of City's Hospitals Show Few Cases of Poison Alcohol.

ONE MORE VICTIM RECORDED

No Arrests Yet Made on Personal Injunctions—Mills Again Scores Police on Speakeasies.

A survey completed yesterday by Health Commissioner Harris revealed that the majority of alcoholic cases in hospitals during the holidays were cases of excessive drinking rather than of poisoning by either wood alcohol or raw alcohol. Even at Bellevue Hospital, which had the most cases, the majority were classed by physicians as "drunks."

However, Bellevue reported another death last night from alcoholism, and an autopsy will be performed to ascertain whether the case was one of poisoning. The victim was Marco Gabriel of 696 Morris Avenue, the Bronx, a junkman. Last night there was brought to the hospital a case that had every appearance of being one of wood alcohol poisoning, the patient being virtually blind. The man is George McMonigle of 148 East Eighty-fourth Street, a steamfitter. He was found at the corner of First Avenue and Fourteenth Street. His condition is serious.

Dr. Harris's figures show a surprising inequality among the hospitals in the number of alcoholic cases handled. St. Vincent's reported one alcoholic case during the holidays. The patient died. On the other hand Bellevue had 250 patients between Dec. 24 and the date of the report, which shows they were considered cases only of intoxication. At Bronx Hospital there was only one mild case of alcoholism, the report from there shows. Flower Hospital had only one case, Fordham Hospital five and Harlem Hospital fifteen. These were all reported as minor cases.

Reports of Other Hospitals.

New York Hospital reported to Commissioner Harris that its ambulance surgeon had treated forty-three cases and that the more serious had been transferred to Bellevue, as is customary. St. Luke's Hospital had only one case and the patient went home within twenty-four hours. Columbus Hospital treated one man for delirium tremens. Towne's Sanitarium reported it had treated eighteen mild cases of alcoholism. Cumberland Street Hospital, Brooklyn, reported one case and Kings County Hospital treated seventy-three cases, all of them mild. Long Island College Hospital had twenty cases, seven of which were treated by ambulance surgeons in the homes of the patients; twelve cases were transferred to Kings County Hospital, and one case was treated in the Long Island Hospital.

Though apparently there was no connection between the unexpected move and the outcry against the poisoning of alcohol, the year-old customs harbor patrol, which has not been much of a success, was shifted from the control of the prohibition unit to the customs service yesterday, though, according to dispatches from Washington, the work of the patrol will continue.

The service never attained the goal that had been set for it. It is understood that the occasion for the shift of jurisdiction is that the Prohibition Unit has no funds to continue the patrol. In Washington last night Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews said the work would not be discontinued.

Mills Again Assails Police.

Prohibition Administrator Mills again assailed the police yesterday for not closing the speakeasies, contending that the health ordinances were constantly broken by such places. At about the same time the police under Inspector Thomas P. Cummings of the First Inspection District raided a building at 154 Leroy Street, in Greenwich Village, and found an elaborate plant for making "Canadian Ale." Paraphernalia worth, the police estimated, $50,000 was seized. Four men were arrested. They are William Ryan of 535 St. Ann's Avenue, the Bronx; Peter Mappelli of 179 Park Row; John Mappelli, same address, and Frank Valenotte of 53 Thompson Street.

Major Mills was asked about the personal injunctions served before the holidays. He said no arrests had been made because he had not obtained "concrete" evidence of violations.

Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, chief toxicologist at Bellevue, was asked yesterday about a statement made by Senator Sheppard of Texas to the effect that it would require two quarts of industrial alcohol, denatured with wood alcohol, to have a fatal effect. He said raw, unaged whisky, whether denatured or not, was toxic, and a few drinks of alcohol denatured with wood alcohol would have very serious results.

There was an increase of 700 cases in violation of the Volstead act in Brooklyn last year as compared with 1925, according to figures made public yesterday by United States Attorney De Groot. The report shows 3,088 Volstead arrests. The Federal Commissioners held 5,801 of the violators and 2,267 were dismissed.

USED PLANE TO HUNT LOST LIQUOR SHIP

EXPLAINS RUM ROW SYSTEM

From the lips of a man who said he was active in rum running, a jury in the United States District Court heard yesterday a story of the businesslike operations of a rum ring, eighteen of whose members are on trial charged with conspiracy, which went to the length of hiring a seaplane to find a lost rum ship, used the serial numbers on dollar bills as means of identification and had offices of some pretentions here.

The eighteen, headed by Edward and Frank Costello and Edward and Frank Kelly, were arrested with fifteen others about a year ago when the Dwyer ring was broken up. All are indicted for conspiracy to violate the prohibition law and the internal revenue law by bringing in from St. Pierre, off the coast of Newfoundland, large quantities of liquor, and, it is charged, bribing Coast Guards, who on one occasion landed the liquor.

The only witness examined yesterday was William R. Newman of Freeport, connected with a Brooklyn newspaper, and also under indictment, though testifying for the Government. He said he met Edward Kelly in Freeport in 1924 and that the latter told him he had several ships operating between Canada and the Long Island shore, but that he had great difficulty with his supercargoes because they drank to excess. Newman said he accepted a job at $75 a week. He was assigned to the Integral and went aboard Nov. 21, 1924, finding about 5,000 cases of liquor on board.

Later he worked on the schooner Vincent White, he testified. He left the ship after a run from Lunenburg, Canada, and on the next trip down from Canada the schooner was "lost" on its way to Rum Row. He was taken to Curtiss Field, near Mineola, and a seaplane was hired, on which he was taken out over Rum Row. Two trips were made before the schooner was sighted. He was put aboard and, he testified, gave the captain of the seaplane a case of liquor as a present.

Last night at Curtiss Field M. M. Merrill, in charge of the Curtiss fliers, confirmed the testimony and said:

"Our planes are like taxicabs in that it is none of the driver's business what his passenger is about. The hiring of the seaplane in that case was merely a matter of business."

Merrill said he felt sure the pilot, Arthur L. Caperton, had not taken a case of liquor as a present, as that would have been contrary to the rules.

Newman told of the elaborate bookkeeping done on board the Vincent White and the businesslike methods followed. He explained that the "contact" boats, into which the liquor was transshipped from the schooner, were identified by means of the numbers on dollar bills. The "home office" in this city gave him a list of numbers. When a "contact" boat came alongside the captain of the smaller boat presented a dollar bill. If it bore a serial number on Newman's list the identification was considered good and the liquor delivered in accordance with specifications on Newman's list.

Newman testified he continued in business until June, 1925, when the pressure of the Coast Guard became heavy and the Vincent White went back to Canada. At Lunenburg he met Kelly, who told him to take the schooner to a point between Yarmouth and Boston, where a cargo of liquor, he said, was to be put aboard a Standard Oil steamer. But on the way south the vessel became fog-bound and he had to put back into Lunenburg.

Assistant United States Attorney Stevenson explained that of the thirty-three originally indicted some had not been apprehended and the remainder of those not now on trial could be used as Government witnesses. He said the Government would show that the ring had elaborate offices here and in Canada and used a sizable fleet of vessels.

The case will be resumed this morning.

MAP IDENTIFIES PAINTING.

A landscape background in a fifteenth-century painting was identified on a large-scale map of the artist's home region, and the evidence used to establish the authenticity of the picture, according to the research related by Sir Martin Conway, who lectured at the Metropolitan Museum of Art yesterday.

Sir Martin's subject was the proving of authorship of old paintings, and he drew his illustrative material from the works of Giorgione, whose only picture that is established by documentary evidence is "The Birth of Paris." Sir Martin himself has two companion pieces to this one, "The Finding of Paris" and "Putting Paris Out to Nurse," which were on the platform yesterday.

In the first of the two pictures Sir Martin said he discovered the salient features of the background were similar to the representation of a river and hills on a map of Northern Italy which he consulted. He visited the place, Bassano, and not only discovered the original of the landscape, as he had hoped, but discovered the original of the other while on the last stage of his journey thither by automobile.

Senate Passes Agricultural Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP).—The Senate passed late today the annual Agricultural Supply bill, carrying $128,598,589. The bill, which now goes to conference, carries $219,204 more than when it passed the House.

Mr. Rogers on Poison Rum As a Weapon in Our Next War

To the Editor of The New York Times:

DODGE CITY, Kan., Jan. 4.—Talk about America being unarmed and unprepared for the next war. Why, say, we are setting pretty.

Give the enemy a party the night before the war starts and serve Government booze. Government statistics prove they are running about five funerals to the quart.

The rambling Mayor,

WILL ROGERS.

P. S.—And we are the country that wants to outlaw poison gases in war, for humanitarian reasons!

SAYS MOVIES DRAW SILLY.

British Headmaster Asserts Film Success Is Appeal to Shallow Folk.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—"The commercial cinema depends upon its ability to attract the largest possible number of silly people in their silly moments," declared R. F. Cholmeley, President of the Incorporated Association of Headmasters at today's annual conference of that body. "I should not like to be a shareholder in Hollywood on the Day of Judgment," he declared.

Mr. Cholmeley derided the film as an educational asset. It was conceivable, he said, that children below a certain age should not go to the cinema at all.

"The chief victims of this industry, now probably the most powerful vested interest in the world, are the immature minds of the children of the West End and the minds of some of the immature and some of the dangerously precocious of what we are pleased to call the inferior races." Mr. Cholmeley asserted.

The assembled headmasters seemed to think little of the merits of broadcasting as an educational facility. One teacher said that he had taken a census of 6,000 pupils in secondary schools to discover their preferences and that the result showed that 63 per cent. preferred broadcast music to any other feature, while a third of these wanted nothing but jazz as dispended by the Savoy Hotel's American band. Only 8 per cent. were interested in educational subjects, the census revealed.

It left Linga about 9:30 A. M. and arrived at Jask at 11:35 A. M. Sir Samuel Hoare is expected at Karachi at 3 P. M. tomorrow.

Meanwhile, T. Neville Stack and B. S. Leete, two members of the Lancashire Aero Club, who are flying from London to India in two D. H. Moths, left Bushire at 3 A. M. today for Bandar Abbas, eighty miles west of Jask.

They passed over Linga at 6:40 A. M., 15 minutes before Sir Samuel Hoare arrived there and landed at Bandar Abbas at 7:46 A. M. They left for Jask at 11 A. M.

Device May Aid Teaching of Deaf.

Plans to make use of the "osiso," the new portable device for "portraying" sounds, in the education of deaf children were discussed here yesterday by its inventor, J. W. Legg; Dr. Max A. Goldstein, director of the Central Institute for the Deaf, St. Louis, and E. M. Herr, President of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, it was announced at the company's offices, 150 Broadway. "Through this principle of the portable oscillograph," Dr. Goldstein said, "I believe the deaf child may be taught the elements of correct speech."

has the opportunity "to meet the issue raised by armament building abroad."

"In my judgment," he added, "Congress will not be satisfied with mere authorizations of what have been called 'paper ships.'"

Chairman French of the naval subcommittee, in presenting the bill of the House Appropriations Committee, read figures in support of his contention that the navy is now stronger comparatively than when the Washington Arms Conference concluded. His argument was that, taking into consideration speed, range of guns, obsolescence and other factors, the navy was stronger now than five years ago, and as things were now tending he predicted it would be still stronger five years hence.

"Tell me where you got those figures," he shouted. "Did you copy them out of a book? You have Dewey's fleet at Manila there, have you not? You know very well that those ships are not worth any more than my old automobile that I traded for $35 worth of gasoline.

"Tell us how many ships Great Britain will have in 1931, rated as 10,000, 8,000 and 7,500 ton cruisers. Did you tell them that Great Britain in 1931 will have 421 torpedo tubes to our 134? Tell them how many Japan will have. Tell them the length of their guns, their size and ranges.

"Take the modern ships and tell this house how many 8-inch guns and torpedo tubes they have ready for use. Tell them about the 75,000 tons of these cruisers that Great Britain has designed and which Great Britain proposes to build. Tell them of the eleven cruisers which Great Britain now has under construction.

"Tell them that France since we signed that agreement has built 147 ships of war and tell this house where they got the money with which to build them. Do not tell them about these second-hand ships. I, for one, will not permit an American to go to war on such a list of boats as you have there. That was my dream, too, but I have awakened."

Admits Including Old Ships.

Mr. French, after giving assurances that he had not intended to mislead the House said that for sentimental or some other purposes he had included American ships of ancient construction but that he had done the same thing in the consideration of the tonnage of other nations.

Mr. French referred to an article by Hector C. Bywater, in which the British naval expert, he said, contended that the British Navy was outclassed by the United States.

Representative Britten questioned the reference to Mr. Bywater's article and said:

"Did not Mr. Bywater say that thirteen of the eighteen first-line American ships were outranged by every British ship?"

"I think that was in this same article," Mr. French replied. "I am not talking about the details of this statement. I am talking about his conclusions."

Representative Vinson of Georgia, ranking Democratic member of the House Naval Committee, followed with an analysis of naval building programs in the past five years.

"Since the Washington conference," said Mr. Vinson, "we have built or appropriated for sixteen ships of war; the British Empire has built or appropriated for thirty-seven ships of war; Japan has built or appropriated for 116 ships of war; France has built or appropriated for eighty-eight ships of war, and Italy has built or appropriated for forty-six ships of war.

"The United States scrapped 842,380 tons as a result of that conference, and since the conference we have built or appropriated for 120,909. The British Empire scrapped 447,750 tons, and since the conference she has replaced 285,795 tons, or within 161,955 tons as much as she scrapped.

"Japan scrapped 254,709 tons and has built or appropriated for since the conference, 238,201 tons, or replaced within 15,508 tons of what she scrapped. France did not scrap any ships at all, but since the conference she has added 221,828 tons to her navy. Neither did Italy scrap any ships as a result of the conference, but she has added 102,207 tons to her navy."

Would Cut Ten Cruisers to Seven.

Mr. Tilson indicated today that if the naval bill carried an amendment authorizing appropriations with which to start work on the three cruisers of the 1924 program, the number of ships of this type carried by the Butler bill now pending with a favorable report, would be reduced from ten to seven. This reduction does not meet with the approval of Chairman Butler and his associates on the Naval Committee. They will stand by the bill in its present form.

It is estimated that $150,000 would be ample to defray the cost of drafting plans for the cruisers. It is probable that additional amounts may be provided so that actual construction may be made possible in the new fiscal year.

While the two dirigibles authorized in the 1924 program are not included in the proposed Tilson amendment, it is probable appropriations will be sought for them. The Administration failed to include the dirigibles in the budget, stating that it was of the opinion that nothing should be done with them until the Government was advised of the results of tests with this type of craft now under way in the British Navy.

Today's session of the House Naval Committee was called to consider the bill introduced by Chairman Butler providing an appropriation of $13,180,000 to recondition the older battleships Oklahoma and Nevada. Admirals Halligan, Black and Beuret appeared to discuss the measure from a technical standpoint. Admiral Beuret was asked whether it was the view of the Navy Department that the guns on our battleships should be "elevated" to give them a range equal to that of guns carried on British ships of war. He replied in the affirmative. At the climax of a discussion that followed Chairman Butler requested Admiral Beuret to take the bill to his office and return it with a provision to authorize the elevation of guns on the two battleships.

Committee Backs Butler.

The committee concurred in the request made by Chairman Butler.

Considerable significance was attached to the action of Mr. Butler in view of the fact that it was his opposition that led to the defeat in 1924 of the Britten bill, which sought to provide for the elevation of the guns on eleven battleships.

"I want to apologize for my opposition to the Britten bill two years ago," said Chairman Butler. He expressed the opinion that there was nothing in the Washington arms treaty that prohibited the elevation of guns.

"In view of the fact that other powers have ignored, trampled on and discarded the spirit of the treaty, I see no reason why we should not go ahead," exclaimed Chairman Butler.

Representative McClintic of Oklahoma suggested that the American people were opposed to participation in anything like a race to build naval armament.

"The race is on, and we might as well join it," replied Mr. Butler.

Representative Britten today reintroduced his bill to increase the elevation and range of turret guns of the battleships Arkansas, Wyoming, Pennsylvania, Arizona, New York, Texas, Mississippi, Idaho and New Mexico.

"Now that England and Japan have completely ignored the spirit of the Washington conference and the 5-5-3 ratio," said Mr. Britten, "I am sure the country as well as the Committee on Naval Affairs will back my movement to make our guns shoot just as far as do the British and Japanese. In 1924 my bill was not in conflict with the President's financial policy and was approved by the Director of the Budget. The bill carries an authorization for $5,500,000, or $500,000 per ship."

GERDES METHOD VENTILATION

A serious fault of modern buildings is their devitalized and overwarm atmosphere. The reason is that architects, knowing of the discouraging results from "cooked" air systems, assume that no better result can be had.

Good results will follow from right methods. The right way to maintain a pure atmosphere and comfortable coolness is with vital unheated fresh air. By the Gerdes Method of Ventilation unheated fresh air is diffused without causing draft or chill.

Buildings that cost millions are being ventilated by the Gerdes Method and are convincing proof that pure and invigorating atmospheres can be maintained in modern buildings.

M'KELLAR DECLARES AGAINST COL. SMITH

SENATE'S POWER DISPUTED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Fourteen Senators who voted to permit Truman H. Newberry to retain his seat as a Senator from Michigan were warned by Senator McKellar of Tennessee in the Senate today that their conduct would be carefully watched when a resolution is presented to exclude Colonel Frank L. Smith of Illinois on the ground of excessive expenditures in his primary campaign.

Twenty-one Senators now sitting voted to let Mr. Newberry remain in the Senate, and incidentally declared his primary fund of $195,000 was too large, but Senator McKellar disregarded seven of these who were defeated for re-election last November and addressed himself to the fourteen. They are Messrs. Curtis of Kansas, Edge of New Jersey, Gooding of Idaho, Hale of Maine, Keyes of New Hampshire, McLean of Connecticut, McNary of Oregon, Oddie of Nevada, Phipps of Colorado, Shortridge of California, Smoot of Utah, Warren of Wyoming, Watson of Indiana and Willis of Ohio.

The warning came in a speech in which Mr. McKellar argued that Mr. Smith approached the Senate with "unclean hands" and should be barred immediately, because he was alleged to have violated the Illinois statutes by accepting campaign contributions from Samuel Insull while Chairman of the Illinois Commerce Commission.

Indications of a contention that old-line Republicans may use in the Smith case were given when Senator Bingham of Connecticut strongly implied that the Senate had no power to exclude a member for offenses committed prior to his election. This attitude led to sharp remarks from Senators Walsh of Montana and McKellar, who insisted that the Senate could take cognisance of an offense whenever committed.

Gould Case Brought In.

Frederick W. Hinckley, counsel for Senator Gould of Maine, threw the Gould case into the general Vare-Smith controversy when he demanded that the Committee on Privileges and Elections dismiss the $100,000 bribery charges against the Maine Senator for want of jurisdiction. Mr. Hinckley said the alleged bribery was committed fourteen years before the election. The committee will pass on the motion to dismiss tomorrow.

Senator McKellar's admonition to the "Newberry Senators" was in connection with his argument that Mr. Smith had broken not only the Illinois law, but the precedent of the Newberry resolution, which declared primary expenditures of $195,000 were excessive.

"There are fourteen in this Senate and the next out of forty-six who voted for the Newberry resolution, and I am going to watch carefully to see how many are going to vote against the resolution in the present case," said Mr. McKellar. "There are twenty-nine here out of thirty-one who voted against it."

Senator Bingham asked if Senator McKellar considered the Newberry resolution a "direction" or "advice" as to how much money should be spent.

"It meant," Mr. McKellar replied, "a rule of conduct for this body to be followed in all instances and which will be followed in the present case."

Says Primary Is Part of Election.

"We are obliged to stand by the Newberry $195,000, in my opinion," Senator McKellar continued. "The primary is such an integral part of the election, I have no doubt our courts would hold that fraud in the primary permeated the election. So, regardless of his qualifications, Mr. Smith should be barred for fraud in the primary."

When Senator McKellar advanced "expulsion" as one way to get rid of an "undesirable" Senator-designate, Mr. Bingham asked if the constitutional convention meant to give the Senate power to expel a man for an offense preceding election.

"The power to expel is without limitation, except in the good sense of the Senate," Mr. McKellar answered.

"Does the Senator from Connecticut hold," asked Senator Walsh, "that the Senate cannot expel a man for an offense prior to election?"

"My present view is, it can, but my studies lead me to believe that was not the intention of the Constitution framers nor their contemporaries," Senator Bingham responded.

"So, if one has been convicted of treason, this body is powerless to keep him out," said Senator Walsh.

Bitter Against Smith.

Senator McKellar was bitter in his denunciation of Mr. Smith.

"It is our duty," he asserted, "to exclude him whenever he presents himself. His testimony alone shows he should be excluded. Think of a man who has been in Congress, three times Chairman of his State Republican Committee, six years on the Commerce Commission, now asking what wrong he has done? In a mock heroic way he wants to know who brings charges against him. I don't see how any Senator can vote to seat him.

"This man comes here with unclean hands. We should not hesitate, but should exclude him immediately, so that the great State of Illinois can send a man whose hands are clean. Corruption permeates the whole affair. I sincerely hope he will not come, and will thus save us the embarrassment of voting against him.

"In my judgment there was never a more important question. If we seat Smith we give notice to every man and woman in the Union 'if you have got money to buy a Senate seat, go to it.' But if the Senate rises to its full duty, we give notice that here is one body where you cannot buy a seat and remain."

Senator Blease, one of the few Democrats expected to vote to seat Colonel Smith, said Senator McKellar's argument that the Senate had jurisdiction over offenses prior to the election would have barred every man who fought for the South in the Civil War.

Gould Argument Unfinished.

Mr. Hinckley, counsel for Senator Gould, had not concluded his argument for dismissal of the investigation when the Elections Committee recessed today. Senator King of Utah objected to the demand on the ground that the Senate had specifically ordered the investigation.

Although he voted in the Senate for the Walsh resolution to investigate his case, Senator Gould said, through his counsel, he was now convinced by study the Senate had no right to make the investigation. Mr. Hinckley denied that the Senate had the right to expel a member for moral turpitude committed prior to the election, unless some relation was shown between the crime and the election. He insisted that the case differed from the Vare-Smith matter, because no election corruption was alleged.

Mr. Hinckley said former Premier Fleming of New Brunswick, to whom the bribe was alleged to have been given, was a member of the Canadian Parliament, and nothing had been done to him.

The counsel contended also that the bribery charge arose from a finding by Judge McKeown as arbiter in a claim, submitted by Mr. Gould for return of $400,000 to him and associates. According to Mr. Hinckley, Judge McKeown was appointed arbitrator by his brother-in-law, the late Premier Clark, who, Mr. Hinckley declared, "tried to hold up Mr. Gould for $50,000, which was refused."

Harrison Would Bar Smith and Vare.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 (AP).—Senators-elect Smith of Illinois and Vare of Pennsylvania should be barred from the Senate at once and not allowed to take the oath of office prior to any action the Senate may take, Senator Harrison of Mississippi declared in an address before the Jewish Arts Club here tonight.

"A Senate committee has for months made thorough investigation," Senator Harrison said. "The contestants were given every opportunity to be heard, and all the facts have been adduced, and from those facts I am convinced that the applicants should not be permitted to take the oath.

"If this Senate committee had not made the investigation, and these facts were not now in the possession of the Senate, the oath should be administered and the investigation follow.

"But, being convinced, as I am, of the tainted character of the credentials, why should I vote to admit the applicants, have the oath prescribed, and permit them for months, and perhaps years, to vote upon the manifold questions that will arise, and then in the future expel them?"

LATIN-AMERICANS SAID TO SUSPECT US

RECENT ACTS DISTURBING

Nicaragua, Mexico and Panama Are Regarded as Victims, He Declares on Arrival.

The Latin American world views "without entire sympathy" interference by the United States in the affairs of her southern neighbors, according to Arturo Manrique, editor and proprietor of the Mundo al Dia, a prominent newspaper of Bogota, Colombia, who returned yesterday from a six months' visit to Europe on the Cunard liner Berengaria.

He said that while many Latin Americans realized that while such incidents as the landing of the marines in Nicaragua were not actuated by a desire to establish a protectorate, but simply to safeguard life and property, a majority were inclined to regard what they called "American imperialism" with suspicion.

Other questions in which he said the American attitude was not regarded sympathetically by Latin Americans were the oil dispute between this country and Mexico and the recently published treaty with Panama. In each of these, he said, American imperialism was feared.

"The relations between Colombia and the United States, for example, are naturally friendly, yet we cannot forget how Roosevelt seized Panama from us," he said. "Since it has been my personal aim to foster good understanding between the two countries, not only for idealistic reasons but because of the sound commercial benefits to be derived from their friendship, I have always pointed out that this was the act of one individual and not necessarily popular with the whole nation. It is only fair to admit that this point of view is not general among South Americans."

Mr. Manrique said that he had confined his travels to the principal cities of France, Germany and Spain, where he had been the guest of many European newspapers.

"With the exception of the graphic side of publication, which is amazingly well developed in Germany, I find your newspapers far ahead of those in any other country," he said. "In promptness and completeness of news they have no equals."

Mr. Manrique said that a number of French editors were interested in the establishment of "a spiritual League of Nations" to bind together the sympathies of the Latin nations of Europe and the nations of Latin America.

BERLIN-VIENNA WIRE OPEN.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—Presidents Hindenburg and Hainisch exchanged greetings today in officially opening the new direct cable telephone and telegraph service between Berlin and Vienna.

This is the first step over Germany's eastern frontier of the cable system which it is hoped will connect the German capital direct with the Balkans and Near East. During the Summer the cable will be extended to Budapest.

Containing ninety-eight pairs of wires, the line enables 105 telephone conversations to be carried on as well as affording a large number of telegraph connections.

The Minister of Posts announces that beginning tomorrow it will be possible to telephone to any part of Germany and any part of England, thus enlarging the limited service opened between the capitals of the two countries last Summer.

TEACHER IS CHARGED WITH RISQUE STORIES

INDIANOLA, Iowa, Jan. 4 (AP).—Children of the Broadhorn School, ranging in age from 10 to 14 years, may know risque stories, but they were not told them by their teacher, Miss Florence I. Cochran, the teacher, declared today in a statement denying charges that she had entertained the pupils during recesses with lurid tales.

Miss Cochran is fighting to regain her position in the little school, which has been closed since the directors obtained an injunction against her continuing as teacher. Her case is in the hands of Walter M. McGee, County Superintendent, who expects to rule in a few days on evidence submitted by seven pupils and several friends of the teacher who gave character testimony for her. Miss Cochran is 19 years old and has been teaching for two years.

Miss Cochran regards the case as a "school rumpus," in which, she declared, the President, C. C. Crawford, sought to oust her and instal his son, Clee Crawford, as the teacher. A previous attempt had been made to force her retirement, she declared.

Superintendent McGee said today he considered Miss Cochran's reputation bore out her denial of the charges, but he did not indicate what his decision would be.

The children who testified at a hearing before the superintendent gave evidence concerning the conversation during a luncheon period, but Miss Cochran declares she did not tell them any stories, and asserts that their testimony is conflicting. One of the boys, she asserts, related a tale he had heard from his father.

SAYS MEXICO IS MALIGNED.

Reports About Bandits Give Wrong Impression, Asserts Miss Ramirez.

Reports about bandits give an unfair impression of Mexico, according to Miss Elene Ramirez. As the daughter of a former Secretary of Education and the granddaughter of an early Congressman, Miss Ramirez of Mexico City has many other phases of Mexico to relate. "How many Americans know that Mexico has the eight-hour day and equal pay for equal work, regardless of sex?" she asks. "The best labor laws were studied from all countries when the Constitution for the new republic was made. Industrial conditions were wretched and workers were poor and overworked."

Miss Ramirez, after a year's study at the National Training School of the Y. W. C. A., in New York, is in Mexico City, engaged in Y. W. C. A. educational and health work. She expresses a warm admiration for American girls as she knew them in New York.

"They face life so fearlessly," she says. They love to enjoy life and yet underneath they have a deep desire to do something worth while. Mexican girls long to do something for their country. We hope to hel, it shine in the eyes of the world."

Self-supporting girls come to the Y. W. C. A. in Mexico City from factories as well as students and girls of leisure.

OHIO TO ASK FARM AID.

Legislature Will Urge Congress to Act Without Delay.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 4.—Ohio, an industrial State, whose agriculture is a secondary interest, is to petition Congress for farm relief, a resolution to this effect was introduced in the General Assembly today by Representative John T. Brown of Champaign County, and it is slated for adoption early next week.

An agricultural crisis is developing in Ohio, bankers and farm owners say, because of the constant decline in farm values. Sharp drops have been noted in recent weeks.

Mr. Brown's resolution memorializes Congress to make an earnest effort to enact such legislation at the earliest possible moment as may tend to protect our nation from the effects of further agricultural decline, and offer whatever possible aid toward its recovery as may come within its power.

Promoters of the resolution assert that similar memorials are to be adopted in all the mid-Western and Western States.

CALLES GIVES ORDER TO ENFORCE OIL LAW

He Instructs Attorney General to Take Action to Which Mexico "Is Entitled."

SEIZURE OF LANDS SEEN

Cabinet Decides to Proceed in High Court Against Companies That Have Ignored Regulations.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 4 (AP).—President Calles tonight instructed the Department of Industry, Commerce and Labor to furnish the Attorney General with the names of individuals or companies that have not applied for ratification of their rights under the Petroleum and Alien Land laws, so that he may take action.

Indicating the intention of the Government to enforce forfeiture of the rights of the foreign oil companies which have not complied with the new laws, the President ordered the Attorney General to "take the action to which the nation is entitled" against such companies.

Supreme Court Action Planned.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 4.—The Cabinet decided tonight to bring action in the Supreme Court against all oil companies that have refused to denounce their properties in compliance with the Petroleum law, which went into force on Saturday.

The companies will be charged with disobedience of the Mexican Constitution, laws and regulations, and will be forced to make a defense before the high court. A decision is expected to take many months.

It is stated by persons close to the Minister of Industry, Commerce and Labor that the entire Cabinet agreed to this plan and agents of the oil companies are said to have been advised of the proposed action.

A group of Mexican lawyers has begun a study of the objections of foreign oil companies to the Petroleum law, which went into effect on Saturday, and will present their findings to President Calles himself.

Although the lawyers, two of whom are reputed to be in the employ of the petroleum branch of the Department of Industry, Commerce and Labor, refuse to discuss their conferences, it is learned that they will suggest to President Calles that he use his extraordinary powers to remove certain objectionable features of the regulations and arrive at an agreement with the oil companies, especially in the matter of the alleged retroactivity of the new law.

Tampico companies, meanwhile, are reported to be going ahead with the extraction and shipping of oil and the perfoation of wells under old drilling permits.

Railway Workers Back Calles.

President Calles has received telegrams from railway employes congratulating him on his stand. The Alliance of Railway Workers sent this message:

"Expressing adhesion and help at this moment when American imperialism is making its influence felt to violate the sovereignty of weak nations, we are with you and will be with you in all cases in which your policy tends to safeguard the gains of the Revolution and the national integrity."

Another message, signed by the President of the Confederation of Unions of Railway Men read:

"Responding to your call, we congratulate you on the stand taken in defense of the national interests in the oil cases. The railway group feels a solidarity with the Government against every act of imperialism by American capitalists.

"We regret that the Secretary of Industry, Commerce and Labor has forced us at this time to assume an attitude of defense, as the railway unions, which fought for twenty years to cement an organization which is safeguarding their legitimate interests, cannot permit a railway company to exercise tactics of dissolution, with the backing of the Secretary, who is following ideas contrary to the public interests."

FERDINAND IS WORSE; HAS SERIOUS RELAPSE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—Dispatches received in Paris early today told of the desperate condition of King Ferdinand of Rumania, but messages late tonight indicated that while the monarch's condition has become worse there is no immediate danger of death.

Earlier messages gave the impression that death was a matter of a few days or even hours; but these alarming reports appear to be exaggerated, although a sudden fatal turn in the King's illness is not impossible in view of the nature of his malady.

Nevertheless, it seems that the projected visit of the King to Paris during the current month has been abandoned, owing to his continued weakness following the recent operation. It was hoped that his Majesty would be able to withstand the strain of the railway journey and to submit to a radium treatment in a Paris hospital, at the same time benefiting from the change of climate, but attending physicians have now advised against the trip.

The latest disquieting rumors of the King's condition have again centred attention upon Prince Carol and his position with regard to the Rumanian throne should death precipitate a crisis in Bucharest.

Despite the circumstantial dispatches cabled to the United States to the effect that Prince Carol had left for Bucharest, that he had given up home, Lupescu, &c., the former heir to the throne continues to remain within the frontiers of France.

Nothing short of a definite message from the consulting surgeons that his father is dying will induce the Prince to go home, it is explained by those in close touch with the young man, and, so far as the throne is concerned, he has refused to sign away any further rights or in any way to limit the scope of his action in the event the succession becomes an issue.

The fact is that he is still said to be disposed to resume his duties as Crown Prince if and when an articulate majority demands his return.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 4 (AP).—Professor Nicolas Jorga, Rumania's "Grand Old Man," who was formerly the tutor of Prince Carol, left for Paris today. His mission, officially announced, is to deliver his yearly addresses at the Sorbonne. Circles close to the royal palace, however, believe he has been entrusted by the King to see Prince Carol and to arrange for the return of the former Crown Prince.

Professor Jorga is head of a small political group in the Rumanian Chamber, and there are many who look upon him as the man who would be called upon to form a Government if the former Crown Prince should ascend the throne.

FULLER WON'T HALT DEATHS

BOSTON, Jan. 4 (AP).—Governor Fuller declared in a statement today that he saw no reason why he should interfere with the execution of Edward J. Heinlein, John J. Devereaux and John J. McLaughlin, who are sentenced to die in the electric chair at the State Prison in Charlestown this week for the murder in 1925 of James Fernesu, aged watchman, at a Waltham car barn.

The statement was issued following an audience granted by the Governor to Frank Manning, Chairman of a citizens' committee, which has been working to obtain executive clemency for the "car-barn bandits."

Mr. Manning declared in a written request for the audience that he had discovered "a new angle of the case which he felt the Governor might have overlooked."

After spending forty minutes with Governor Fuller, Manning left the State House declining to comment on the nature of the interview. It was understood that he stressed a previous declaration that Devereaux was insane at the time of the murder.

The relatives of the three youths were allowed to visit the death house for the last time today. A guard was placed outside the prison walls tonight to dispense crowds of curious persons.

way, explaining that any such operations are the work of local bandits or groups of so-called revolutionaries, whom the Federals are exterminating.

The boldness of the bandits in coming as near as ten miles to Mexico City has caused considerable excitement in the capital. Yesterday bandits kidnapped six Mexican hunters returning to the city. They killed one who resisted and severely wounded another. The outlaws released the remaining four after robbing them. Presumably the same band yesterday held up several automobiles near Tlalpam, a suburb, robbing the passengers.

Two hundred revolutionaries attacked the military garrison at Leon yesterday, but were repulsed by the Federals, who killed ten of them, and executed eleven of the leaders, who are said to have been prominent citizens of the place. The War Department, however, has received no word of the executions.

Railroad Destruction Reported.

On Sunday afternoon thirty-five or more armed men, described by the authorities as bandits, but who themselves shouted that they were revolutionists, needing supplies for their operations, robbed the passengers of six automobiles, near the place where Jacob Rosenthal, a retired business man of Woodmere, L. I., N. Y., was kidnapped last September and later killed by his captors. This place lies between Mexico City and Cuernavaca. Not long afterward a railroad train near the town of Ajusco, thirty miles from Mexico City, was boarded by bandits and robbed.

Late dispatches say the Federals put down rebel risings at Conception del Oro, State of Zacatecas, executing several of the leaders.

The War Department admits that revolutionists, numbering forty, according to its estimate, have captured the small garrison at Parras de la Fuente, State of Coahuila.

The newspapers also print reports of the destruction of railroad tracks in the northern part of the republic. In an attempt to wreck a Laredo-Mexico City train, an armed gang captured a group of section hands north of San Luis Potosi, forced them to tear up the tracks and carried them off as prisoners. Some of the section hands escaped and ran back to the railroad in time to flag the first train and prevent a disaster.

Revolutionaries also tore up the railroad tracks and burned bridges at points between Torreon and Saltillo.

Three rival State Legislatures, each claiming to be the legal body, have established themselves at Puebla, causing fear that there may be armed clashes between the rival political groups.

Gomez Denies Threat To Revolt.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 4.—Following a crop of rumors from Vera Cruz that General Arnulfo Gomez was threatening to revolt against the Central Government, the General, who is commander of the garrison there, has arrived in Mexico City. He denies the rumors and states they were circulated by enemies trying to undermine his influence with President Calles.

General Gomez is known to have Presidential aspirations for 1928. He is reported to be bitter against former President Obregon, whose friends in Congress succeeded in passing a bill to amend clauses 82 and 83 of the Constitution, which, if finally ratified, would permit Obregon to become President again. General Gomez is also believed to be opposed to Secretary Morones, another Presidential possibility.

The name of General Gomez has been mentioned often in rumors, but his friends say he would not be so foolish as to revolt, especially at this time when he is under suspicion. They assert that he is loyal to President Calles and that there is no possibility of his breaking faith.

The Grafico states that mounted police from here have been ordered in pursuit of several small groups of rebels supposed to have their headquarters in Tlalpam, at the northern end of the Valley of Mexico. These bands are believed to have held up automobiles returning to Mexico City from Cuernavaca on Sunday and to have attacked trains between the same two places.

Troops to Be Held Ready.

The authorities say that Federal troops will be held in barracks in readiness and that cavalry patrols will cover all the small towns in the Valley of Mexico to prevent rebels from entering.

The Grafico states that Juan Trujillo Lopez is leader of the rebels operating on the Cuernavaca road, who attacked the railway station at Ajusco last night, cutting telegraphic lines and stealing apparatus. This is supposed to be the same band that fired on a Cuernavaca train.

Reports from Tlalpam say that a group of rebels under the command of the Castro brothers and Manuel Reyes entered Tlalpam and killed a citizen, later robbing small villages near by.

The band, reported to number 200, who revolted at a small town near Milpa Alta, is said to have kidnapped two priests from the village of San Salvador and to have stolen forty horses from a hacienda.

According to the authorities in Tlalpam, the heads of this gang are ex-Zapatistas with headquarters in the Ajusco Mountains. The majority are reported mounted.

tion and anarchy." The Bank of Nicaragua and railroad lines, it was said, were not owned by Americans, but citizens of the United States had many interests there, including fruit, lumber and mercantile lines, and Americans were interested in the financial settlement between the Nicaraguan Government and its creditors, which Congress approved in 1917.

This settlement, it was explained, required Nicaragua to name an American as Collector of Customs, who had certain duties to perform in applying part of the customs receipts to the payment of Nicaragua's debt. There had been no treaty authorizing this procedure, but the United States Government gave its approval to the plan.

To a direct question it was said that it could not be asserted positively that the success of the Sacasa revolution would threaten the right of the United States to build an interoceanic canal through Nicaragua and establish a naval base in that country, but that this might be the ultimate result.

Vaca Denies Rights Are Menaced.

When Dr. T. S. Vaca, confidential agent of the Sacasa revolutionary party in Washington, heard of the White House statement he took the position that there could be no danger to American rights to build a canal and establish a naval base, because there was no canal in existence and its proposed route was far distant from the places where the armed forces of the United States had established themselves.

"I do not know that the canal rights of the United States or the Fonseca Bay concession is threatened by anybody," said Dr. Vaca.

"This matter is entirely foreign to the issues at stake in the struggle to re-establish constitutional government in Nicaragua and free the country from an onerous and irresponsible banker rule."

Meanwhile efforts are being made to adjust the perturbed conditions in Nicaragua. Costa Rica is reported to have made an offer to mediate between the Diaz and Sacasa factions, and Sacasa is credited with having accepted the offer even under a condition precedent that any settlement will provide that he shall not be President of the republic. President Diaz is reported to have rejected the proposal. Apparently he is relying upon the recognition given to his Government by the United States and construing its attitude as intended to retain him in power.

LABOR DRAFTED FOR WAR.

Foreign Coffee Interests in Nicaragua Protest to Diaz.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 4 (AP).—La Prensa, commenting on the situation in Nicaragua, says:

"The Government will be obliged to take extreme measures to safeguard the interest of Nicaragua. Nationals and foreigners will have to rally to its support in the present crisis; sacrifices must be made by all in order to fight against the most formidable filibustering expedition in the turbulent history of our hundred years of independence."

All laborers are being recruited for service in the army. The coffee crop is ready to pick, but there will be no one to pick it. American, English, Italian, German and French nationals are protesting against the recruiting of these coffee workers, as failure to lift the crop means great financial losses to the owners.

The Government has again requested the American Legation to seek permission of Washington for the importation of munitions, as the Conservatives are very short.

Marines to Go to Managua For First Time Since 1925

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 4 (AP).—United States Marines will be returned to Managua tomorrow for the first time since their withdrawal in August, 1925, it was announced tonight. A force of 160 will be landed from the Galveston at Corinto, proceeding to Managua as a guard for the United States Legation.

High officials in the Conservative Government of General Diaz declared the arrival of the marines was timely and would save the country from anarchy. They remarked that Nicaragua enjoyed its greatest prosperity and progress during the thirteen years in which the marines were stationed here before.

KING CRITICIZES COOLIDGE.

Utah Senator Accuses Him of Attempting to Muzzle the Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP).—President Coolidge was criticised in the Senate today by Senator King, Democrat, Utah, for what he termed "a lecture to the press for its criticism of the President's foreign policy."

The Senator said he had been unable to determine what this country's foreign policy was, but "it is not a wise thing to attempt to muzzle the press or retard its discussion of the foreign policy."

The reference was to a recent White House utterance in which the President was represented as feeling that the Government was being "sandbagged in foreign affairs because of the attitude of some American newspapers."

FIND 'DEAD' BROTHER LIVING

Sisters Arrange for Burial, Discover Body Is That of Stranger.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 4.—After completing arrangements for the burial of their brother, William B. Callis, 77 years old, who was reported to have died in St. Francis Hospital from a skull fracture received in a street fall, the Misses Sarah and Emelie Callis of 431 Stuyvesant Avenue, this city, discovered today that he was alive and a patient at the State Hospital for the Insane.

The sisters, after being notified that their brother was dead, had ordered the body removed to a local morgue and made funeral arrangements. At the morgue, however, they discovered that the body was not their brother's. The police and hospital officials have been unable to identify the body first thought to be Callis.

HOT FIGHT IS WAGED OVER REICH CABINET

WOULD BAR ALL JUNKERS

They Propose Stegerwald as Chancellor—Vienna Has Rumor von Hindenburg Favors Curtius.

By LINCOLN EYRE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—Aerial warfare in the shape of trial balloons set adrift in all directions by would-be political pilots today marks the bitter struggle for possession of the new German Government that has been raging among politicians here since the Marx Cabinet went down to defeat a week before Christmas.

These experimental bags of hot air, designed to promote a certain candidacy for the Chancellorship or a particular brand of parliamentary coalition or a special line of State policy, mostly are shot down rapidly by the "archies" of the Opposition press.

The latest of them has been blown hither from Vienna, where Dr. Curtius, Minister of Commerce under Marx, is named as Von Hindenburg's choice for Chancellor. While the Achtuhr Abendblatt backs this rumor with the positive statement that Dr. Curtius will be formally asked to form a Cabinet next week, the Minister's absence at Wiesbaden, whence he returns to Berlin only next Sunday, makes all this somewhat speculative.

Undoubtedly the most successful balloon d'essai yet devised is that launched by M. Briand in Paris. The French Foreign Minister's intimation that the outcome of his own intensive campaign to shield the spirit of Locarno from the assaults of his Nationalistic compatriots depends largely on the continuance whole-heartedly of a Locarnoist Government at Berlin, and has provided the German Republican factions with powerful ammunition against the inclusion of Nationalists in the new German Cabinet.

The Liberal press points out that the only sure way to hasten liberation of the Rhineland is by strengthening the bonds welded between France and Germany by M. Briand and Dr. Stresemann. These bonds, the organs of the Left insist, would be weakened, or broken altogether, were the Junker antagonists of the Locarno, Geneva and Thoiry policy to come into power here. Encouragement would be given to the French militarists, whose machinations against M. Briand might thereby succeed and who would then be enabled to drag the whole European peace structure into the dust.

Only a community of interests between the present Government coalition in the Reich and the Socialists can avert this danger with certainty, in the opinion of German Republicans. To this end they propose Adam Stegerwald, one of the Catholic Centre's most liberal leaders, for Chancellor. Admittedly, however, they cannot get a Reichstag majority without the German People's Party, Stresemann's faction, which thus far has flatly refused to coalesce with the Socialists.

On the other side of the fence Count Westarp is hard at work trying to organize a Parliamentary groupment that will give a Government dominated by his Nationalists the Reichstag's support. At Munich it is proposed that Dr. Held, the Bavarian Premier, form a Ministry headed by the leader of the Bavarian People's Party and composed of representatives of that party and the German People's Party, and, of course, Nationalists. Here, too, however, a majority would be available only in the event of the Centre lending its tacit backing. And the Centrists being divided among themselves have taken no final stand one way or the other.

BISHOP OF LONDON LAUDS HAWAIISPIRIT

Prelate Thinks Nations of the World Can Profit From 'Love and Tolerance' Shown There.

'ALOHA' HAPPY KEYNOTE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—If the rest of the world were like Hawaii brotherly love among nations would soon become a reality, is the view of the Bishop of London who, on his way to the United States from Asia, recently visited Honolulu.

In a letter to The London Times, after taking up the possibility of war between the United States and Japan and remarking that the whole world should intervene to prevent such a catastrophe, the British prelate writes that Honolulu suggests a far better way to keep the peace.

"No one can touch there even for ten hours," he writes, "without experiencing the wonderful spirit of love and tolerance. The very cry of 'Aloha,' which greets you on arrival, and the garlands hung around your neck indicate the spirit of the place, inherited, I think, from the joyous nature of the Hawaiians reinforced by a Christian background."

After noting that 300,000 people, though representing more than a dozen nationalities, live together harmoniously in Hawaii, the Bishop writes:

"If something of this spirit could be conveyed to the world at large it might make 'peace on earth' less of a mockery than it sometimes sounds in Christmas messages."

He then tells how a Japanese pupil at a Honolulu high school won a prize with an essay on "My Ideal of Character," in which, after depicting the simplicity, cheerfulness and unselfishness which constituted his ideal, he wrote:

"Christ of Calvary was such a character. Insignificant though I am I can detect no spot in His character. Into the family circle He brings a spirit of satisfaction, happiness and love. Into the community He brings a spirit of philanthropy. He is the ideal of the nation. Before Him class distinctions all vanish away and He becomes the ideal of the world. He is my ideal character."

On which the Bishop comments:

"It was said of old that 'a little child shall lead them' and if the great nations which bound the Pacific can enter into the spirit of that Japanese boy, it is impossible but that some solution, other than the solution of force, will be found."

END ARGENTINE MEAT WAR.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The three principal antagonists in the Argentine "meat war" have made a settlement regarding the percentages of English trade which, as importers, they are to take.

The firms are Armour & Co., Swift & Co., and the English firm of Vestey Brothers.

The Smithfield and Argentine Meat Company, with several smaller firms, is still holding out for a bigger percentage than that which has been offered to it, but while keen competition will doubtless be continued, though on a lesser scale, it is stated that the present agreement will involve the greater part of the interests concerned.

The fight has been in progress about two years and has cost millions of pounds. In its keenest phases it was responsible for reducing prices of South American cost in the London market to extraordinarily low levels.

Vestey Brothers, who control the Union Cold Storage Company, have continued to expand their South American plan and the great new "frigorifico" at South Dock in Buenos Aires began work on Monday. The firm, consequently, now has large reserve facilities for supplying meat to the European market, and probably will embark on a scheme for a corresponding development on this side of the Atlantic.

It is not thought that there will be serious changes in the price of meat owing to the settlement reached by the big importing firms and, even if the whole meat war ends in the near future, as is hopped for, there will probably still be a margin of supply over demand.

PRESIDENT OF PERU OPPOSES TACNA PLAN

Leguia, in Message to La Nacion, Objects to Sale of Provinces, Proposed by Kellogg.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 4 (AP).—An intimation that Peru will refuse to accept Secretary Kellogg's proposal in the Tacna-Arica controversy, is seen in a New Year's message from President Leguia, published prominently by La Nacion.

Secretary Kellogg proposed that Peru and Chile end their dispute over the sovereignty of the Provinces by ceding them to Bolivia. The Peruvian President's message to La Nacion says:

"I hope that this year of 1927 will bring the so much desired solution, although it appears yet very far away.

"I say this because the ideal formula destined to settle this serious matter, maintaining peace in America, is not that formula of convenience which proposes to substitute for money the claims of right, but another one which should be more in conformity with the spirit of our times and the mentality of our race, which subordinates the petty commercial ambitions to the superior ideals of justice and honor."

HITS HEARST'S PEACE MOVE.

Lord Cecil Calls League Criticism Never Less Deserved.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Lord Cecil, the permanent British representative on the Council of the League of Nations, replied to W. R. Hearst's peace manifesto in an address before the Association of Headmasters today.

There never was a charge, said Lord Cecil, less deserved than that made by Mr. Hearst regarding the League's alleged ineffectiveness and impracticability. All sorts of things might be thought of the League, but it had to be admitted that it had achieved an immense amount of success in the furtherance of its objects of international cooperation and international peace.

Mr. Hearst proposed a league of English-speaking peoples. What he meant, said Lord Cecil, was not clear, but that so bitter an opponent of the League should have thought it necessary to propose an alternative scheme to satisfy the popular and passionate demand for some alternative to war was a great testimony to the necessity for a league.

CHINESE MOB SEIZES HANKOW CONCESSION

violence and induce the crowd to capture the concessions, which, they declared, since Jan. 1 had been taken back by the Nationalist Government. They also maintained that a member of their Political Bureau was killed and another Chinese was seriously wounded and many were injured in yesterday's melée.

The Chinese held a mass meeting this morning, demanding revenge "for British insults" and deciding to disarm the naval landing parties and the gunboats and capture the concessions forthwith.

Chinese officials this morning issued a proclamation concerning the butchery of our blood brothers by the British marines."

The naval contingent is receiving the highest praise for the magnificent restraint displayed in facing the frenzied mob yesterday for four hours and holding back thousands of infuriated men without firing a shot. The injured marines in the hospital are out of danger.

It is reported that Marshal Wu Pei-fu's troops have defeated the forces of Liu Ling at a place 140 miles north of Hankow. The report is somewhat confirmed by the hurried movement of the Southerners. The Seventh and Eighth Armies have been moved from Hankow northward to hold up the reported rush.

The Roman Catholic Bishop, telegraphing from Nanchang last night, reported that his premises had been commandeered by uniformed men, that missionaries were in hiding and churches had been desecrated by the holding of theatricals.

American Forces Moved Up.

HANKOW, Jan. 4 (AP).—The British concession here, scene yesterday of a violent anti-foreign demonstration, was overrun tonight with thousands of Chinese coolies who swarmed into the district during the afternoon after demolishing all barricades at the entrances.

The situation has reached a decidedly critical stage and is growing worse hourly. Chinese troops are guarding the home of the British Consul, General Herbert Coffee.

The Consulate and the British police station have been surrounded by mobs of coolies. Foreigners cannot venture into the streets without danger.

American forces are being brought from suburbs toward Hankow as a precautionary measure. They will not be used unless American lives and property are endangered.

A rumor that the concession had been taken over by the Chinese spread to the Chinese section of the city and brought additional crowds of curious. Finding the report untrue, they shouted, "Let's take it now!"

The concession is being policed by Chinese troops, the British marines, sailors and police having withdrawn to headquarters in compliance with a request by Chinese authorities that they be allowed to maintain order.

JUSTICE TO CHINA SOUGHT.

Treaty Revision Is Asked In House Resolution.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—A comprehensive and fresh consideration of the complicated Chinese question by the American Government was promised today by developments here.

A direct step to encourage such action was taken by one of the Administration leaders in the House, without, however, any consultation with the White House, when Representative Stephen G. Porter of Pennsylvania, Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, offered a resolution looking to a revision of all treaties between the United States and China.

Just before it was presented, the State Department announced that John V. A. MacMurray, the American Minister to China, had been directed to come to Washington for a conference with Secretary Kellogg on all phases of the Chinese questions.

At the same time indications were given that Secretary Kellogg might delay his reply to the recent British memorandum urging a more liberal treatment by the powers of China and particularly in the matter of surcharges, until after his consultations with Mr. MacMurray.

Warns of Treaties Being Denounced.

The Porter resolution specifically would request President Coolidge "to enter into negotiations with the Republic of China for the purpose of placing the treaties relating to Chinese tariff autonomy, extraterritoriality, and other matters, if any, in controversy between the Republic of China and the United States of America upon an equal and reciprocal basis."

Mr. Porter called attention to the rising tide of nationalism in China and pointed to the historic policy of the United States in leading the way for the establishment of that country on a sound basis. The situation in China, he recited, was becoming progressively worse and the possibility existed that she might herself denounce all the treaties, if intelligent and helpful cooperation for revision were not exerted.

The treaties, he asserted, restrain the sovereignty of China and to revise them would encourage China in its efforts to curb tendencies toward militarism born of misunderstandings and grievances against foreigners.

The resolution was referred to the Foreign Affairs Committee. In a statement regarding his resolution, Mr. Porter said that while the United States was "very much entangled" with other nations in affairs of the Orient, time had proved that nothing could be gained by acting in unison with other nations. He declared many felt that the present situation in China' "if not promptly dealt with upon a basis of justice and equity, will endanger the peace of the world."

To Wait on Conference With Envoy.

In the light of the State Department announcements, considerable doubt was evident that any action would be taken by the Administration on the Porter resolution, even should it be adopted by Congress, until after the arrival of Minister MacMurray in Washington, about the middle of February.

Mr. MacMurray is to sail on the steamship Cleveland, due in San Francisco Feb. 9. Reports that he would not return to China after his consultations in Washington were denied at the State Department. In his absence the legation will be in charge of the Counselor, Fedinand Mayor, as Chargé d'Affaires.

Whether the British memorandum contributed to the decision to send for Mr. MacMurray was not made clear, and it was not definitely stated that the reply to the communication would be delayed until after the consultations.

The fact remained, however, that the reply was first promised within a few days. Then it was announced as delayed for several days, and today it was said it might be delayed until late in February, as "there was no urgency" about transmitting it.

The Porter resolution would extend Secretary Kellogg's policy from one of waiting for China to acquire the strength to support guarantees to one of action that would assist China in achieving unity and responsibility as a nation.

Recalling the pledge of the United States under the Nine-Powers Treaty of the Washington Conference to respect the "territorial and administrative integrity of China" and provide opportunity to develop and maintain "an effective and stable government," the resolution declares that some of the treaties to which the United States is a party, by restraints upon the exercise of sovereign powers, render difficult "the obtaining of a republican form of government" and "the establishment of unified civil control over all the provinces."

The resolution then refers to the treaties which the Chinese charge deny to them the right to fix tariff policies in accordance with revenue, economic and industrial needs and prevent them from exercising judicial authority such as all other sovereign States enjoy over persons and property within their territories, and declares China deprived of that equality with other nations to which it is entitled.

Asserting that a nation-wide public opinion in China insists that China is being treated in an unequal and non-reciprocal manner by foreign powers, imposing restraints to promote their own interests, and pointing out that "international good-will and the preservation of peace can be secured only when nations deal justly with one another upon a basis of respect and mutuality of interest," the resolution adds:

"In order to maintain peace and concord among the nations of the Pacific and among those having substantial interests therein, and to prevent the 400,000,000 of the Chinese from abandoning their traditional doctrines of reason and justice for those of militarism, it is necessary that existing misunderstanding and grounds for grievance upon the part of the Chinese people should be removed."

For Our Independent Action.

Then declaring that "general experience has demonstrated the impossibility of obtaining adequate concerted action upon the part of the powers whose policies diverge," the resolution warns that as result the situation in China "has become progressively worse, so that there is now indication that China, impatient at further delay, will exercise her sovereign right to denounce, by unilateral action, the treaties which, in her opinion, so grievously oppress her."

Stating that it is in conformity with the traditional policy and practice of the United States to take action independent of that of other powers when it is deemed just and expedient, the resolution says:

"The United States of America should now free itself from entangling relations with other powers whose interests and policies are not identical with those of the United States, especially such as are concerned with the traffic in opium; the occupation of important and strategic ports of China; the exercise of political jurisdiction in connection with railway concessions, and, in general, the taking of measures which infringe upon China's sovereignty and administrative integrity."

Drafting of New Treaties Asked.

Finally, declaring that if the situation in China is not promptly dealt with upon a basis of justice and equity it will endanger the peace of the world, the resolution, as laid before the House, would provide, with the Senate concurring:

"That the President of the United States be, and he hereby is, respectfully requested forthwith to enter into negotiations with the duly accredited agents of the Government of China, authorized to speak for the entire people of China, with a view to the negotiation and the drafting of a treaty or of treaties between the United States of America and the Republic of China which shall take the place of the treaties now in force between the two countries, which provide for the exercise in China of American extraterritorial or jurisdictional rights or limit her full autonomy with reference to the levying of customs dues or other taxes, or of such other treaty provisions as may be found to be unequal or non-reciprocal in character, to the end that, henceforth, the treaty relations between the two countries shall be upon a wholly equal and reciprocal basis, and will be such as will in no way offend the sovereign dignity of either of the parties or place obstacles in the way of realization by either of them of their several national aspirations or the maintenance by them of their several legitimate domestic policies."

PILSUDSKI DROPS DEMANDS FOR ARMY

Polish Dictator Expresses Willingness to Forego Appropriation He Had Insisted Upon.

ZALESKI PLEDGES PEACE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, Jan. 4.—Marshal Pilsudski suddenly relinquished his claims to a third of all Government appropriations for army purposes when he appeared at the office of President Rataj of the lower house of the Diet this afternoon and agreed that if the Sejm did not want to vote the sum asked by the Government, approximately $8,000,000, for the army during the coming year there would be no objection.

The Marshal's unexplained abandonment of his demands for his favorite branch of the Government followed a new peace policy enunciated earlier in the day by Foreign Minister Zaleski, speaking before the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Sejm upon the intentions of Poland. Thus for the moment Poland has complied with the Western European example of European peace. However, M. Zaleski in his speech admitted that the country was not satisfactorily at peace with Russia and other neighbors.

Marshal Pilsudski indicated that the country could get along with its present condition of strength and failure to increase the pay of regular officers, whose constant demands for an increase of pay he has favored.

M. Zaleski, speaking before the Foreign Affairs Committee, said:

"There are two propositions facing the country—the revolution in Lithuania and the relations of Poland to Russia. Despite the provocative speeches of demagogues and others in Lithuania, Poland is determined to abstain from all activities against the peace of Europe. We have never intended to interfere in Lithuanian affairs, but we would like to put an end to that impossible situation created by Lithuanians who still maintain that the two countries are in a state of war."

Concerning Russian relations M. Zaleski made strong overtures toward the unwilling Soviets, declaring:

"We are ready to conclude an official political treaty with the Soviet Republics, giving guarantees as regards the Russian political frontiers. During the long period of our conversations Russia has insisted that we were forming a bloc against her; but we were only insisting that our guarantees be made broader and all-including. Despite M. Tchitcherin's assertions in Berlin, Poland has no intention of forming such a bloc, but we do not like to be too pressing about the treaty after his pronouncement."

Referring to the withdrawal of allied military control in Germany, M. Zaleski declared that to Poland's mind all the stipulations of the Versailles Treaty regarding German disarmament must be complied with, because such disarmament was the first step to general limitation or disarmament of the world.

Unfavorable political circles declare the Minister's pronouncement has a note of bitterness towards Lithuania, Germany and Russia and that Pilsudski's gesture of allowing a cut in the army budget is more or less a means of tentative national solidification in case an emergency arises, and that if the impending crisis passes he will take up anew the anti-Parliamentary war so long delayed.

BUDAPEST SUICIDES DOUBLED LAST YEAR

Police Report 3,644 Attempts in 1926 and 542 Fatal Cases—Vienna Figures Also High.

BUDAPEST, Jan. 4.—Suicides here more than doubled in 1926, as compared with the figures for 1925, which, in turn, were 50 per cent. greater than in 1924, according to police statistics issued today.

In 1926 there were 3,644 attempted suicides in Budapest and 542 fatal cases, against 1,514 attempts in 1925 with 232 fatalities.

New Year's Day started 1927 with 33 attempts and seven self-inflicted deaths. The ratio of one in seven succeeding in committing suicide has been maintained consistently in Budapest since the war.

VIENNA, Jan. 4.—Final suicide figures here for 1926 are not available, except for the attempts, which are 1,818.

In striking contrast to her sister city on the Danube, nearly all the attempts in Vienna were fatal, and the almost completed figures for 1926 exceed the 1925 total, which was 824.

Suicides both in Vienna and Budapest are generally ascribed to the effects of the financial and economic reconstruction of the two countries.

PROXY PRISONER DETECTED.

Got $75 to Go to German Jail—He and "Employer" Both in Toils Now.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—In order to support his aged mother and escape the rigors of prison life, a man named Smilewski recently paid a chance acquaintance $75 to serve a month's sentence imposed on him by a Judge. Two days before the proxy prisoner completed the jail term, however, the fraud was discovered and today the Judge sentenced each of them to two months. This time the cell doors closed before either could find a substitute.

On account of the overcrowded condition of the prison Smilewsky's original sentence could not be begun on the day the verdict was pronounced. When he was notified that his turn to enter the jail had arrived he approached a jobless man waiting at a labor bureau who expressed a willingness to have a place to eat and sleep for a month and eahn some money besides. The convicted man thereupon gave his deputy his identification papers, which passed a warden's inspection, and the workless man began the jail term.

AMERICANS OBTAIN DIVORCES IN PARIS

Decree Is Also Granted to Former French Consulate Official in New York.

PARIS, Jan. 4 (AP).—A divorce decree has been registered in favor of Marie Louise Menetre Saifati from David Saifati, who was formerly attached to the French Consulate in New York and whose address is given as 62 West Fifty-sixth Street. The grounds for the decree were not made public.

The Paris courts also granted divorce decrees to four American couples.

Robert Hallowell won a decree from Charlotte Pondyard Hallowell of 135 West Sixteenth Street, New York City. The couple were married in New York on April 11, 1916, and have no children. The decree was granted on the grounds of abandonment.

Thérèse Dimick Browning Leith obtained a decree from William George Fordyce Leith. The grounds were not stated. The couple were married in Pleasantville, N. Y., on June 2, 1917, and have two children.

To Virginia Judson Harvey was granted a divorce from Harry Blakely Harvey. They were married in New York City on July 17, 1917, and have one daughter. No details of the proceedings were made public.

Harriet Richards Tweedy Kelley obtained a decree from Solon Chester Kelley Jr. on grounds of abandonment. They have two daughters.

ATTLEBORO, Mass., Jan. 4 (AP).—Mrs. Harriet Richards Tweedy Kelley, who has been granted a divorce from Solon Chester Kelley Jr. in Paris, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Tweedy of North Attleboro.

Her marriage to Lieutenant Kelley took place in North Attleboro on Nov. 14, 1918, while the bridegroom was attached to Camp Jackson, preparing for overseas service. Lieutenant Kelley's home was in Stamford, Conn., where the couple lived after the war.

MANCHESTERS SETTLE CASE OUT OF COURT

Satisfactory Adjustment Is Made in the Divorce Suit, Which Was Brought in 1925.

NICE, Jan. 4 (AP).—A satisfactory settlement out of court has been reached by the Duke and Duchess of Manchester in their divorce case. The Duchess before her marriage was Miss Helena Zimmermann of Cincinnati.

The case was originally filed at Nice, and has now been declared "pigeon holed" by reason of the settlement.

The application for divorce was filed by the Duke against the Duchess in the Summer of 1925 at Nice, the Duke alleging desertion and incompatibility. His attorney explained at the time that an estrangement had existed since 1914.

The couple were married in 1900. In December, 1925, a settlement of the suit out of court was predicted by the Duke's attorney, who stated the outstanding difficulty was the fixation of the amount of alimony.

PLAN MORE KEMAL STATUES

Turks Sign Contract for Three With Italian Sculptor.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 4 (AP).—Four months ago Mohammedan traditions prohibiting representations of the human form were thrown into the discard when a statue of the Turkish President, Mustapha Kemal Pasha, was unveiled; now plans are announced for other statues of the President.

The Italian sculptor, Signor Canonica, has designed a new statue, which not only surpasses the one already erected in size and grandeur, but is also remarkable in that Turkish women are to be represented on it. It is to be placed in Taxim Square, in the centre of an artificial pond.

One side of the monument will depict the "Ghazi" in the uniform of a marshal, leading the army of revolution. The other will show him in civilian dress, commemorative of the proclamation of the Republic. The two small sides of the rectangular block will be devoted to Turkish women, the eastern side bearing the figure of a woman heavily veiled, the western, of a women whose veil has been lifted by the wind.

Signor Canonica also has signed contracts with the Cities of Angora and Smyrne for equestrian statues of Kemal. That of Smyrna will depict the "Ghazi" pointing toward the sea and will commemorate the march of the army of independence to the sea at the close of the Greco-Turkish War and the recapture of Smyrna.

ASKS SOVIET FOR SEED FUND

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Jan. 4.—The alarm recently expressed by the Economic Life over the reduction of the area of sown Winter wheat in the Provinces of Samara, Odessa and Kharkoff is confirmed today by a further report in the same journal indicating reductions in the Provinces of Archangel, the Urals, the Bashkir Republic, Pensa, Nijini-Novgorod and elsewhere.

The Economic Life demands that an immediate stimulus to sow be given to the peasants by the establishment of a seed fund, free or on easy credit. In the case of the Archangel and Ural Provinces the reduction is ascribed to bad weather, like Odessa; but here it is difficult to see why further supplies of seed are required, for if it is impossible to sow in Fall, the seed might just as well be kept till Spring.

It seems rather that the seed fund is equivalent to a premium or a subsidy to induce the peasants to plant more. This adds strength to the ominous impression given by the previous article in the Economic Life that the peasants are deliberately reducing he cultivated area of Russia because of dissatisfaction with the comparative prices of grain and manufactured goods.

SOVIET TO LIMIT DRINKING.

Commissars Will Subject Alcoholics to Severe Sobering Treatment.

MOSCOW, Jan. 4 (AP).—Vodka drinking in Russia has become so great an evil that the Commissariats of Health, Justice and the Interior are jointly drawing up severe measures to repress it.

They propose forcibly to seize chronic alcoholics whenever they are found intoxicated and to subject them to a drastic sobering treatment in hospitals.

Agitation for prohibition of vodka continues in many quarters, but is faced with the difficulty that the Government cannot afford to forego the $800,000,000 annual vodka revenues.

ROLLED STOCKINGS BANNED BY COLLEGE

GIRLS' PARENTS NOTIFIED

CONVENT STATION, N. J., Jan. 4 (AP).—Girls at the College of St. Elizabeth must refrain from rolling their stockings, wearing short skirts and using lipstick under pain of suspension or possible expulsion, Sister Marie José, Dean of the institution, informed parents of the students today in a letter setting forth the regulations, which, she declared, had been held in "almost universal disregard."

The regulations placed before the students last September, and called to the attention of the parents for the first time in the Dean's letter, were:

1. Stockings are not to be rolled.
2. The use of lipsticks is prohibited.
3. Skirts are not to be more than twelve or fifteen inches from the ground, depending upon the height of the girl. Skirts are to be pleated or otherwise made to afford ample fullness. One-piece dresses do not ordinarily meet these requirements.
4. Sleeveless dresses are not to be worn except at social affairs held in the evenings.

"The recent public pronouncements of his Holiness and members of the hierarchy on the subject of women's dress do not permit a distinctly Catholic institution to assume an attitude of indifference or condone fashions and practices thus specifically condemned," the letter read.

Established in 1899, the college has an enrollment of 300 students, many of whom are daughters of families of wealth and social prestige.

BATH, ME., GETS $1,500,000.

BATH, Me., Jan. 4 (AP).—The City of Bath will become a beneficiary to the extent of about $1,500,000 under the will of George P. Davenport, an investment banker, who died last week.

The residue of the estate, after payment of $116,000 in bequests, will be used for the establishment of the "Davenport Trust Fund," the interest of which is to be used for charitable, religious and educational purposes.

The value of the estate was estimated to be $1,718,000. The will and estimate were filed in Probate Court today.

BREWS BEER WITH A 'KICK'.

British Government Orders Stronger Beverage for Workingmen.

CARLISLE, Eng., Jan. 4 (AP).—Beer with a heavier "kick" is being made in the Government breweries for sale in the State inns during the remainder of the Winter.

The present beer is too mild for the Northern workingman and the forthcoming beer will have more "body" to it.

Managers of the inns have received orders to serve only a glass at a time, however, as the beer is said to be too strong to be sold in large quantities.

New Giant Zeppelin Offers Air Luxuries; Will Take 100 Across Ocean With Comfort

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Jan. 4.—Work started yesterday at Friedrichshaven on the construction of the frame of the giant airship at the Zeppelin factory destined for the transatlantic service between Spain and South America.

Special new features include an entire aluminum framework. Benzine and a suppressed special secret gas are employed, giving greater force. The tanks are underneath the airship, which will be divided into eight large compartments, with every modern luxury, the appointments resembling a miniature transatlantic liner, and carrying about a hundred passengers, with luggage, crew and mails.

It will be completed early in September, when the airship will make several trips around Europe before leaving for South America. Then weekly transatlantic service will be established.

The German constructors and engineers declare this aerial greyhound will be the best, speediest and most comfortable connection between the Old and New Continents.

SEE DANGER OF ESCAPE FROM DETENTION PENS

Prison Inspectors Warn of Conditions at Criminal Courts Building Here.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 4.—Warning of the danger of the escape of prisoners from the detention pens in the Criminal Courts Building in New York City was sounded in another series of reports issued by the State Commission of Prisons today.

Two rooms on floor M1, where many dangerous criminals are held awaiting trial in General Sessions, were singled out by the inspectors as cause for alarm.

"There is usually only one man on the outside in charge," the report stated. "These pens should be either closed off from access to the public or a guard stationed outside to prevent danger of attempting to help prisoners escape."

The detention pen for women held for General Sessions on felony charges also provoked adverse comment.

"The room is in charge of a matron who sits outside the pen in a room opening out into the corridors," the report said. "There is no steel door protection here as in the male quarters and it might be an easy thing for some one to walk in, hold her up and release prisoners.

In a report on the State Reformatory for Women at Bedford Hills, Westchester County, the suggestion was made that the women's prison at Auburn be removed and established at Bedford Hills. The housing of mentally deficient delinquents at the reformatory was called a mistake.

Among the training activities of the reformatory is a candy plant, built by private subscription. The inspectors predicted success for the business, since the candy would find a market in State, county and municipal institutions.

MACHINE GUNS BACK WARDEN'S DEFIANCE

DENVER, Jan. 4 (AP).—Intrenched in the State Penitentiary at Canon City with an arsenal which includes machine guns, Warden Thomas J. Tynan tonight defied Governor Clarence J. Morley of Colorado to enforce an executive order suspending him and appointing an acting warden.

Whether the machine guns formed a part of the warden's first line of defense against any attempted invasion of the prison by Sheriff Clifford R. Glasson of Fremont County, named by the Governor to serve in Tynan's place, was a matter of controversy.

Governor Morley declared he had reliable information that the warden had mounted a machine gun commanding the main entrance to the prison to reinforce his patrol of armed guards holding the padlocked gates to the institution. Warden Tynan admitted his arsenal included machine guns, but laughed at the Governor's statement about the machine gun at the prison entrance.

Tynan made it plain, however, that "nobody is going to take possession of this penitentiary except by legal means." He asserted the courts had ruled the Governor had no power to suspend a warden. The warden serves under the State Civil Service Commission. Charges of inefficiency, drunkenness, insubordination and inhuman treatment of convicts were brought against Tynan by Governor Morley.

BOYS IN MANHATTAN 30% OF CITY'S TOTAL

But Island Has 75% of the Welfare Agencies, Kiwanis Survey Shows.

NEW PROBLEM THE RESULT

Club's Review of 1926 Says Theodore Roosevelt Was Best Drawing Card as a Speaker.

Manhattan has 75 per cent. of the welfare agencies for boys, and only 30 per cent. of the boys, because of the recent great shift in the city's population, according to a survey made public last night by the Kiwanis Club at its annual meeting at the Hotel McAlpin.

The survey is said to be the first of its kind. It includes a boy "census," in which the population between 9 and 18 years of age is estimated at 549,450, and then proceeds to outline the decrease in delinquency and the decrease in religious education taking place simultaneously within the last few years.

The survey, gathered through 1926 by F. F. C. Rippon, former Secretary of the Department of Correction of New York, will be the basis for Kiwanis activities in boy welfare this year. It recommends that a dearth of welfare agencies in Kings, Queens, the Bronx, and Richmond be remedied; that the public school system be utilized more fully in those boroughs for recreation and playgrounds; that children's societies, similar to the ones in Manhattan and Brooklyn be formed in the other three boroughs; that public and private agencies extend the work of Summer camps; and that the Board of Education employ more vocational teachers and give to the youth of the city greater vocational guidance.

Of religious education it says that the total child population among Protestants here has risen 30 per cent. in fifteen years and the Sunday school registration has dropped 15 per cent.; that four out of five Catholic children show Sunday school or equivalent registration; four out of seven Protestant children, and four out of twenty-four Jewish children.

Reports upon the Kiwanis Club activities for 1926 revealed that at its luncheon forums, Theodore Roosevelt proved the best drawing card for attendance, with Judge James C. Cropsey second, and Senator Capper of Kansas, third.

The club installed Max Baumann, new President, in office.

BEAT AND ROB MOTHER.

Two Hurl Baby From Her Arms, Take $2,500 Savings and $100 More.

After she had drawn $2,500 from a bank yesterday afternoon and returned home, Mrs. Catherine Matuska of 413 East 145th Street was attacked by two men who threw her to the floor, grabbed her eight-weeks-old baby from her arms and threw it on the bed. The men then bound and gagged her and took the money from her bag and more than $100 from a bureau drawer.

When the woman's husband returned from work he found her unconscious. He summoned the police. They were unable to find any trace or the assailants. Mrs. Matuska told the police she had been saving the money for years and had taken it from the bank to place in a savings account for her child.

ATTORNEY IS FINED AT MURDER TRIAL

$100 PENALTY EACH TIME

Court and Lawyer Clash Over Questions to Talesmen When Latter Persists in Putting Them.

Judge Joseph F. Mulqueen, sitting in the second trial of Traffic Policeman James R. Stuart who is charged with the murder of Arthur Bright, a bartender, fined Stuart's attorney $100 twice yesterday while jurors were being chosen.

The lawyer, Edward J. Broderick, had just asked a talesman whether as a juror he would keep in mind, in passing judgment, testimony, should such be offered, that Bright when confronted by Stuart in the hospital just before his death had denied before witnesses that the policeman had done the shooting. The question was involved, in the Court's opinion, and when Broderick started to repeat it the Judge ordered him to stop. The lawyer continued and the fine was imposed for contempt of court.

A few minutes later Mr. Broderick and Judge Mulqueen clashed again. Broderick asked if a talesman knew two other lawyers who, it was declared, were law partners of Assistant District Attorney James T. Neary, the prosecutor. Once more the Court ordered the attorney to stop, but Broderick continued and again was fined $100.

"The only thing to be considered in this case," the Court told Mr. Broderick, "is the law and the facts. And so far as the law is concerned the Judge is absolute. There is no appeal from him during the trial—he is a czar. And the jurors are the sole judges of the facts."

Court was adjourned until this morning after six jurors had been chosen. Stuart was tried on the same charge, first degree murder, before Judge Mulqueen last November. The jury disagreed. The bartender was shot through the heart in his place at 194 Eighth Avenue on April 3 last. Stuart was arrested several hours later in his home by detectives who said they found him asleep in his uniform on the floor.

'SANTA' ADMITS ROBBERY.

Arkansas Man Caught With Brother-in-Law Through Free Spending.

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark., Jan. 4 (AP).—W. H. Eustice, Sheriff, announced today that Monty Douglas and John Nolan, brothers-in-law, under arrest at Heavener, Okla., had admitted that they were the men who entered the Citizens' Bank at Pottsville, Ark., on Dec. 18, one wearing a Santa Claus mask, and, after wishing the bank cashier a "Merry Christmas," held up the bank and escaped with nearly $4,000. Harry Gray, another brother-in-law also arrested, was exonerated by the two men.

Sunday Movie Brings $3.60 Fine.

Special to The New York Times.

WOODBRIDGE, N. J., Jan. 4.—Nathan Marchs, manager of the Woodbridge Theatre, was fined $3.60 by Recorder Bernard Vogel tonight for violating the State's blue laws by showing moving pictures in his theatre last Sunday. The Recorder warned that if the offense was repeated he would be more severe.

CAUGHT, ADMITS HOLD-UPS.

Thug Is Captured in Chase After Hitting Girl and Taking Purse.

Aristide Granatelli was arrested after a chase by a civilian when he beat Esther Heller over the head and stole her pocketbook yesterday morning, and before midnight last night policemen personally directed by Commissioner McLaughlin and Inspector Coughlin had wrung from him confession of between fifteen and twenty hold-ups, had him identified by the victims of several, and had brought to the station three women and two men, the identity of all of whom was concealed by the detectives.

The most important hold-up to which Granatelli is alleged to have confessed was that in which an eleven-thousand-dollar payroll of the Reuben H. Donnelly Corporation was taken. He also is said to have confessed to the hold-up recently of Long's hat store and East Fifty-first Street, and the proprietor of that store positively identified Granatelli last night. Granatelli is said to have implicated more than one companion, and it is believed that the two men taken to the East Sixty-seventh Street Police Station last night were the companions implicated.

Granatelli and another man approached Miss Heller as she entered the building at 218 East Eighty-sixth Street, where she is employed. Her screams as she was struck attracted a crowd, and the two men grabbed her handbag and fled. Frank Schmidt, a chauffeur, led the pursuers after Granatelli and captured him when he took refuge in a barber shop on Eighty-fifth Street.

Granatelli gave his address as 1,391 Franklin Avenue, the Bronx. Hector Granatelli of the same address was sentenced to from twenty to forty years in Sing Sing for holding up a milk wagon in Brooklyn last June.

HELD AS 'CELLULOID THIEF.'

Youth Caught in Jersey City Accused of Bronx Burglaries.

A young man wearing a corset was held by the police of Jersey City yesterday pending investigation of charges that he is the "celluloid burglar" who has robbed eight apartments in the Bronx. According to the police he admitted robberies in Baltimore and Chicago. His only burglary tool, they said, was a six-inch strip of celluloid which he slipped between doors and doorcasings to manipulate the latch.

The prisoner gave his name as Harry Nichols and his address as 104 West Seventy-first Street, New York. When he was searched he was found to be wearing a corset. According to the police he said he had been wounded in the kidney several years ago by a policeman in Montreal and had had to wear the stays since.

LEOPOLD AND LOEB IN COURT

JOLIET, Ill., Jan. 4 (AP).—Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb, slayers of Bobby Franks, were brought into court here today from the State prison and identified as defendants in a suit for $100,000 brought by Charles Ream, Chicago taxicab driver, who charges they kidnapped and mutilated him in November, 1923.

Neither of the slayers now serving life sentences seemed awed with the proceedings, but they appeared to enjoy the opportunity to visit with friends and attorneys. It was Loeb's first appearance outside the prison in two years. Early today habeas corpus proceedings were authorized for their appearance here.

Three Held in Mail Box Pilfering.

Charged with having systematically robbed mail boxes in apartment houses in the St. Marks district of Brooklyn for more than two months, three youths were held in $5,000 bail yesterday by Commissioner Henry S. Rasquin in the Federal Building in that borough for examination Jan. 18. The prisoners gave their names as Rubin Silberberg, 20 years old, a chauffeur, of 632 East Eleventh Street, Manhattan; Harry Sadler, 21, a painter, of 126 Lee Avenue, Brooklyn, and Thomas McCawley, 19, a clerk, of 610 St. John's Place, Brooklyn.

SON-IN-LAW SLEW TO ROB, POLICE THINK

I will send you some writing paper. God bless you, and don't worry about me; I am all right.

Promises to Get Lawyer.

We had to stay at the hotel last night but I am going home now. They treated us very good. If there is anything you want, let us know. Now be sure you tell them you done it to save yourself. I love you more than ever now, and we are going to do the very best for you. You will have your own lawyer.

If you write to Billie [Webster's wife] tell her to come to see me. I would like to speak to her. Now write and tell me everything and eat good. I will send you money every week. Let me know if we can come to see you, but he just said we could come to see you every Sunday and Thursday. So be brave and things will be going better than you expect.

Tell Billie to bring the baby and stay and I will get a good bed. Goodbye, darling. Pa and I both love you.

MOTHER.

Webster was cheerful all day, saying he felt better because he had confessed. He sent word to his wife that he wanted to see her and the baby. "Someday," he wrote, "you will understand everything." He seemed disappointed when an answer came from Mrs. Bassett, saying that his wife did not want to see him and would not permit the baby to be brought to him.

Although Webster's confession said he wanted only to persuade his mother-in-law to readjust her attitude toward him, which the police said was caused by Webster's loss of $1,000 of Mrs. Gallaway's money in a Florida real estate venture, the police also believe he went there to ask her for money and was enraged by a refusal. They said they had learned that Mrs. Gallaway's purse was in plain view on a table when her daughters left the house, but after the murder it was found hidden. They believe she hid it on Webster's appearance.

Police Seek Missing Weapon.

The police have been busy all day collecting evidence against Webster, which must be presented in addition to the confession. They were not able to find the iron bar, a tire iron, which Webster said he threw into a vacant lot. A reward of $10 was offered to its finder. Dr. Benjamin Seaman, assisted by a physician from New York, completed an autopsy on the body of Mrs. Gallaway in the Hempstead Morgue and will turn over his findings to Mr. Edwards tomorrow.

District Attorney Edwards said Webster offered to confess after he had evaded answering his questions or giving what were clearly false answers until 2:35 o'clock this morning. Sergeant John Feeley of the Hempstead Police was alone with the prisoner then and was asked by Webster to bring in Mr. Edwards.

"He just bounced right out of it," said Mr. Edwards. "He has a superiority complex. He should have made a success as a salesman."

In the confession Webster said he telephoned Dr. Bassett, a veterinarian, from a cigar store near the house, telling him he was Mr. Osman of 120 Segal Street, Freeport, and needed attention immediately for a sick dog. He went then, he said, to Dr. Bassett's home at 61 Marvin Street, Hempstead, and Mrs. Gallaway opened the front door for him.

"I started my conversation by saying that I did not think she was giving me a square deal when she said that she would see that she separated my wife and I," the confession read.

"She arose from where she was seated and said she would sell everything she had to fight for a separation if I did not make good. Also she would not listen to my plea to go to Florida and start over again with my wife and baby. When I said 'wife and baby' she struck me with her left hand and told me to go, saying that she would tell my wife about her plans.

Got Iron Bar in Kitchen.

"She struck me again and then started to go up the stairs, saying that she would get Dr. Bassett's revolver. I then ran to the kitchen and picked up an iron bar about twelve inches long wrapped in brown wrapping paper and tied with a white piece of cord. I ran back to the stairs and she was on about the fourth step when I pulled her down and pushed her into the living room.

"She started at me again and this time bit my index finger of my left hand and with her left hand grabbed my collar. I then pushed her back and struck her over the head with the bar which I had in my left hand.

"She screamed rather loud and came back at me again. I struck her about four or five times more and she fell to the floor."

He told then of picking her up, placing her in a chair and dropping medicine bottles on the floor to make it seem as if "some dope fiend had committed the crime." He tried to clean his clothing, but failed and went away in an overcoat of Dr. Bassett, carrying his own overcoat and the iron bar. He dropped the bar in some marshland on the way to the bus station, he said, and went by bus to Jamaica. There he went by elevated train to his mother's house.

"When I got home I told my mother, who was alone in the house, what had taken place and asked her to dispose of my overcoat, muffler and gloves," he said. "I asked her to take them to the furnace and burn them, which she did. My trousers were also stained, so I changed to a fresh pair, also changing my socks and washing my shoes."

Arranged Alibi With Mother.

The murder was committed between 10:30 and 11 A. M., he said, and he reached his mother's at 12:50 P. M.

"Before leaving the house I told my mother to say that I had arrived home at 9:30 A. M. and that she burned my overcoat because she did not want me to go to Florida. This she promised, and we both went to Quincy Street and Broadway and bought an overcoat for $35."

Webster next said he bought a new hat in Manhattan and in the afternoon telephoned Dr. Bassett, who told him Mrs. Gallaway had been murdered. Then he went back to Hempstead for the second time that day and was arrested.

BOBBED HAIR SPLITS BEAUTY SPECIALISTS

The delegates to the Annual Beauty Shop Owners' Convention and Exhibition of 1927 were not entirely in accord when they opened their three-day session at the Waldorf yesterday. There are two distinct factions—the pro-bobs and the anti-bobs—and when any of the opposing groups get together at the convention there is sure to be a wordy battle.

As a result it is almost impossible to predict what the fashion for women will be. A few hours of questioning all comers, however, revealed the predominance of pro-bobs. That may have been a matter of chance, of course, but to the question, "Do you prefer long or short hair?" there were only two responses in favor of long tresses, while an overwhelming number favored shorn locks and gave their reasons.

"Short hair came in as a fad, became a fashion and is now a symbol of the trend of the times," said George Young of New York. "Women will never let their hair grow again. Short hair is convenient and sanitary and women like it."

"Short hair is becoming increasingly popular in the Middle West," said Mrs. M. B. McGavran of Kansas City. "Of course, the schoolgirl at the moment is showing an interest in long hair, but that is looked upon as a passing fancy. More older women are joining the ranks of the bobbed headed all the time."

"The present generation will never have long hair," said I. Leon of New York, expressing a more moderate view. "Those who have not yet bobbed their hair will do so. For evening wear the longer bob is more effective than the boyish cut."

Mrs. Ruth J. Maurer, head of the National School of Cosmeticians, led the anti-bobs. "Bobbed hair is passe," she told the convention. "The well-groomed woman is beginning to realize that a shorn head is not conductive to beauty. The 1927 beauty will have long hair, parted demurely in the centre and brought down over the ears in wide, soft waves. She will cosmetize herself skilfully and sparingly in make-up suitable to her type. Her finger nails must not be tinted a violent red, but the faintest shell pink. Her ears must be covered. Her eyebrows should be carefully arched in a natural looking line rather than tweezed to the shadow of a hair."

SUES WIFE, 82, FOR DIVORCE

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 4.—Mrs. Rachel Eiger of New York City, 82 years old, is being sued for divorce by Abraham Eiger, about 52. Neither party was present when their lawyers appeared before Vice Chancellor Robert H. Ingersoll today. Eiger asked a divorce on the ground of desertion, setting forth that they were married in 1896 and that his wife left him in 1910.

The petition said there were "several children of the marriage and that all are of age with the exception of William, 18, and Julius, 16, who are now making their home with their mother."

Counsel for Mrs. Eiger asked leave to withdraw an answer she had filed counter-charging her husband with desertion. The lawyer said she could converse only in Jewish and was in utter fear of appearing in court. The Court regarded this in the light of collusion, saying the matter would be referred to the Chancellor at Trenton for the appointment of a special master to undertake a thorough inquiry.

GIVES $100,000 TO UNION.

Mrs. C. M. Lown Endows Professorship at Albany Medical College.

ALBANY, Jan. 4.—Chancellor Charles Alexander Richmond of Union University announced today a gift of $100,000 to the medical department of Union University, the Albany Medical College. The gift was made as a memorial to Dr. Cyrus Strong Merrill by his daughter, Mrs. James Monroe Lown, endowing the Professorship of Pathology in the Medical College.

Dr. Merrill, who was a native of Vermont, passed all of his active life in Albany. He was born in 1847, educated at Middlebury and Amherst colleges and graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1871. He was Professor of Diseases of the Eye and Ear at the Medical College of Union University from 1876 to 1914, and from 1876 to 1920 was attending eye and ear specialist at the Albany Hospital, the teaching institution of the college.

In addition to his life as a physician Dr. Merrill has a wide career in business. He was Vice President of the First National Bank of Albany, President of the Thompson Pulp and Paper Company of Schuylerville and President of the Ticonderoga Pulp and Paper Company of Ticonderoga. He was also Vice President and Treasurer of the American Carbide Company and the American Ferrolectric Corporation of Plattsburg and a director of the United Box Board and Paper Company. At his death, March 16 last, he was President of the Stuyvesant Home Company of New York.

26 MORE TEXAS PARDONS.

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 4.—Another flood of pardons for penitentiary convicts, twenty-six in number, flowed from the office of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson today. These, added to the twenty-seven which she issued late yesterday, make a total of fifty-three convicts who have received executive favors during the last two days.

The grand total of her clemency proclamations is now 3,020, of which approximately 800 are full pardons.

In the latest list are ten men who were serving sentences for murder. The category of crimes of the others included violating the liquor law, forgery, theft, burglary, highway robbery and other offenses.

In the proclamations freeing the convicts various reasons were assigned by the Governor for her action. In several cases she said that the convict was needed at home to support his family. In that of E. B. Moy of Houston, convicted of murder and sentenced to five to ninety-nine years' imprisonment, the notation is made by Governor Ferguson that the man "is a good blacksmith, doing as much work in the four years that he served as the average convict in fifteen years."

PHONE OVER OCEAN IN SERVICE FRIDAY

set, but the officials hope after a few weeks that calls may be made both day and night.

Seek to Insure Secrecy.

Meanwhile experts are working on plans to insure absolute secrecy in the transocean conversations, but they hold out no promise, however, that this can be accomplished inside of several months at least.

"We are well aware," one official told The Daily Mail, "that the service for some little time will be only semi-secret and that, if a person cares to go to the trouble and expense of fixing the necessary apparatus, he will be able to 'tap' messages. We very much doubt, however, whether he would be able to overhear two-way conversations."

This official advocated the use of code names and avoidance of repetition of what is said by the party at the other end.

VIENNA, Jan. 4.—The possibility that the London-New York telephone service may develop in the near future into direct Vienna to New York communication was broached here at the opening today of the Austro-German trunk cable connecting the local long distance system not only with Germany but with London and with 6,000 miles of Western European trunk lines. The new cable runs from Vienna to Nuremberg, greatly improving the previous telephone connections between the two countries. The service was inaugurated with an exchange of greetings between Presidents Hindenburg and Hainisch and Chancellors Marx and Seipel. The work is being pushed with the aid of a League of Nations loan, extending the new trunk line from Vienna to Budapest, whence it will be connected with the Balkans. It is expected this soon will be ready, making Vienna the telephone centre of Central and Southeastern Europe.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—French aviation experts are keenly interested in the latest efforts of Senor de la Cierva, Spanish inventor of the autogyroscope, who is completing a new and improved machine of the same type which will be tested within the next three weeks. The machine has been constructed expressly for rotating wing flight.

Among the changes incorporated is a smaller undercarriage having four wheels, the front pair being braked. The shape of the blades, which cause the autogyroscope to rise vertically, has been changed and the inclination of the "windmill" shaft can be altered in flight.

The plane carries two passengers and has dual controls. There will be a long series of tests with various shapes of wings. The engine is 230 horsepower.

PINCHOT DENOUNCES MELLON MACHINE

BLAMES MONEYED INTERESTS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 4.—With his term ending on Jan. 18, when he will be succeeded by John S. Fisher, Republican, Governor Pinchot, in his last message to the Legislature, which convened at noon today, condemned political gangsters, vote thievery and the Pennsylvania way of disfranchising honest voters.

Andrew S. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury and titular head of the State organization, was selected specifically as the mark for some of the Governor's hot shot.

The message read in part:

"The gangster as I have learned to know him depends for his success on four things: The influence of the higher-ups, the groundless fear he often inspires, money and cheating. Take these from him and he has nothing left. In a straight game he is lost from the start. And he would be lost in any case except for the failure of the majority of the decent citizens of the State to exercise their power through the ballot box.

"Gang control in town, county or State is possible only because so-called good citizens lie down. First of all, gang control is minority control. Next it means that the taxpayers do not get what they pay for. The gang spends money out of the taxpayers' pockets freely for private and political ends. And not only are the taxpayers thus cheated and robbed, but what money actually does go to public purposes is ignorantly, stupidly and wastefully spent. Gang control is a system under which the taxpayer is the goat at every turn in the road. And the money loss is the smallest part of it.

Sees Pennsylvania Dishonored.

"The special interests which buy votes with excessive expenditures of campaign funds, and the politicians who steal votes in elections, have combined to bring upon Pennsylvania a dishonor which will take years to live down. I refused to support Mr. Vare in the election on the sound and proper ground that his nomination was partly bought and partly stolen, and I have no doubt that he deserves to be and will be excluded from the Senate. But whether he is or not, the mere fact that a Senator-elect from Pennsylvania is in danger of losing his seat because of scandalous expenditures in the primary and notorious cheating in the election is a bitter disgrace to this Commonwealth, and is so regarded not only by good citizens of Pennsylvania but throughout the nation.

"For many years the politics of this State has been run as a part of the business of certain great moneyed interests. These interests invest in politics as they do in mills or mines or banks, and for the same purpose—to make money. But instead of property they buy men and votes, favors and legislation.

"What these interests buy is non-interference, tax exemption, extortionate rates allowed public utilities and other special privileges for themselves at the expense of the people. They give the orders and the men who take the orders are the political bosses whose names we see in the papers every day.

"To operate successfully, every machine, at least in cities, must have behind it two different kinds of people. First of all, it must have a body of politicians able and willing to deliver, for value received, the control of government, the unrighteous favors, and the unfair protection for the sake of which the magnates are in politics. Politicians able and willing to do these things must be corrupt.

Attacks Two Machines.

"Hence any such machine must include a body of the lowest politicians, such for example as the Mellon machine in Pittsburgh and the Mitten machine in Philadelphia actually do control—men who depend for their living and their power on liquor, crime and vice. These are the men the magnates buy with valuable considerations, and from time to time protect against the revolt of honest citizens who would otherwise destroy them.

"This is one wing of the city machine. The other consists of the respectable element. It is made up partly of the men who are so tied in with the business organization of the magnates that they profit from the existence of the machine; partly of business men who are held in fear because of their loans and credits; partly of the generally decent citizens (of whom there are many) who follow the magnates because they assume that if a man is rich enough he can do no wrong; partly of persons who cannot resist the craving to stand well with those in power, and partly of such of the ostensibly respectable elements of the community as are willing (in Pittsburgh, for example) to shut their eyes and make common cause with gangsters, vote thieves, dive keepers, criminals and harlots, because of the social and financial eminence of the Mellon name.

"In city after city, county after county and State after State these double teams of the actual worst and the theoretical best put and keep the men behind the bosses in political power. For such reasons, and with such support, the machines of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, and many another spread their blackhawk-like shadows over the community, borne on the two wings of eminent respectability and organized crime. And their purpose, like that of hawks, is to prey on those who are without protection.

Dry Law Called Enforceable.

Attached to the message was a confidential report made to the Governor by Major William B. Wright Jr., in which, after detailing successful steps taken to enforce the prohibition law in "the wettest State in America," he said:

"The enforcement work of the past three years outlined in this report, except that done by the State police and the preliminary planning carried on through your special Executive fund, was made possible through the money raised by the President, officers and members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Pennsylvania."

This shows, he added, "that the Eighteenth Amendment and State and national laws for carrying it out can be enforced and their violation reduced to the minimum, when law enforcement officials cooperate together and do their duty honestly, fearlessly, enthusiastically, regardless of all political influence, and without fear or favor."

Election Inquiry Ordered.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 4 (AP).—A Grand Jury investigation of alleged irregularities at the November election in Allegheny County, beginning Jan. 10, was ordered by Judge John A. Evans in Criminal Court today.

The action was taken on petition of District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, who charged that frauds had been committed in the election and asked that a special session of the Grand Jury be called to fix responsibility.

GARMENT MEN SHUN MOSCOW CONGRESS

BUT IS READY TO GIVE AID

More Defections Are Reported From Hyman Followers—One of His Committeemen Is Arrested.

The General Executive Board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union refused yesterday an invitation to attend the eighth congress of the Needle Trades Workers' Union at Moscow because of the latter's affiliation with the Red Trade Union International and the Communist International.

"Our International will not take part in your Congress," said President Morris Sigman, in his reply on behalf of the Executive Board, "for the reason that your union is affiliated with and is a close part of the Red Trade Union International, which, in turn, is affiliated with the Communist International, a political organization that has, for several years past, been waging a campaign of malice, calumny and destruction against our International Union, through its American subsidiary organizations, and has nearly succeeded in destroying some of our strongest unions in New York City."

Isidore Moskowitz of 712 Fox Street, the Bronx, Vice Chairman of the deposed Joint Board's Picket Committee, was arrested yesterday in the office of the Joint Board, Lexington Avenue and Twenty-fifth Street, and locked in the West Thirtieth Street Station, charged with feloniously assaulting Louis Katz, a cloakmaker, of 1,037 Hoe Avenue, the Bronx.

Louis Hyman, heading the deposed Joint Board, asserted that Moskowitz at the time of the assault was in the board's office, and that the assault was the work of men posing as representatives of the board.

Defection of some Left Wing and Communist officers of Mr. Hyman's organization were reported yesterday. Resignations of Saul Miller and Abraham Goldberg, executive board members of Local 9, was announced. Eva Pasha, A. Siegel and J. Goldstein, officials of Local 3, declined nominations for offices.

A dozen men armed with axe handles and similar weapons entered the dress manufacturing establishment of Ernest Burg, at 519 Eighth Avenue yesterday afternoon, shut off the electric power and spread confusion among the employes. Patrolman Connell of the West Thirtieth Street station arrested on disorderly conduct charges four men who described themselves as pressers.

Fines collected in the Long Island City Magistrate's Court during 1926 exceeded those for 1925 by more than $22,000, according to Clerk William McGee. In 1925 $30,182 was collected; in 1926, $52,653. Fewer suspended sentences were a factor in raising the total. Altogether 7,715 cases were heard in the court in 1926, 222 more than in 1925.

WARBURG EXAMINED IN SUIT FOR $7,700

FOREIGN LOAN DATA BARRED

Crowded Calendar May Defer Trial for Two Years—Banker Is Sailing for World Cruise.

Felix M. Warburg, a member of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., underwent examination yesterday in the Supreme Court in advance of the trial of the suit brought against him by Walter Hyams, a publicity man, who alleges that $7,770 is due him for work in connection with a luncheon to Lord and Lady Louis Mountbatten held in November, 1922, at the Bankers Club, 120 Broadway.

Mr. Hyams alleged the purpose of the luncheon was to give Kuhn, Loeb & Co. an opportunity, through contact with the Mountbattens, to further the relations of the bankers with the British Government. Mr. Warburg, in a successful plea to have the examination in advance of trial limited to exclude details of loans to foreign governments, called Mr. Hyams's suit "fantastic."

The examination yesterday in Part 2 of Special Term was conducted by Edward Carey Cohen of 1,440 Broadway, attorney for Hyams, who was present. Mr. Warburg was represented by Frederick H. Wood and his associate, John P. Phillips, of Cravath, Henderson & de Gersdorff of 52 William Street.

Mr. Warburg, in reply to questions, said he was not certain of his recognition of Mr. Hyams, whom, he said, he had met only at the luncheon. He said he had not known the source of his invitation to the luncheon, but that upon arrival Mr. Hyams had been pointed out to him as the host. Mr. Cohen asked who had indicated Mr. Hyams as host, and the banker said it was Everett C. Somers, who had been his private secretary from May, 1922, to December, 1924.

"Weren't you surprised to get an invitation from some one you had never met?" asked Mr. Cohen.

"No," said Mr. Warburg; "I was made aware by Lady Louis Mountbatten that they had accepted this invitation and Lady Mountbatten asked me, as she did not know any of the gentlemen, if I would go with her."

The banker said he had known Lady Mountbatten, formerly Lady Edwina Ashley, from her babyhood and that he had met Lord Mountbatten abroad during the period of the titled couple's engagement. Mr. Warburg testified that at the time of the luncheon Mr. Somers was acting as secretary to Lord Mountbatten, having been lent for that purpose.

"Did you engage the plaintiff," asked Mr. Cohen, "in any capacity in connection with that luncheon?"

"I surely did not," said Mr. Warburg, denying that he had hired Mr. Hyams to get publicity for the occasion or for his friendship with the British visitors.

"Did you engage the plaintiff to further your relations with the British Government?"

"I surely did not."

Several questions were objected to by Mr. Wood and the examination was adjourned until Supreme Court Justice Lydon could rule on the disputed questions. After he had done so a few other questions to the banker ended the examination. Trial of the action may not be reached for two years, owing to congested calendars. Mr. Warburg sails at midnight tomorrow for a world cruise on the Hamburg-American liner Resolute.

Mrs. McCormick Drops Fight for $13,000,000 To Please Her Father, John D. Rockefeller

Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, divorced wife of Harold F. McCormick, has abandoned a legal fight for $13,000,000 in order to please her father, the elder John D. Rockefeller, it was announced yesterday by Murray, Aldrich & Roberts, counsel for the Equitable Trust Company of New York, trustee for a trust fund established by Mr. Rockefeller for Mrs. McCormick in 1917.

The trust fund consisted of stock of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, and the amount at issue consisted of stock dividends declared by that company in 1920 and 1922. Under the trust agreement, the Equitable Trust Company is to pay Mrs. McCormick the income from the fund during her lifetime, after which it is to distribute the principal among her children—Fowler McCormick, Muriel McCormick and Mathilde McCormick Oder—and three Rockefeller charitable organizations—the Rockefeller Foundation, the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research and the General Education Board. The agreement provided that the trustee might decide whether stock dividends should be treated as capital or income.

Mrs. McCormick insisted that the stock dividends should be regarded as income, and should be paid to her at once. The trust company then filed an accounting action in the New York Supreme Court asking for a judicial determination whether the stock dividends should be credited to principal or income. About the same time Harold F. McCormick, as "next friend" of his infant granddaughter, Anita Oder, daughter of Mathilde McCormick Oder, brought suit in the United States District Court in Indiana against Mrs. McCormick demanding that the stock dividends be allocated to principal. The Indiana suit was dismissed for lack of jurisdiction, but Mr. McCormick took an appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals, where it is pending.

The Indiana suit will be dropped and the New York suit will soon be settled, according to a statement from the lawyers for the trust company, who applied yesterday to the Supreme Court here for permission to file a supplemental complaint saying that Mrs. McCormick has agreed to allocate all the stock dividends to principal.

NEW BRITISH CHAMPION.

National Harmonica Contest Will Be Held to Choose Him This Month.

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP).—To the long list of contests to fix champions in various "sports," the latest of which was ping-pong, the mouth organ championship will soon be added.

Police Constable George Haywood of Clapham recently beat J. Marshall of Osgar for the harmonica championship of Great Britain and Ireland, but as there were only two contestants, amateur and professional mouth organists have agitated for a proper competition.

Now the Mouth Organ League has decided to organize a contest on a national scale to be held in London at the end of January. A prominent musician has promised to act as judge.

JOINS WAR ON COMMUNISM.

Porters' Brotherhood Pledges Support to Trade Unions.

A. Philip Randolph, general organizer of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, 2,311 Seventh Avenue, in a letter yesterday to A. I. Shiplacoff, Chairman of the Committee for the Preservation of the Trade Union Movement, pledged the support of the negro porters to the committee's efforts to eradicate Communist in the trade unions.

"It is my hope that your vigorous and formidable attacks upon the destructive methods of the Communists, bent upon a rule-or-ruin policy at the behest of Moscow, will completely break their power and liberate the trade union movement from their fell clutches." He added that the porters, organized as the first national negro trade union in America, have 5,705 of the 10,400 porters of the United States on its rolls and that a preliminary hearing with the Mediation Board set up in the Watson-Parker law took place recently. The board will determine whether the brotherhood has the right to make agreements for the porters and maids on Pullman cars.

FIVE DEATHS FROM GAS.

Daughter Finds Mother Overcome in Corona—Another Woman Dies.

Mrs. Teresa George and John Kelly, a letter carrier, of 215 Forty-sixth Street, Corona, were found dead yesterday in Mrs. George's apartment at 407 West Fifty-fourth Street. They had been killed by gas that escaped from a heater in the kitchen. The bodies were discovered by Mrs. Louis Keleher, Mrs. George's daughter.

With gas escaping from two burners of a kitchen range and with Teddy, her poodle, lying near by, Anna Stockford, 62 years old, of 84 Downing Street was found dead on the floor in her apartment yesterday. The dog recovered.

Patrick Campbell, 40 years old, and James Martin, 60, were found dead last night in a furnished room they shared at 40 Downing Street. Patrolman Ward of the Charles Street Station forced an entrance to the room when the knocking of Mrs. Angelino Aste, janitress, failed to get a response. The flame of a gas light had been extinguished while the two slept.

'Half Past Five' Exhibited by Shatkin, Who Once Slept On Trains.

Fresh of sleep upon the straw cushions of the subway when he was a penniless youth of 16 and the "intimate knowledge of New York's underground" which Anatol Shatkin has shown in his painting, "Half Past Five," now on exhibition at the Art Centre Gallery, 6 East Fifty-sixth Street. "Half Past Five" is one of a group of Shatkin's paintings that constitute the first public exhibition of his art.

In "Half Past Five" shopgirls, homegoers from the matinées, business men and workmen are shown attempting to cram into one subway door as a brutish-looking guard does his best to close the entrance. The picture is one of a series of five canvases which will compose a metropolitan "cycle." It is contemporaneous, said Mr. Shatkin yesterday.

At the National Academy of Design, where he received his schooling, Mr. Shatkin won the Chalmers American scholarship. Lately he has been working steadily in a studio at 120 East Twenty-seventh Street. A friend of his, who was connected with the Art Centre, persuaded him to take part in a group exhibition. The others of the group are all famous artists, Bellor, Aniefeld and Mestrovic.

Shatkin says he hated the subway, although it has a certain amount of beauty.

Freed on Vow to Make Good Theft.

Because he promised to make restitution of the $14,000 he admitted embezzling from the Orsenigo Furniture Company of Long Island City, Arthur Kappell received a suspended sentence yesterday in the Queens County Court. Kappell had been employed by the company as a cashier. The shortage was discovered in April, and Kappell confessed that he had taken the money in small amounts between July, 1925, and March, 1926. He used the money, he said, to establish a brokerage business in Manhattan. When Kappell was arrested he turned over to his former employers $7,500 in partial restitution.

LONG DELAY IS SEEN ON BUS FRANCHISES

LATTER TWO ARE KEY MEN

They May Shift, While Controller Indicates He Will Not—Favor Awards on Borough Basis.

No prospect of an early award of bus franchises by the Board of Estimate appeared yesterday, when Controller Berry defined his position on the franchises as exactly opposite to that of Mayor Walker and no indication appeared that Borough Presidents Julius Miller of Manhattan and James J. Byrne of Brooklyn had changed their opposition to the award of a franchise for Manhattan, Brooklyn and Queens to the Equitable Coach Company, the applicant favored by the Mayor.

Although Mayor Walker won a victory over those three members of the board at the meeting on the Committee of the Whole on Monday in getting through a resolution for a vote on the franchise awards on Jan. 13, it did not look as though he would be able to get the votes necessary to award a franchise to the Equitable Company. Twelve of the sixteen votes in the board are required for an award.

The Present Line-up.

The present line-up is seven votes for the award to the Equitable Company, seven against it and two doubtful votes, which probably can be obtained for the award. The members of the board favoring the award to the Equitable Company are understood to be Mayor Walker with three votes, President McKee of the Board of Aldermen, with three votes, and Henry Bruckner, Borough President of the Bronx, with one vote. Those opposed to it are Controller Berry, with three votes, and Borough Presidents Miller and Byrne with two votes each. Maurice E. Connolly, Borough President of Queens, and James A. Lynch, Borough President of Richmond, with one vote each, are classed as doubtful. Mr. Lynch has no direct interest in the award as bus routes for his borough are being considered separately. Mr. Connolly is reported to have expressed himself as against the award of a franchise to the Equitable Company at the last "secret" conference of members of the board at the Commodore Hotel.

Possibility of an early award of a tri-borough franchise to the Equitable Company was said to depend entirely on the attitude of Messrs. Miller and Byrne, as Controller Berry indicated again yesterday that he was unalterably opposed to the grant. Mr. Miller, like Mayor Walker, is a member of Tammany, and Mr. Byrne is a brother-in-law of John H. McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic leader, but so far there has been no indication that the award had been made a party organization matter.

Want Awards at Same Time.

Although there is no particular objection on the part of those who oppose the grant to the Equitable Company to the award of the Bronx franchise to the Surface Transportation Corporation, a Third Avenue Railway subsidiary, Controller Berry said he would demand action on franchises for the four boroughs at the same time.

Messrs. Miller and Byrne are expected to stand with him. They both favor award of the franchises on a borough basis, and were said to have no intention of voting for a Bronx Borough franchise until the main question was decided. Advocates of the award to the Equitable Company, in their opinion, are in the position of arguing for a city-wide franchise, so far as Manhattan, Brooklyn and Queens are concerned, and for a borough franchise for the Bronx.

Controller Berry said again yesterday he was not in sympathy with the Mayor's desire to establish a comprehensive bus system with buses on already congested streets.

"I am not opposed to buses," General Berry said. "Of course, they are needed in certain sections of Brooklyn, the Bronx and Queens, and greatly needed. Crosstown routes in Manhattan also would be useful, but I am doubtful of the wisdom of establishing the proposed Manhattan longitudinal routes."

He expressed the opinion that bus routes would be valuable as feeders for other transit lines and would not give much relief to the congestion on the rapid transit lines.

General Berry added that he would insist upon knowing who was interested in the Equitable Company before he would vote to give it a franchise. J. G. White & Co. has guaranteed the company's application, but General Berry said he would demand to know the Equitable Company's real backers, irrespective of the responsibility of the company which had sponsored it.

BARS LONG ISLAND FIGURES.

Commissioner Godley Seeks Source of Railroad's Statistics.

Testimony of Edwin F. Wendt, consulting engineer and chief witness for the Long Island Railroad on its property retirement figures, was barred temporarily yesterday at the hearing on the railroad's application for a 20 per cent. increase in commutation rates before the Department of Public Service yesterday. Leon G. Godley of the Metropolitan Division, formerly the Transit Commission, who presided, ruled that Mr. Wendt must establish the source of his figures before they could be accepted.

On cross-examination by George H. Stover, assistant counsel of the Metropolitan Division, Mr. Wendt first said he had obtained all his figures on property retirement, which amounted to $3,000,000 since 1916, from the continuation report of the railroad to the Interstate Commerce Commission. He later said he had obtained some figures from the books of the company and some from the summation sheets of the continuation report.

Maurice Hotchner, counsel for the Association of Long Island Commuters, joined Mr. Stover in urging the rejection of Mr. Wendt's testimony.

SCHOOL'S ANNIVERSARY.

40th Year of Horace Mann Institution to Be Celebrated Jan. 22.

Plans for the celebration of the fortieth anniversary of Horace Mann School of Teachers College were discussed at a meeting of the parent teachers association of the school last night. Mrs. Harry Emerson Fosdick will head the anniversary committee.

Dr. R. G. Reynolds, Provost of Teachers College, in an address said the anniversary luncheon which will be held at the Hotel Astor on Jan. 22, was to be "a public recognition of forty years of pioneering in the field of modern education."

CALLS ELEVATED LINES A TRANSIT NECESSITY

Dahl Says if Subways Replaced Them City Would Have to Pay $22,750,000 a Year Deficit.

The Manhattan elevated lines are a necessary element in New York City's transit system, Gerhard M. Dahl, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation, declared yesterday in his tenth letter to the Board of Estimate and the Transit Commission.

Mr. Dahl declared that, if the city could raise the $625,000,000 that would be necessary to replace these elevated railroads with subways, a 10-cent fare would be required to cover the cost of carrying the city's investment and operating expenses and that, if only a 5-cent fare were charged, the city would have to pay $22,750,000 a year out of taxes to make up the deficit.

Mr. Dahl also asserted that if the Manhattan elevated lines were not under lease to the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, the Manhattan Railway Company, owner of the elevated lines, could charge a 10-cent fare, or at least a rate of fare to cover cost of service, adequate depreciation and a fair return on the value of the property.

"The termination of the existing lease and the separation of the Manhattan Railway Company from the Interborough also would result in cutting off all through service over all the elevated extensions constructed under the 1913 certificate contracts," Mr. Dahl said. "The Manhattan elevated system has 123.6 service track miles used in operation and it carries about 350,000,000 passengers a year. This is about one out of every five passengers carried on the rapid transit lines of Greater New York.

"The city's available financial resources will be extended to the limit to take care of needed additional rapid transit requirements, schools and other constant capital expenditures that go with the city's normal growth, civic and business expansion. As a consequence, the crying needs to be met for many years to come will require construction, not destruction, of transportation facilities that now efficiently and economically serve the public need."

With the Public Service Commission and the metropolitan division merged there, would, with the present personnel, be four out of seven members amenable to the Governor's wishes.

Another purpose of the Governor's was to relieve the metropolitan division of all responsibility in connection with the work of eliminating grade crossings in New York City, which work is now being done under joint metropolitan division and Board of Estimate auspices. The Governor regards this as a city function exclusively and is aware that the change would bring about economies aggregating some $750,000 annually through elimination of what virtually amounts to a duplication of engineering functions.

The Governor thus has in view no disturbance of the status quo as of January of this year where regulation of fares and transit operations in New York City is concerned, unless it be by transferring these functions from the State to some agency of the city government, like the Board of Estimate or the Board of Transportation. If this should be done, the metropolitan division would be free to devote its entire energies to the huge task for which primarily it was created, to bring coordination into transit operations through some form of unification.

Will Demand 3 New York Members.

Governor Smith is expected to insist that the Legislature appoint at least three Public Service Commissioners from New York City who would be exclusively concerned with its transit. Where, as in the present case, there are more than three New York City members, he would designate the three to whom that task would be allotted. At the present time the fourth New York City member is Chairman Prendergast.

In the memorandum he filed with the reorganization commission on Dec. 14, Governor Smith expressed the view that the division of powers between the Public Service Commission and the metropolitan division was unconstitutional. His views as "clarified," do not, from all appearances, affect the question of constitutionality. The same division would exist to render orders issued under the present plan open to litigation and of dubious validity, as he views the situation.

"The Governor's recommendation on transit is full of political dynamite and we decided to leave it alone for the present," said a Republican member of the Reorganization Commission after the meeting today. Talks with Republican leaders in the Legislature indicate that they intend to go slowly.

"Looks to me as if the Governor was playing a little game of poker across the table," one member of the commission said. "Well, if I have three aces, with a chance of drawing to the strength of my hand, why should I be for an immediate showdown? Until the Governor and the New York City Administration of his own party get together, there is no reason for us to do anything."

The commission approved bills drafted to carry out recommendations made by the Governor for the abolition of the Bureau of Interdepartmental Relations in his own office and of the State Racing Commission, the State Athletic Commission, the port wardens and the Hell Gate pilots in the new Department of State.

A bureau will be created in the Department of State, with one man at the head of it, to take over the functions of the Racing and Athletic Commissions. The bills approved by the commission will be introduced tomorrow, when the 1927 Legislature will convene at noon.

Soviet Plans Don-Volga Canal.

Three Portuguese stowaways were discovered three days out from New York by officers of the Munson liner Southern Cross which arrived in Hoboken yesterday. The officers were searching the vessel for contraband liquor or narcotics and found the men behind a newly painted panel in an unoccupied first-class stateroom. The Portuguese said they had bribed a steward to smuggle them aboard and this steward had provided them with food for eight days. They were turned over to the immigration authorities.

The Dean's house

In the early Roman days we read that the people went to the Dean's house—and in England, years ago good people went to the Dean for comfort and peace. And so through the ages the Dean's house has stood for all that is best—for comfort both in mind and body. So why not let the Dean House today solve some of your problems—And your own problems will seem much simpler after a good day's sport on the ice or tramping the hills. As you sit before the great open fireplace after a real dinner, that healthy tired feeling will be your only trouble.

HIGH COURT DENIES RHINELANDER PLEA

ONE DISSENTING OPINION

Lack of Unanimity Allows Appeal Which Will Be Taken—Woman's Failure to Testify Basis of Action.

The refusal of Supreme Court Justice Joseph Morschauser to grant an annulment to Leonard Kip Rhinelander of his marriage to his negro wife, Alice Jones Rhinelander, was upheld yesterday by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn, with only one dissenting voice, that of Justice Lazansky. It is probable that an appeal will be taken from the decision by Rhinelander's attorneys.

The decree of Justice Morschauser allowing $12,000 counsel fees and $300 a month alimony was also allowed. Had the decision of the Appellate Division been unanimous it would have been possible for the plaintiff's lawyers to take an appeal only with the consent of the Appellate Division, but the dissenting opinion makes it possible to appeal without permission.

"I am sure that an appeal will be made," said Judge Isaac N. Mills of counsel for Rhinelander, yesterday. "I shall certainly advise it."

The opinion of the Appellate Division was taken up almost entirely with the alleged error in the charge of the trial court concerning the failure of Mrs. Rhinelander to take the stand and deny her husband's allegations, although she was in court. Rhinelander's principal contention was that his wife had told him she was not of negro blood, and in other ways had led him to believe she was white, of Spanish descent, thus explaining her dusky skin. Rhinelander contended that inasmuch as she did not take the stand, his statements should have been accepted by the jury.

Judge Mills contended that Justice Morschauser had not charged the jury properly because he had not instructed that a presumption against Mrs. Rhinelander should be accepted by the jury because of her failure to testify. The trial judge's charge was general and did not refer to the particular statements testified to by Rhinelander, the Appellate Division said in its decision. To the exception by Justice Mills to the charge had called attention to that feature of the charge and referred to the rule applicable when a party to an action, though present, fails to explain or deny material statements, there is little doubt that the court would have applied it, says the Appellate Division.

"Furthermore, in the present case," says the opinion, "we do not consider that plaintiff was entitled to a charge of the court to the effect that plaintiff's statements upon the subject referred to must be taken as true because the defendant failed to deny such statements. There was no conclusive presumption that these statements had been in fact made by the defendant to the plaintiff, because the defendant did not deny that she made such statements.

"We think that, upon all the evidence in the case, the jury would have the right to reject plaintiff's testimony in this regard as untrue."

Justice Lazansky said in his dissenting opinion that it was an error for the court to charge the jury that no presumption grew out of the failure of the defendant to testify. The general language used by the court must have misled the jury, he said.

Mrs. Rhinelander Pleased.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Jan. 4.—Mrs. Alice Jones Rhinelander, at her home, 710 Pelham Road, through her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Jones, expressed satisfaction over the Appellate Division's denial of the appeal of her husband, Leonard Kip Rhinelander.

"It has been a long, hard waiting for the verdict, and if it can now be over our visit to our relatives in England during the next few months I do not believe that Alice could have stood up under the strain," said Mrs. Jones. "There has been so much published about her and about our family that is untrue. We hope that we can be allowed to continue life in our own quiet way."

Judge Samuel F. Duckworth of New Rochelle, attorney for Mrs. Rhinelander, said he believed the one dissenting vote would not materially affect the case if it should be taken to the Court of Appeals.

ADMITS CAUSING GAS BLAST

Owner of Home Wrecker in Explosion Which Hurt Twelve Is Held.

PASSAIC, N. J., Jan. 4.—Joseph Eagler, owner of the home at 40 De Witt Street, Garfield, which was completely wrecked in a gas explosion Sunday afternoon, was arrested this afternoon soon after his discharge from St. Mary's Hospital, where he was taken after the explosion, cut and burned. Late this afternoon he was taken to the Bergen County jail in Hackensack, for thirty days' observation.

Eagler, whose five sons and seven others were severely injured, has admitted to the Garfield police that early in the afternoon he detached a plug in the cellar of the home connecting with the gas main in the street, according to Captain Boyle.

"I did it, but don't know why," Captain Boyle said he had told him. Captain Boyle said that Mrs. Eagler would make the complaint against her husband, the specific charge not yet determined. The police say further that the explosion was caused when the escaping gas was ignited by a stove in the cellar. Two of the twelve injured men are still in the hospital. They are Policeman George Hoffman and Benjamin Sarvas.

MOSCOW, Jan. 4 (AP).—The Soviet Government has decided to begin work on a great $65,000,000 canal linking the Volga and the Don Rivers. The project would give an outlet from the Volga region to the Black Sea by way of the Don, permitting extensive exports of lumber and cheapening the transportation of enormous quantities of Volga grain hitherto moved by trains. American engineers will be invited to participate in the work.

EX-CONVICT ADMITS LUNDY ROBBERY

"Two-Gun Texas Bill" Maag Also Confesses He Held Up Insurance Broker in Taxi.

NOW FACES A LIFE TERM

William Maag, ex-convict, known to the police as "Two-Gun Texas Bill," is in the Queens County jail, Long Island City, awaiting action by the Grand Jury on a charge of assault and robbery. He was held without bail in Jamaica Police Court yesterday on complaint of Charles Gunthner, an insurance broker of 8,015 Eighty-fourth Street, Woodhaven.

Maag, who is 37 years old, and lives at 1,014 Willoughby Avenue, Brooklyn, was arrested late Monday night at the home of his mother at 1,621 Putman Avenue, Glendale, by Detectives Billhoff, Bergers and Ritstein. At the Richmond Hill station he was interrogated by Assistant District Attorney Frank Higgins, Captain of Detectives Graham and the arresting detectives. The officials said he signed a confession in which he admitted assaulting and robbing the insurance broker and also participating in the robbery of Lundy's Restaurant at Sheepshead Bay last October.

According to the police Maag has been convicted of two larceny crimes and if convicted of the Gunthner and Lundy robberies, will get a life imprisonment.

Maag's alleged confession related how he and other thugs, now in custody, drove to the Lundy restaurant on Oct. 19 and after kidnaping Fred Lundy, the owner, and his manager, and taking them to Maag's locked Lundy in a chicken coop, then returned to the restaurant with the manager and forced him to open the safe, from which the thieves got $1,700 in cash and checks.

In the Gunthner robbery Maag said he met the insurance broker at a home in Glendale on Dec. 12, and as they were leaving the house, he invited Gunthner to ride with him in a taxi. When they reached Dry Harbor Road and Myrtle Avenue, Glendale, he knocked Gunthner unconscious then robbed him of $20 and a stick-pin. As the taxi passed 106th Street and Myrtle Avenue, Richmond Hill, he threw his victim from the taxi into the snow. Maag told the detectives he had grown a mustache and had worn heavy rimmed glasses as a disguise.

HUGH GIBSON BACK FROM ARMS PARLEY

Says Technical Experts Were Heard as Preliminary to Conference in March.

3 PLANE CRASH VICTIMS HERE

Hugh Gibson, United States Minister to Switzerland, returned yesterday on the Cunard liner Berengaria. He was accompanied by Mrs. Gibson. Mr. Gibson is chief of the American delegation to the preparatory committee for the disarmament conference in Geneva, which has just completed a six-months' session. He will go at once to Washington to present his report to the President and to Secretary of State Kellogg.

Mr. Gibson said that the conference was devoted almost entirely to hearing technical experts on armament.

"I found it most interesting," he said. "All of the questions arising were in the abstract and so could be considered with dispassion. If it had been a matter of actual ships or actual military units, perhaps it would have been different."

According to Mr. Gibson, America's real interest in the conference will begin when it reconvenes in March. Then, he said, the issues would pass from the hands of the technical experts into those of the departments of Governments for final decision.

"Our part in the session is regarded in a friendly light," he said. "I believe it is understood we are doing all in our power to be helpful. Certainly we make it clear that we have no interests that can be menaced."

Asked how the program for ten new cruisers recommended by the President had been received abroad, he replied that the news had been printed just before he sailed and that he had not familiarized himself with the situation. "In Europe," he said, "just at present the facts of the case are swamped by the comments. Personally I believe that the cruiser question falls outside of the limits of the conference."

Joseph Montague Kenworthy, formerly a commander in the British Navy and now a Labor Member of Parliament, also arrived on the liner. He is the eldest son of Lord Strabolgi. He has come to join the European delegation of the United Palestine Appeal, which is headed by Dr. Chaim Weizmann, President of the World Zionist Organization.

"My interest in the Zionist movement is not a personal one as I am not a Jew," he said. "Great Britain took on the responsibility of the Palestine mandate and we have to see it through. It is our duty and we are doing it well. In Palestine today we have a small police force, a small air force and not a soldier in garrison. The land is in absolute peace. Across the border in the French mandate of Syria it is quite different. It is a mistake to accept the report that there is trouble in Palestine between the Arabs and the Jews. The only trouble is that which is made by professional politicians."

The Rev. Stanley Hazzard, his sister, Miss Marguerite Hazzard, and Lawrence Stone, a student, all of whom were passengers on the Lufbery-Paris plane which crashed on Aug. 15, killing four of the thirteen passengers, also arrived on the Berengaria. Mr. Hazzard is director of religious education for the Baptist churches of New York. He and his sister are still using crutches.

"Just before the plane crashed it seemed to me it was acting queerly," said Mr. Hazzard. "A fellow passenger, Miss Edna Bennett, the Egyptian actress, who had made sixty ascensions, remarked that she did not think we would land successfully. A few minutes later when the Egyptian shore was reached we took a sudden nose dive and landed in a bank. He said his injuries might take him home for life.

Other arrivals included Emin Chalib Arslan, Sir John and Lady Harrington, Sir Halford Mackinder and Mme. Ely-Ney, Berlin pianists.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Jan. 4.—Following the convening of the January Grand Jury yesterday, when Supreme Court Justice Heffernan charged it with the prosecution of gamblers and corrupt officials, Peter J. Finley, President of the Saratoga Springs Taxpayers' Association, wrote to John B. Smith, Saratoga's new District Attorney, today, charging that gambling in varied forms had been in progress here since the investigation of last August, and calling upon him to act.

"If I deem it necessary," Mr. Finley wrote, "I shall have no hesitancy in again approaching the Governor for relief."

He also asked the District Attorney if he intended to prosecute the Superintendent and other members of the Saratoga Springs Police Department who were condemned by Justice Heffernan in his report of the August investigation.

"My investigation, made at the behest of Governor Smith, was not of a criminal nature," said Justice Heffernan today, "but the conditions revealed were of such a nature as to prove that vice in many forms is rampant in Saratoga County and immediate action by the jury is demanded. Collusion between police officials and gamblers was clearly revealed. What action the Grand Jury will take I do not know but, I repeat, their duty is clear. The inquiry should be persistent and far-reaching. It should concern not only men now in office, but those who have held posts in the past."

District Attorney Smith said he would bring the Justice's remarks to the attention of the Grand Jury and would "be guided by its direction."

The new members will be assigned to membership on the committee of the council which has general supervision of the department of fine arts, of which General Charles H. Sherrill is Chairman.

INFRA-RED RAYS TO PICTURE VENUS

Chicago Scientists Hope to Learn if Life Is Possible on That Planet.

PRACTICAL TEST OF THE RAY

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—By the use of infra-red rays in a recently perfected photographic apparatus, scientists at the Yerkes Observatory in Wisconsin hope to obtain accurate views of the surface of the planet Venus, which is covered by dense clouds heretofore considered impenetrable.

Professor E. B. Frost, at the University of Chicago, said tonight that the best pictures of Mars had been made with the infra-red filter and that he believed it was possible to determine whether Venus had an atmosphere capable of supporting some form of life.

"Conditions in our own atmosphere have been unfavorable for photography for nearly eighteen months," he continued. "In spite of this we have been able to obtain good views of some of the planets, even in the daytime, by use of the long light waves. Our present work on Venus cannot be done at night as it is not visible."

Much of the credit for the university's recent strides in picturing astral bodies was given by Professor Frost to Professor Frank B. Ross, who left his position as chief theoretical expert for a photographic company to take up research work at the Observatory.

"The best views we have of Mars were taken at Flagstaff, Ariz., last Summer while he was in charge," said Professor Frost. "He used the infra-red filter. Ordinary photographs showed much less clearly, and it seems that the appearance of clouds on the surface of Mars is demonstrated."

Life is much more likely to exist on Venus than on Mars, in Professor Frost's opinion. It has a more even temperature he said.

"Venus is near the sun," he continued. "And if it were not for the heavy clouds the heat would be unbearable. If the atmosphere of this planet contains water and oxygen, it is possible that some form of living creature exists there."

As a practical test of the efficacy of the long infra-red rays photography may soon, during the World War, extend. he said. Professor Frost, when aircraft equipped with proper photographic apparatus using this feature found they could obtain good views even through cloudbanks.

URGES DOMINION DEFENSE.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 4 (AP).—Every self-governing British Dominion must take its full share of the cost of defense to the utmost of its ability to pay, or accept a position of inferiority in the empire, Premier Bruce of Australia declared today at a meeting of the Canadian Club.

National independence, he said, carried with it national responsibility. He insisted every Dominion must provide for its own defense and take part in protecting its seaboard trade.

Premier Bruce spoke of the recent Imperial Conference in London, at which he represented Australia. Nothing was done there, in his opinion, that was of detriment to the empire. Some of the ideas expressed were "unadulterated nonsense," but he hastened to add, the conference did not lay down a single principle that was not in existence before.

FORMER NANCY LEITER SUPPORTS HER BROTHER

Mrs. Campbell Says Appointment of Ware as Trustee Was for the Welfare of the Estate.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 (AP).—Details of the appointment of William J. Ware as a trustee of the estate of Levi Z. Leiter were related today by Mrs. Colin Campbell, formerly Nancy Leiter and widow of a British army officer, in the suit of her sister, the Countess of Suffolk, against her brother, Joseph Leiter. The Countess seeks to have her brother ousted as trustee.

"Were you given any reasons to believe that you and Joseph Leiter, constituting a majority of the trustees, had a legal right to elect Mr. Ware to succeed Seymour Morris as trustee, regardless of the wishes of Lady Suffolk?" asked John C. Black, Mrs. Campbell's attorney.

"Yes," replied Mrs. Campbell. "I was shown an opinion of Elmer Gately & Roland of Washington stating that a majority of the trustees have that legal right."

Her testimony was intended to show that the family approved generally of the manner in which Joseph Leiter had conducted the estate.

Asked why she favored the appointment of Mr. Ware instead of prominent Chicago men, Mrs. Campbell said: "I believed that the position was one that required a large part of the time of the trustee, due to the absence of my brother from this city for considerable periods, and all the gentlemen suggested were men of large interests and very busy."

Expenses of Joseph Leiter in connection with the administration of the estate were approved at a meeting of the trustees, Mrs. Campbell said. Some of the items suggested were "unadulterated nonsense," but he hastened to add, the conference did not lay down a single principle that was not in existence before.

Then the welfare of the estate is put to the test and the management as Mr. Ware sees it, Mrs. Campbell answered "Yes" to a question by Joseph Leiter's attorney.

"None whatever," replied Mrs. Campbell.

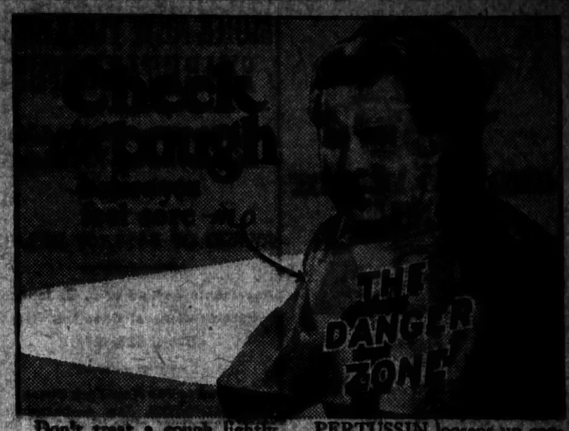
HELD AS SMUGGLER, WEEPS.

Sailor Who Served as Allied Spy in War Sent to Tombs.

Frans Tielemans, the Belgian seaman, who was arrested last Sunday on the steamship Zeeland of the Red Star Line, on a charge of attempting to smuggle into this port diamonds valued at $125,000, was held yesterday in $25,000 bail by United States Commissioner Cotter. The defendant could not produce the bail and was taken to the Tombs in tears.

Federal Prosecutor David B. Siegel told the Commissioner that the evidence had served as a link during the war and had been of much assistance to the French Government, and had helped many French and Belgian women to escape from Germany. Mr. Siegel did not tell these facts, however, to help the defendant escape punishment. He explained that there had been much smuggling by a well-organized ring which worked with another gang here whose business it was to dispose of the smuggled goods. He intimated that information concerning these gangs might be obtained from Tielemans.

To bear out this statement about organized gangs the Government also imagined Gerardo Manrique, a native of Equador, who had been arrested by the police in cooperation with customs agents. He was held in $4,000 bail on a charge that diamonds and jewelry and platinum and some loose stones had been found in his room in West seventy-seventh Street. Another suspect arrested with him, had not yet been arraigned.



Don't treat a cough lightly. Don't be foolish and say, "I'll get over it." No one knows better than the chronic sufferer what nasty toll Nature demands from those who neglect a cough.

No matter what causes it: exposure, colds or irritation from dust and smoking—a cough is a signal that the throat tissues are inflamed and may quickly become breeding places for myriads of germs that lurk in the mucus. If this infection spreads, serious consequences will result.

Get rid of that cough right now before it "settles" in the "danger zone". Take PERTUSSIN at once. It will safely relieve cough spasms and bring healing comfort to raw, inflamed throat.

PERTUSSIN loosens up congestion promptly, and by stimulating expectoration, it helps to rid you of sticky, germ-laden phlegm that clogs the air passages.

PERTUSSIN is a simple herbal remedy—pleasant to take, free from "dope", and has been prescribed by physicians for more than 30 years for almost every type of cough.

If your cough has already settled in the "danger zone", you should see your Doctor.

The Safe Cough Remedy

ORDINARY LATHER

COLGATE LATHER

THIS "small-bubble" lather has been developed to soften your beard with water. Water, science proves, is the only effective beard-softener. More water at the base of whiskers means a quicker, cleaner shave.

The moment Colgate lather forms on your beard, two things happen:

1. The soap in the lather breaks up and floats away the oil film that covers each hair.

2. With the oil film gone, millions of tiny, water-saturated bubbles bring and hold an abundance of water directly down to the base of the beard, right where the razor does its work.

Because your beard is properly softened at its base, your razor works easily and quickly. Every hair is cut close and clean. And your face remains cool and comfortable throughout the day.

A week's better shaves—FREE

Once you try this "small-bubble" lather, you will never go back to ordinary shaving methods. Prove it. Clip the coupon. We will send you a generous trial-size tube—free.

SOFTENS THE BEARD AT THE BASE

FERNCLIFF MAUSOLEUM AND CLOISTER

NON-SECTARIAN

ON THE summit of one of the towering hills of beautiful Westchester, will stand this greatest of all mausoleums—the expression of an exalted conception to fulfill a purpose of enduring and sacred duty.

Heretofore, only the wealthy could entomb their dead in a mausoleum or tomb. But now, the Ferncliff plan offers both the wealthy and people of moderate means a final resting-place much finer than private mausoleums with their many disadvantages, excessive cost and large upkeep.

Good Reasons why Ferncliff Mausoleum will Appeal to You

SINCE the beginning of the world it has been the recognized duty of man to reverence his dead — to give appropriate expression of his sincere affection and fidelity, by providing a suitable resting-place for them, according to the custom of the times.

Mausoleum entombment is in keeping with the progress of the times and is as sanitary as cremation and as sentimental as a churchyard. A mausoleum provides a beautiful resting-place and a lasting memorial for the dead. Here your departed loved ones will rest in permanent peace in an individual white marble tomb or crypt high above the ground, where neither water, damp nor mold can enter.

The mausoleum eliminates the horrors of the grave, making the ultimate end one of consolation and beauty. This edifice, so sacred in its memories, will never be desecrated as is often the case with cemeteries — for Ferncliff Mausoleum is endowed to provide for its perpetual upkeep under the laws of the State of New York.

It is the intention of the Directors and Trustees of Ferncliff Cemetery to spare no expense in making it a mausoleum park of such a magnitude of beauty as will be unique in the world's history, enriched with multi-crypt mausoleums and private tombs, obelisks, gardens and sculpture. The Mausoleum itself will be magnificent in architecture, constructed of granite, marble and bronze, as enduring as the everlasting hills that surround it.

You have the choice of just two things: the one typifying death in darkness, death in the depths, looking down, always down, into the grave; the other typifying death in light, death in sunshine and brightness, death in the hope of the resurrection.

SPECIAL terms of payment can be arranged, to meet all incomes.

IN the event of death before the completion of the mausoleum, the remains will be placed in our receiving vault, free of charge, until the mausoleum is completed.

MAKE your reservation now, as space is limited and being rapidly subscribed. Do not delay—act to-day.

WHY YOU SHOULD DRINK MORE TEA

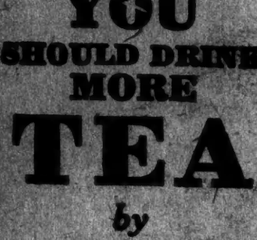
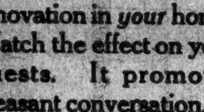
Sir Charles Higham

THERE is nothing quite so delicious or refreshing as a cup of good tea. It stimulates the brain as nothing else can do. Try afternoon tea as an innovation in your home. Watch the effect on your guests. It promotes pleasant conversation. It strengthens your friendships. The Afternoon Tea habit is now general throughout the civilized world.



How to make Tea

Be sure you use India Tea or a blend containing India Tea and make it in the correct way—as it is served in England. Use an earthenware teapot. Put into it one teaspoonful of India Tea for each cup of tea required. Be sure the water is poured into the teapot the moment it boils. Allow to stand for 5 minutes to infuse. Put a little milk or cream into each cup before serving the tea. It greatly improves the flavour. Then add sugar to taste.



Your retailer or store can supply you with India Tea or blends containing India Tea. He has no difficulty in getting it as practically every wholesale distributor of tea in this district supplies India Tea.

Be sure you use INDIA TEA

MORE NEW YORKERS SHARE TAX REFUND

AWARD OF $414,107 IN LIST

Represents Refund to C. E. Johnson Estate—General Chemical Gets Back $288,904.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Large and small taxpayers alike shared in proportion to the amounts of their income taxes, in the refunds announced to Congress recently by Secretary Mellon, covering principally the fiscal year 1926, but also including earlier years. An examination of the bulky volumes containing the lists shows that many more individuals and corporations received refunds in amounts less than $100 than received greater than that sum. Apparently, there were about 250,000 of the 287,000 taxpayers to whom refunds were made in the smaller amounts.

While New York City residents received most of the larger refunds, they are by no means concentrated there. Each State is represented in the lists. Thousands of firms and individuals were given refunds ranging from $1 to $5.

Refunds granted to persons and corporations in New York City, in addition to those already published, are:

Sheffield Farms completed its plant at Fulton Street and Nostrand Avenue, Brooklyn. This, the latest of the great Sheffield plants, was and is the largest milk pasteurizing and bottling plant in the world.

It has a daily capacity of 5,500 cans or 220,000 quarts of milk.

It operates two bottle washing machines that turn out immaculate containers at a rate of 440 per minute.

This plant has been the object of professional and scientific interest from every quarter of the civilized world. From Europe, from Asia, from South America and the Antipodes, men and missions come to study the construction and operation of this great plant.

The largest dairy company in England modeled its latest plant after the design of ours in Fulton Street. A genuine tribute when it is considered that they had everything else in the world to choose from.

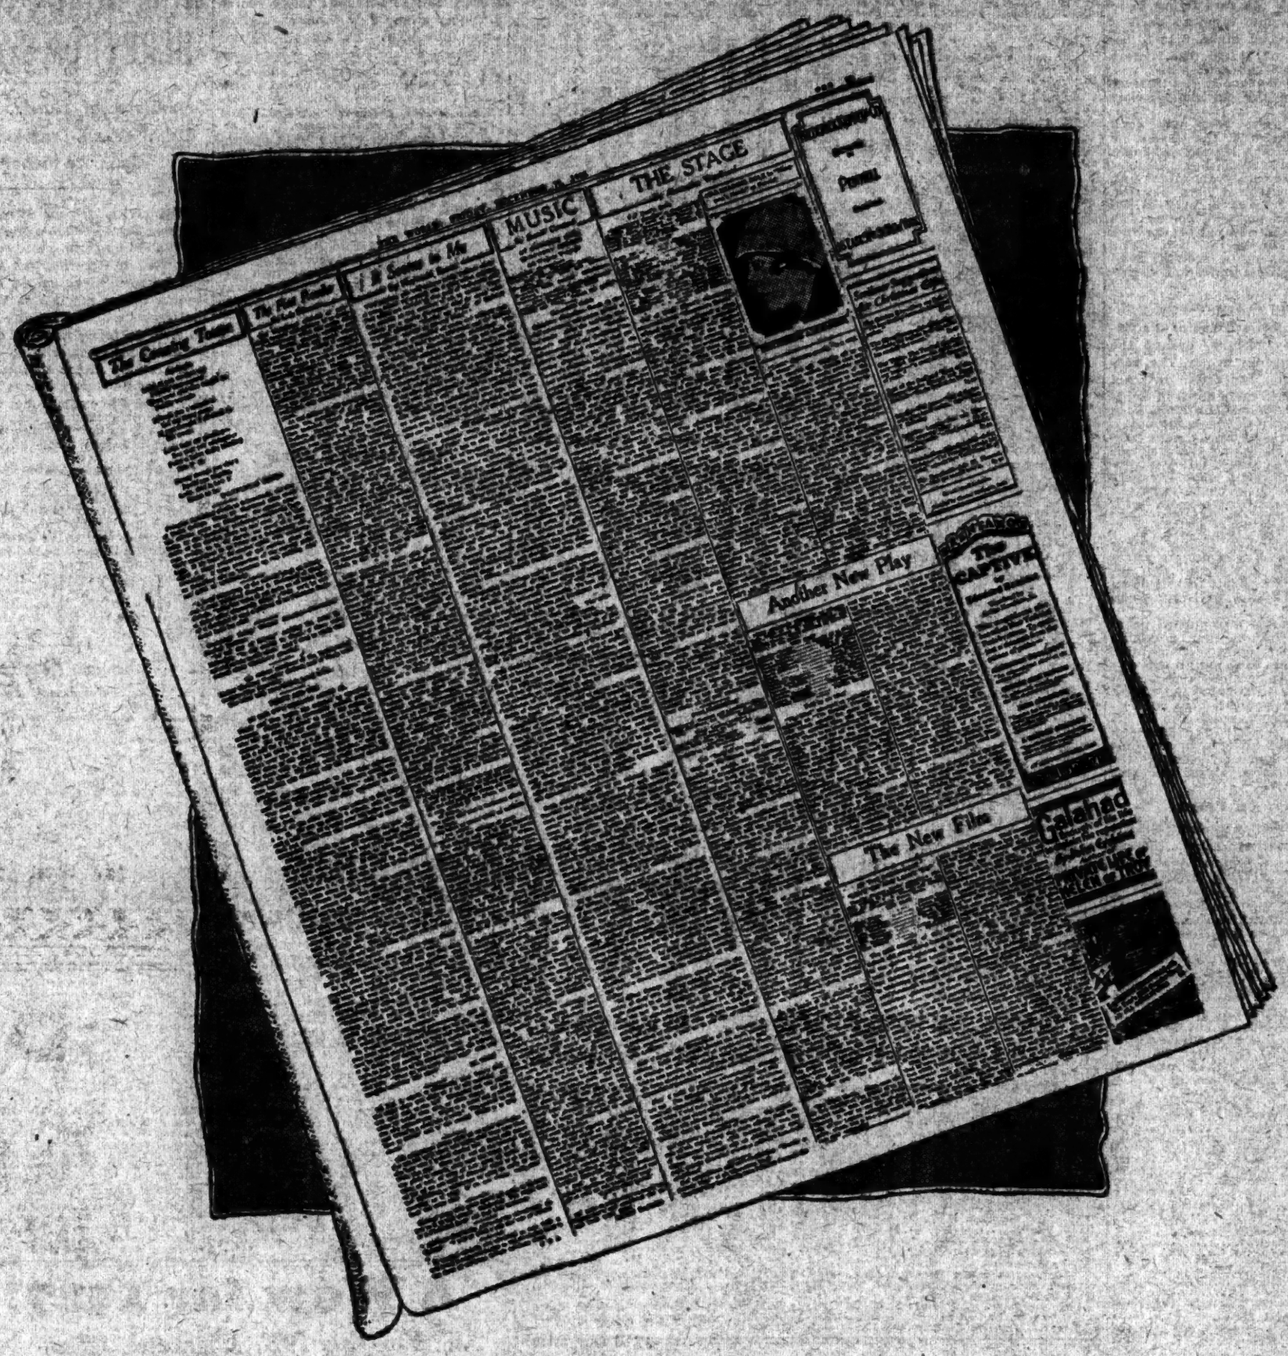
THE BEST WRITTEN FEATURE PAGE IN AMERICAN JOURNALISM



"OPPOSITE EDITORIAL" in THE WORLD is a newspaper feature with traditions well worthy of its distinguished companion page. It has attracted some of the most versatile pens in contemporary journalism, and there is no current of thought in modern life and letters that does not find adequate and authoritative expression on this page.

"Its earnestness," declares THE NEW YORKER, "it tempers with fine feeling for things cultural, and with wit and satire and playful humor. By its hospitable resolve to be entertaining as well as enlightening, it has drawn to its staff the most notable American critics of art, books, music, the theatre, brilliant paragraphers and commentators."

To the right will be found a partial roster of the writers who give character and sustained interest to "the best written feature page in American journalism," which accomplishes daily a feat in the dissemination of good reading what a host of more pretentious periodicals are well content to achieve every month.

Landis Will Hear Chicago-Detroit Players Answer Risberg's Charges Today

PLAYERS ARE READY TO ANSWER RISBERG

GANDIL STARTS FOR SCENE

But Declines to Say Whether He Will Testify—Yale Withholds Decision on Wood.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—The decks were cleared today for the baseball scandal hearing, set for 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, when Commissioner K. M. Landis will have Charles (Swede) Risberg face the members of the Chicago White Sox and Detroit Tigers of 1917, accused by Risberg of having conspired to "fix" a series over Labor Day of that year. According to Risberg's charges, made under oath to Commissioner Landis last Saturday, the White Sox raised a pool of $1,100 which was paid to members of the Detroit team for throwing all four games to the Sox, thereby helping the latter to clinch the pennant.

More than a score of players, many still among the stars of the game, including two major league managers, are expected to testify before the Commissioner who, all told, sent out invitations to forty whose names appeared on the rosters of the two clubs that year. Some, traveling a considerable distance, will not be able to arrive here in time for the opening of the session, but Commissioner Landis has indicated he will hold the hearing for two or three days more, if necessary, in order to give all who want to be heard a chance to testify.

Ty Cobb to Appear.

Prominent among those who will appear before Landis are Ty Cobb, also involved in another scandal with Tris Speaker; Ray Schalk, present manager of the White Sox; Donie Bush, former Detroit infielder and now manager of the Pirates; Eddie Collins, former White Sox manager, recently signed by the Athletics, and Clarence Rowland, who managed the White Sox in 1917 and who is accused by Risberg of being the instigator of the plot to threw the series. Rowland is now an American League umpire.

Thus far Risberg's story has been supported only by such members of the White Sox who subsequently were banished from baseball in connection with the alleged crooked world's series of 1919, Risberg also being one of these. All the other players named have vigorously denied the charge, though the admission has been made that a pool was raised in 1917, but that this was done at the end of the season and contributed as a reward to the Detroit pitchers for having defeated the Boston Red Sox, Chicago's pennant rivals that year.

"Look at the box scores of the games and they'll tell you in plain language that I had no knowledge of anything having been arranged."

Rowland Talks of Pitchers.

That is Rowland's answer to the charge that he knew that the Tigers were going to toss off four games in two days to the White Sox on Sept. 2 and 4, 1917. Rowland, returning today from Milwaukee, where he spent New Year's, raised the point that if he had known the games were sure things for the White Sox he would not have wasted his good pitchers for which he had plenty of need.

"Nobody seems to have given thought to the fact," said Rowland, "that if I was in on any kind of a deal, as Risberg declares, I certainly would not have used about every good pitcher I possessed. If the games were fixed and I had knowledge of it I could very easily have bluffed my way through by working some of the second-raters," said Rowland.

Gandil Goes to Chicago.

EL PASO, Texas, Jan. 4 (AP).—Chick Gandil, who was expelled from organized baseball in connection with the Chicago Black Sox scandal of 1919, left Deming, N. M., today for Chicago. He refused, however, to say whether he would attend the hearing called by Commissioner Landis. He will reach Chicago Thursday morning.

Jackson Willing to Talk.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 4 (AP).—Joe Jackson, banished from baseball after the 1919 world's series, told newspaper men today he "could put straight lots of things in the record which are not true if baseball's latest scandal offers opportunity." The former White Sox outfielder said he would tell his story from Savannah should Commissioner Landis desire, as his business made a trip to Chicago impossible.

Yale Takes up Wood Case.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 4.—The Yale Athletic Board of Control, meeting tonight to take up the Joe Wood case, announced that no decision or statement would be made public on the matter until tomorrow.

Coveleskie Balks at Trip.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Jan. 4 (AP).—Harry Coveleskie, a member of the Detroit American League team of 1917, refused today to answer the summons of Commissioner Landis to testify in Chicago tomorrow. Coveleskie, who is a borough policeman here, said that he knew nothing about the case.

WILLIE HERMAN VICTOR.

Willie (Kid) Herman outpointed Nick Palmer in the main bout of ten rounds at the 102d Engineers' Armory last night. The weights were Herman 138 pounds, Palmer 137. The semi-final was won by Peter Jackson, 184, who knocked out Billie Dearing, 170, in two rounds.

The results of the other bouts: Joe Wallach, 139, and Tony Crusco, 142, fought a six-round draw; Steve Jennings, 127, defeated Kid Reyes, 130, in six rounds, and Willie Jackson, 136, knocked out Jock Sperry, 139, in the second round.

WALLACE STOPS DE MARCO.

GRAND CIRCUIT SETS DATES FOR SEASON

Detroit, Grand Rapids and Goshen Added to Loop—No Changes in the Rules.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 4.—Dates for next season's trotting meets were set and three cities were added to the Grand Circuit schedule at a meeting of the stewards here today. The cities added are Detroit, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Goshen, N. Y.

There were no rule changes. Officers explained changes had been discussed, but since the two parent organizations, the American Trotting Association and the National Trotting Association, were now taking up the advisability of altering rules the Grand Circuit would not act until the two organizations had made their suggestions.

It is reported that a suggestion providing for the classification of horses according to winnings rather than to times set is favored by some circuit officials.

Toledo, Ohio, week of July 11; Detroit, week of July 18; Kalamazoo, Mich., week of July 25; Grand Rapids, Mich., week of Aug. 1; North Randall, Ohio, week of July 8 and 15; Goshen, N. Y. (mile track), week of Aug. 22; Syracuse, N. Y., week of Aug. 29; Indianapolis, week of Sept. 5; Lexington, Ky., the weeks of Sept. 19 and 26; Atlanta, Ga., week of Oct. 3.

AMERICANS DEFEAT THE CANADIENS, 6-3

11,000 See Them Gain Second Place in International Group of Hockey League.

By SEABURY LAWRENCE.

In a game that blazed with action and sensational plays, the New York Americans took the fast flying Montreal Canadiens into camp at Madison Square Garden last night, 6 to 3, before a crowd of 11,000. The victory gave the Americans undisputed possession of second place in the international group of the National Hockey League.

Seldom has there been seen such lightning-like speed at the Garden as that shown by Howie Morenz and Joliat of the Montreal forward line. Some of the greatest playing of the night and also a hard individual bout between Morenz and Himes came right at the end of the third period. Morenz was the aggressor and was put off for five minutes and Himes for two. The Americans went on a scoring rampage in the closing minutes and counted three goals.

Canadiens on the Attack.

The flashing forward line of the Canadiens, led by Morenz, opened the game at a whirling pace. The red-jacketed centre, supported by Art Gagne and Joliat, came down in lightning plays, but found the New York defense too sturdy to break through.

The New York offense always was dangerous. Reis, taking the disk out of a scrimmage, skated all the way down the north side, shot savagely and missed. He then rushed in on the rebound and beat Hainesworth with a short angle shot for the first goal of the game. The time was 5:30.

The Americans kept going strong and it was less than a minute afterward that Scott and Burch put another one through. Scott took it down and shot a nice pass to Burch, who flipped it in.

The second period also opened up at top speed and in less than a minute of play Gardiner, lanky defense man of the Canadiens, swooped all the way down the north side alone and slashed it past Forbes in 35 seconds. Burch and Himes soon got this goal back on a nice play. Burch made one of his flashing runs through the Montreal defense, but Hainesworth blocked his shot. Himes, however, caught the rebound and clapped it in, the time being 5:30.

Joliat Thrills Crowd.

Joliat and Morenz then electrified the crowd with dazzling runs. Morenz finally took the disk swiftly through the centre and when it bounced off Conacher's skate, Howie shot it through Forbes for the second goal for the Canadiens. The session ended with the count 3 to 2 in favor of the Americans.

In the last period the New York offensive got going in fine shape, with Himes counting in 14:51 on a rebound off Conacher. Red Green then made a beautiful individual play, taking the disk down through the whole Canadien team, and blazing it past Hainesworth in 16:06. A goal by Hart for the Canadiens and one for the Americans followed as the session closed.

The line-up:

Triple-Header Among Met. Teams Set for Garden Tonight.

With the fight for the lead in the game between the St. Nicholas and Knickerbocker clubs as the feature, the Metropolitan Amateur Hockey Association resumes its triple headers tonight in Madison Square Garden.

The other games bring together the Canadian Club, which scored its first victory last week, and the Seventh Regiment, and the New York Athletic Club and the Crescents.

In place of running one game after another, the officials will try a new scheme tonight, sandwiching in the games period by period.

U. S. AND ENGLAND END GOLF CONFLICT

OURS IS SET FOR JUNE 14

Is Transferred From June 23, While British Drop June 20 in Favor of July 11.

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.

The clash between the United States Golf Association and the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews over the selection of dates for the open championships of the two countries is over. Following extended cable negotiations that have been carried on between the two governing bodies, Secretary H. H. Ramsay of the U. S. G. A. announced yesterday that the matter had been amicably adjusted by the choice of new dates.

In order to avoid the conflict that has caused considerable ill-will abroad and that would have sounded the death-knell of international golf this year, the two associations have compromised. The United States open championship, which is to be played at the Oakmont Club, will be held on June 14, 15 and 16, and the British open during the week of July 11.

Originally both championships had been scheduled for the same week in June, the British dates being June 20-25 and the American June 23-25.

Conflict Decried by Ramsay.

Commenting on the change, Secretary Ramsay said:

"International golf has assumed such tremendous importance and has brought the golfers of the two countries in such close relationship that it would be rather calamitous to drop it even for a year. We believe that the results of our negotiations will be approved by golfers generally. The conflict of the original dates was unfortunate, particularly when there was no desire on our part to deliberately conflict with the dates therstofore arranged by the British.

"In originally fixing our own dates we necessarily had to consider the national holiday on July 4 as well as the generally unfavorable climatic conditions on most of our courses in July. We are entirely satisfied, as we know our friends in Great Britain are, with the arrangements now finally made."

British Pros Expected.

As a result of the compromise it is expected that the plans for sending a British team of professionals to this side for a team match will proceed, and that this year's open championship will have the greatest international flavor in history.

It also is expected that a number of the professionals from this country will visit St. Andrews, the scene of the British open championship in July. There is, moreover, a likelihood that Bobby Jones, winner of the British open championship at Lytham and St. Annes last Summer, will defend his title, although he previously has declared that he had no intention of doing so. But that declaration was made when the conflict was on and when it would have been necessary for him to choose between the United States and British events.

Few controversies, not excepting the famous one that developed when the R. and A. legislated the Schenectady putter out of play in their events, have provoked quite so much ill-feeling as was aroused abroad when the action of the U. S. G. A. in choosing the same dates as had been picked by the British was made known.

Miss Collett Aiding in Work of Organizing Westchester Club.

Another women's golf course is in the process of formation. This one is to be in Westchester County and will be opened in July, 1928, provided a sufficient number of members are secured to warrant starting work next May. Miss Glenna Collett, former national champion, is taking a leading role in the organization work.

A site has been chosen for the course. One hundred and fifty acres of land have been purchased at Banksville, between Greenwich and Bedford.

Riviera Tennis Clubs Now Say Mlle. Lenglen Took Right Step

MONTE CARLO, Jan. 4 (AP).—Mlle. Susanne Lenglen's defection from the ranks of amateur tennis has not caused a single murmur of protest along the Riviera. Leading club Secretaries seem agreed that "Mlle. Lenglen did the right thing at the right time." They believe she was at the top of her form last season and that another two years would have seen her fighting hard to keep her title. "If Susanne can come home and retire in 1928 with an income of $5,000 a year there is no one who would question her move," one said.

SARAZEN'S 277 WINS MIAMI BEACH OPEN

Special to The New York Times.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 4.—Setting a burning pace to wither the course record for 72-hole play, Gene Sarazen of Fresh Meadow, L. I., this afternoon won the Miami Beach open tournament on the Bayshore course with a card of 277, seven strokes below the course par.

Jock Hutchison, Glen View Country Club, Chicago, dallied with the leading honors throughout the morning play and gained an honorable second with 281 strokes, when his irons went bad in the final round.

Sarazen's brilliant play yesterday and today, following his recent victory in the Miami open, gave him an average of 69 strokes for the four rounds in a fine exhibition of approaching and putting. Fighting a tie with Hutchison in the morning, two putts in the opening afternoon round, one for fifteen feet and the other for twenty feet, gave him the break in the play.

Sarazen's card for the day follows:

FUTURITY ENTRIES CLOSE.

Entries for the Futurity Stakes, to be run at Belmont Park in the Autumn of 1929, and the 1928 Matron Stakes, for two-year-old fillies, closed yesterday. It will be some time before all of the nominations will have been received, since large numbers are coming from abroad and all nominations posted on Monday up to midnight will be accepted.

Racing Secretary Victor E. Schaumberg said yesterday that nominations for the Futurity from present indications would exceed the record total of 1,336 for the 1928 race. Mr. Schaumberg expects the race to be worth considerably more than $100,000.

It is estimated that more than ten thousand specimens will be judged during the four days of the show, which will come to an end Saturday night. Poultry, pigeons, bantams, water fowl and pet stock will be on exhibition. A corps of approximately forty judges will judge the classes and award the prizes.

Sports of the Times

No wonder the football players are the heroes of bright college days. They pay the bills of all the college sports, and have enough left over to build a stadium here and there about the country. The baseball player slaps the husky tackle on the shoulder and tells him he's a great chap. There is much solid thought behind that gesture, for the activities of the tackle provide the baseball nine with the implements of diamond warfare.

There are a few colleges where the baseball player is self-supporting, and can hold his head erect like Longfellow's Village Blacksmith, "for he owes not any man." Holy Cross baseball teams always show a profit, and some of the other Catholic college nines come out on the right side of the ledger.

But in the vast majority of colleges it is football that pays, and pays and pays.

Football's Poor Relations.

The situation at Yale might be taken as fairly typical. There are something like fifteen different sports carried on at Yale, and fourteen of them are more or less dependent on the bounty of the gridiron warriors.

Football at New Haven showed a net profit of $358,968 for 1925, and the financial balances on all other sports were written in red ink. The deficit in rowing was $61,245; in track athletics, $44,845; in baseball, $8,385. Basketball, lacrosse, soccer, squash racquets, swimming, tennis, golf, polo and boxing were in the breadline at the football feast.

What Price Powder and Shot?

There is something to be said in favor of the Yale rifle team. It went through the season on a total budget of $39.50 in American money, which made it a really cheap shooting expedition.

The royal and ancient game of golf is also set down among the lowly. It didn't cost much at Yale, but neither did it bring in a cent of revenue.

There's nothing surprising in the golf situation, however. The U. S. G. A. went along for over twenty years in blissful ignorance of the fact that the amateur championship could be made financially profitable.

Control of the Air.

A former Stevens football player, Vernon S. Henry, has come forward with the suggestion that forward passing be limited to a distance ten yards beyond the line of scrimmage. The argument, of course, is that such a limitation would prevent much of the wild heaving that is still going on by losing teams near the end of the game. The five-yard penalty adopted last year for incomplete passes was aimed at the same mark.

The Rules Committee, judging by the recent statements of Chairman E. K. Hall, seems to be fairly well satisfied with everything except the shift play. Furthermore, anybody in favor of hampering or hindering the forward pass would have to talk down, among others, Major Frank Cavanaugh and Knute Rockne. That's no task to be taken up in spare moments.

More Speed on the Ice.

The officials of the professional hockey league are now considering certain proposals which will let the stick-swingers rush around the ice just a few strides faster than the current break-neck pace. One rule under contemplation is to permit forward passing by a defending team between its own cage and the forward blue line. Another amendment would permit of substitutions without halting play.

These changes would certainly meet with the approval of the Garden hockey followers. Under present conditions a flashing rally is too often halted by an off-side pass or a skate check in a back area.

A Court Matter.

Herbert Chase, Secretary of the West Side Tennis Club, is of the opinion that the doubles game has lagged behind the singles game in development on American courts. He says that the great doubles teams of this country could be counted on the fingers of one hand, and suggests to Jones W. Mersereau, President of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, that something should be done.

A survey of recent years does not show that the United States has been particularly weak in doubles combinations. It does show, however, that with the exception of the Kinsey brothers, there was no doubles team which played season after season as the same combination. Yet victories were brought home just the same, and the doubles record in the Davis Cup competition is more than passing fair.

A Tribute from France.

Pierre Gillou, manager of the French Davis Cup team, gave it as his opinion last Summer that the Richards-Williams team, which won the national title, was the greatest doubles combination of tennis. That team, of course, has been broken up by the departure of Richards from the amateur ranks, but what foreign team would face Big Bill Tilden and Little Bill Johnston with an air of jaunty confidence?

It was in the doubles play at Wimbledon that the American women players captured the Wightman Cup. Miss Mary K. Browne and Miss Elizabeth Ryan formed one winning combination and Miss Eleanor Goss and Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup another.

A Shock to Mlle. Suzanne.

It was Miss Browne and Miss Ryan who defeated Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen and Mlle. Didi Vlasto in the doubles championship at Wimbledon last year. It was the first time in six years that Mlle. Suzanne had been on the losing side of the net. The shock, however, was not fatal.

All in all, the doubles play of American racquet wielders seems to be fairly creditable, but if it can be improved, as Mr. Chase thinks it can, nobody will oppose the improvement except possibly our foreign rivals.

"My Kingdom for a Horse."

Meadow Brook, L. I., will be the Mecca of society next September, when the British polo players take the field against America's selected team. This is a game which can be played only by the affluent, but it can be watched enthusiastically by any ardent follower of sports. Polo, especially with an international tang to it, is a dashing and magnificent game. Its one drawback as a popular pastime for the multitude is that it can't be played without a horse.

TILDEN POSTPONES HIS TRIP TO EUROPE

Will Not Sail This Month, but Will Head an American Team in Spring.

MAY SEEK INDOOR CROWN

Says He Will Do Some Playing on Florida Courts—Holland Files Davis Cup Challenge.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

William Tilden, former national tennis champion, will postpone his trip to Europe in order to head a team which the United States Lawn Tennis Association will send abroad in the spring to represent this country in the French and English championships, it was announced yesterday.

The former champion had announced that he would sail on Jan. 20 for the Riviera, accompanied by W. F. Coen Jr. of Kansas City and John Doeg of California, national boy and junior champions, respectively, and also perhaps by A. H. Chapin Jr. and Francis T. Hunter. It was his plan to wage an intensive "comeback" campaign with the prospect of his meeting Rene Lacoste and Henri Cochet of the Davis Cup team.

The postponement may lead to Tilden competing in the national indoor championship at the Seventh Regiment Armory.

To Play in Florida.

"In view of the fact that the United States Lawn Tennis Association has tentative plans to send a team to Europe early in the Spring, and that I have been asked to accompany it as a member, I have decided to give up my trip to the Riviera in February and March.

"Business reasons make it impossible for me to go over in January and stay abroad until the team comes over in the Spring, and since I could not return in time to complete my business after the Riviera season and sail with the U. S. L. T. team it seems necessary to give up my Riviera trip for the year. Meanwhile I hope to play in Florida tournaments as conditioning for the trip abroad in the Spring."

Went Abroad in 1921.

As a member of the American team Tilden will make his first appearance abroad since 1921, when he won the championship at Wimbledon for the second successive year. There is a strong likelihood of his meeting the French Davis Cup players there and also in the French championships.

The third challenge for the Davis Cup for 1927 has been received by the U. S. L. T. A. Holland is the latest country to file its entry for the international matches and will compete in the European zone. This is the sixth time Holland has challenged.

LAMB AND REHRIG TIE.

N. Y. A. C. Gunner Has Score of 19 in Annual Reading Shoot.

Special to The New York Times.

READING, Pa., Jan. 4.—Shooting in fine form, killing nineteen out of their respective fliers, Richard Lamb of the New York Athletic Club, former New Jersey State champion, tied with John D. Rehrig, the veteran Reading wing shot, for the high-gun honors in the twelfth annual Reading Handicap, staged at the Reading Fair Ground traps today.

Seven gunners, including Stuart Scott of the New York Athletic Club and Edward Cooper, Larchmont Yacht Club, tied for second-place honors. In the shoot-off for the Herbules Cup, the high-gun trophy, Lamb won, with Rehrig taking the Esterly prize, the runner-up award, while Scott won the shoot-off for the third cup.

HOPPE OPENS FIGHT FOR TITLE TONIGHT

Challenger Ends Practice With Unfinished Run of 188—Play 3 Blocks of 500 Points Each.

Eric Hagenlacher will defend his world's 18.2 balkline title for the first time since he won it from Young Jake Schaefer last March when he meets Willie Hoppe in the opening 500-point block of a 1,500-point match at the Hotel Pennsylvania tonight. This will be the first championship 18.2 match in New York since Hoppe defeated Edouard Horemans for the title in March, 1924.

The match is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock, but it is expected that, due to the preliminary ceremonies, it will not get under way until about 9:15. The scene of the clash will be in the grand ballroom, where accommodations have been made to seat 1,100 persons. Albert G. Cutler of New York will referee.

The improved form displayed by Hoppe has served to give his supporters new hope, but Hagenlacher's form has been so impressive that yesterday the odds were quoted at even money. Last week Hoppe was a favorite at 6 to 5. Hoppe finished his training with an hour's private work at the Strand Academy. His practice was featured by an unfinished run of 188. Hagenlacher concluded his training with a brief work-out at the Fourteenth Street Academy.

Matsuyama Again Wins 2 Matches.

Kinrey Matsuyama, again won two games at 18.2 balkline at the National Recreation Billiard Academy, Brooklyn, yesterday. He defeated H. Hammer, 250 to 157, in the afternoon, and Frank Hammer, Class C amateur champion, 250 to 14, in the evening.

THE PLAY

BALLYHOO, a play in three acts, by Kate Horton. Staged by Richard Boleslavsky; settings and costumes by James Reynolds; produced by Emanuel Jaffey. At the Forty-ninth Street Theatre.

Uncle Jeff	W. H. Post
Belden	William Sellery
Mrs. Belden	Adelaide Hibbard
Doris	Arline Blackburn
Texas Dan	Hugh O'Connell
Slow Joe	Earle H. Mayne
Jameson MacDonald	Eric Dressler

A Barker	Kent Thurber

Hard upon the heels of the successful "Broadway," there have been reports for some weeks of two imminent plays set against the background of carnival life, even as the play at the Broadhurst uses the cabaret. The first of these pieces to reach town arrived last night at the Forty-ninth Street Theatre. It is entitled "Ballyhoo"—for a considerable while they were both entitled "Ballyhoo"—and it is the work of Kate Horton, whose "Harvest" was acted here two or three seasons ago.

The new piece, however, falls somewhat short of being an authentic picture of carnival life. True, these remarks are set down by one who has no first-hand knowledge of the tent shows, but certainly one is not made to feel the heart beats of the people behind the scenes. A goodly number of them are present—the barker, the strong man, the riders and a minstrel or two—and there is an occasional bit of atmosphere that intrigues the attention. In the main, however, it is a somewhat studied picture.

In proceeding to a consideration of the main thread of the play this reporter finds himself a bit baffled. The story that has been woven through the carnival scenes has the strange quality of seeming to belong in another play. One can readily imagine it in a Gallic farce, to account for its presence in this play of American carnival life is difficult. A reasonable explanation, perhaps, lies in the presumptive appeal of the salacious.

Miss Horton's heroine is a broncho rider, and not more than a cut better than she should be, although it was the rough life that did it. When finally she loves and is loved by a youth from the outside world, one is hardly prepared for the turn of events that the story then takes. Neither is one prepared for one or two rather astonishing scenes of amour, as the phrase goes. At least, last night's audience was sufficiently unprepared to indulge in an occasional unrestrained giggle.

The broncho rider is pretty well played, in the main, by Minna Gombell. Eric Dressler, as the hero, does his little well enough, and there is a good performance by Morgan Wallace in a preposterous part. The cast also includes Arline Blackburn, the child actress who turned religious with a vengeance in "Bride of the Lamb." She is at present a spindly young lady, or about to become one, but she continues to be the perfect embodiment of all objectionable children.

Richard Boleslavsky has made a fairly good job of the direction, although he has so cluttered his stage as to hamper considerably the movements of the players.

EARL CARROLL OPENS HIS NEW 'VANITIES'

Latest Revue Has Many Comedy Scenes and Players From Overseas.

EARL CARROLL VANITIES (International edition), featuring the new Chariot Show, in two acts, book by Ronald Jeans; music and lyrics by Grace Henry and Morris Hamilton, additional lyrics by Ronald Jeans, Donovan Parsons and Howard Leigh, additional music by Noel Gay and Dick Addinsell. Dances and ensembles arranged by David Bennett; staged and produced by Earl Carroll. At the Earl Carroll Theatre.

The well-known Anglo-American hands-across-the-sea gesture again receives its measure of commendation from the theatre in the new edition of the "Vanities," for Earl Carroll has brought over many of the comedy scenes and leading players from the last Chariot revue for his latest production. To insert them bodily he has deleted considerable of the show which held forth at his theatre until last Saturday night, and left Julius Tannen, Morgan and Mack, the girls and the production scenes from the previous version.

Chief among the newcomers under the Carroll standard are Herbert Mundin, as deft and reliable a comedian as ever, and Jessie Matthews, a piquant and attractive young person who has emerged from the ranks of the chorus since she last visited these shores. The others content themselves with rendering competent aid to these two in their various songs and playlets.

The sketches from overseas range all the way from bright to banal, and they seem, without exception, longer than similar interludes in previous Chariot shows. Among the more amusing is the one in which the dialogue in furtherance of a romance consists entirely of business jargon and stenella.

"Four to Six-Thirty," which has the trick ending typical of these skits, is authentically in what has come to be known as the Chariot manner. But perhaps the best of the lot is the Grand Guignol scene, in which the gruesome and horrendous happenings are hailed at every climax, the lights go up and the players burst into some musical comedy artificiality of song or dance.

The passing of the coachmen and their horses is celebrated by Mr. Mundin and others in a sentimental interlude called "The Last Cabby," an occurrence which made some of the audience's sterner souls reflect on "White Wings" and its untimely end. A good idea, that of separating the music and the lyrics of the sextet from "Lucia," and presenting each separately, does not quite come off. Nor does a scene called "A Gala Night at Calashide," which may have caused riotous mirth in London, but bears the same relation to the Carroll audience that a scene depicting a barn dance in the Mellie Dunham country would have to the British public. Nor, unfortunately, does Miss Matthews's attempt to do the Gertrude Lawrence sort of specialty quite succeed.

On the other hand those Yankee Doodle stand-bys, Moran and Mack, are, as usual, among the emphatic hits of the revue, even though one of their numbers does not register. Last night, just before the hour when Mayor Walker's new curfew law goes into effect, they stopped the show with a familiar act.

This collaboration on the part of Mr. Carroll and Mr. Chariot suffered from the usual first night difficulties. It lacked pace, faltered and obviously needed considerable pruning—defects which can be remedied. As it stands it has opportunities to develop into a smart, bright show, without the rawcousness and tinsel glitter of its predecessor, and it should be among the best of the Carroll series. And, to save the news until the end, in defiance of every journalistic precept, it is one of the most fully clothed of all the town's eye-appeasing saturnalias.

"LACE PETTICOAT" LIVELY.

Good Singing and Dancing in New Musical Comedy.

LACE PETTICOAT, a musical comedy of Old New Orleans" in two acts, by Stewart St. Clair. Lyrics by Howard Johnson and music by Emil Gerstenberger and Carle Carlton. Dances arranged by J. C. Hughes; staged and produced by Carle Carlton. At the Forrest Theatre.

Adelaide and Hughes.

Good music of its class, good singing and good dancing relieved the monotony of dull dialogue last night when the frills were shaken out of the "Lace Petticoat" at the Forrest Theatre. There was a deal more of music than comedy in the piece and the singing of Tom Burke and Vivian Hart was exceedingly pleasing to an audience that waxed more and more enthusiastic over these two as the evening progressed.

Burke, a rather huge figure of a man for the parts usually allotted to the musical comedy tenor, showed to advantage in his role. Miss Hart, whose songs were reminiscent of the arias from half a dozen operas, put in perhaps the busiest evening of a very busy cast. A tenuous thread of story held the song and dance numbers together.

Paul Joscelyn, a Lieutenant already, although just out of the Naval Academy, returns to New Orleans to find his childhood playmate, Renita, developed into a singer of parts. Their love affair terminated successfully after the parish priest establishes beyond peradventure that Renita is not a quadroon.

Stella Mayhew as a rich—and blond—creole widow, drinks champagne and shows the effects in a scene common to musical comedy. Others who amused were James C. Morton, as Professor Bonelli, and his assistant in black face, which part was taken by Joseph Spree. They sang one song which in theme and rhythm recalled James Barton in "Havana," some eighteen years ago.

Adelaide and Hughes attended to the special dances efficiently and they were ably seconded by a well-drilled chorus. The "Creole Crawl" in the first act and the "Skeleton Ghost" in the second, in which on a dark stage the chorus appeared as skeletons with the help of much radium paint, produced requests for repeated encores.

NADIA REISENBERG HEARD.

Pianist Stirs Audience That at First Shows Coolness.

Nadia Reisenberg gave a piano recital at Aeolian Hall last night before an audience which appraised her somewhat coolly at first, but which became most enthusiastic by the end of the evening.

The perfection of a remarkably graceful technic and a thorough knowledge of the classic style were observable in the opening Bach Fugue, but in Schubert's Sonata in A major, which followed, the artist's playing was disappointing, except in the Allegro.

The Bach Suite for violoncello, transcribed and adapted for piano by Godowsky, was quite another story, and threw an illuminating light on the pianist's reserves of force. The prelude and Allemande were given masterfully and with splendid decision, quite in the Bach manner. The remaining movements, especially the final Gigue, were more in the language of Godowsky, and therefore more flowery.

The Liszt Etude de Concert had a brilliance, a sparkle, that galvanized the audience into demonstrations of pleasure. The Paganini-Schumann Caprice had its use as a pièce de concert.

Miss Reisenberg became astonishingly temperamental in Balakirev's "Islamey," which ended the concert. No one, having heard her play Bach with such exactitude and decorum, would have dreamed that she could become so flashingly barbaric and bacchantic. The audience applauded enthusiastically and recalled the artist to an encore.

TOSCANINI TO REHEARSE.

Sixteen Philharmonic Dates Here for Italian Conductor.

The Philharmonic Society, following Mr. Toscanini's arrival yesterday from Italy, announced last night that he would be guest conductor of the Philharmonic Orchestra for sixteen concerts, beginning Jan. 13 at Carnegie Hall. Mr. Toscanini will conduct three Thursday evenings, three Friday afternoons, three Sunday afternoon concerts and two Saturday evening students' concerts, all at Carnegie Hall. He also will direct two Tuesday evening concerts at the Metropolitan Opera House and one Sunday afternoon event at the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

Two concerts outside of the local Philharmonic subscription series are scheduled for Mr. Toscanini. One is for the benefit of the Neighborhood Music Schools, to be held Tuesday, Jan. 18, at the Metropolitan Opera House, and the other is for the Philharmonic out-of-town subscription at Philadelphia. The latter is to be Mr. Toscanini's only appearance outside of New York this season.

Mr. Toscanini will start his Philharmonic season with four consecutive performances in Carnegie Hall on Thursday evening, Friday afternoon and Saturday evening of next week and Sunday afternoon, Jan. 16, for all of which his programs will be arranged and rehearsals started in the next few days.

Alice Calhoun Reweds.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4 (AP).—Alice Calhoun, film star, whose first marriage to Mendel Silberberg, Los Angeles attorney, was annulled, secretly married Max Chotiner, head of a Los Angeles chain of theatres, at Ventura last Saturday, the actress's mother disclosed here today. Miss Calhoun married Silberberg last May and in July he filed a petition to annul, charging that the actress was engaged to another man at the time of the wedding.

PRIZED LAMPS SALVAGED.

Four Sent to Church by Edison in 1884 Found Still in Use.

In 1884 Thomas A. Edison shipped some of his first samples of electric lights to Leadville, Col., and they were recently salvaged from the ceiling of an old church there. They were still in service and burning. They did not break a world's record, however, as the church served a mining community and was used only once a year, as the supporting population had mostly moved away.

There were four lamps in the old church. They were noticed by an electrical man who obtained permission to make an investigation. He offered to make some repairs to the lighting system and thus salvaged these valuable antiques, samples of which are prized in the Smithsonian Institution and carefully preserved there.

MUSIC

Bach's Orchestral Music.

Mr. Stokowski with the Philadelphia Orchestra completed last evening at Carnegie Hall the difficult and dangerous task he entered upon a few weeks ago, of playing all Bach's six Brandenburg concertos. Last evening's concert was devoted to the last three concertos; to which were added orchestral transcriptions of the choral prelude on "Ich ruf 'zu dir," and the prelude and fugue in G minor, both originally for organ. Mr. Stokowski appeared upon the conductor's stand with his right arm in a sling, the result of his sufferings from neuritis, which has interfered so much with his work lately, and conducted with his left. The maker of the orchestral transcriptions was not named upon the program, but was of course, as has been the case before, Mr. Stokowski himself.

The danger in a "one-man program" consisting entirely of Bach's concerti grossi—the danger of monotony and weariness—turned out to be no more appalling in this concert than in the previous one of the same sort. The variety in the orchestral effects is not so great in the last three concertos as in the first three, with their horns, trumpets, flutes, oboes, bassoons, besides the strings. The fourth concerto has for its "concertino" a violin and two "flutes à bec" or flageolets—the instrument Hamlet knew as the "recorder"—and upon which he expatiates at length to the confusion of Guildenstern and Rosencrants. The place of this instrument is taken in modern performances, with no wrenching of the proprieties, by the modern transverse flute. In the fifth concerto there are a flute of the modern sort, a violin and a harpsichord put against an accompaniment solely of string quartet. Bach undertook the curious experiment in the sixth of writing for the lower strings alone, without violins—for violas, violins da gamba, violincellos and double basses.

But apart from the question of tonal color, combination and contrast, these three latter concertos, like the three former, have so great a variety of content, so rich a stream of development, that they never impose an oppression of monotony in thought or even in expression. Bach wrote, as he needs must, in the idiom of the eighteenth century. He took such things as he found them and was not concerned with changing them; although there are innovations in the concertos that had occurred to some of his predecessors or contemporaries. The elaborate use of the harpsichord in the concertino of the fifth, for example, is instanced, as a bold innovation in the concerto grosso; and the use of the various brass and wind instruments as constituents of the concertino in others was at least not common. But on the whole, Bach was a conservative and no more of an innovator than, as of the greatest of all musical geniuses, he could help being. And so, he expressed such things in the idiom of his day and generation that that charm no more burdens present day listeners than Shakespeare's Elizabethan idiom burdens the lovers of his plays; as for similar reason.

There are no such formidable dangers looming before the players in these last three concertos as there are in the first three. There is nothing that the skillful player of today cannot express adequately. There is no need of such relays of rescuers for the first aid of exhausted trumpet and horn players as were revealed in the first and second concertos. There are no perfunctory "embouchures" to cause sleepless nights before and after the performance. This may, to some, have made last night's concert lack something of the sporting interest that inhered in the other; there was less speculation, less suspense, less of the sympathetic strain in the breasts of those listeners who knew what the difficulties and the dangers were. But there was, in so far, an even greater opportunity for an unalloyed enjoyment of the music.

In these concertos, Bach sported with the difficulties of the polyphonic style that was native to him, although there are but few set figures or other definite forms of the contrapuntal sort. The geniality and spontaneity of his melodic invention are nowhere else more prodigally expended than here, and the variety of spirit and of mood is felt throughout them. In the fourth there are grace and insinuating charm in the flowing figures for the two flutes or the violin, with a brief efflorescence into rapid passages for the violin; a sweet gravity in the slow movement, full of the characteristic "echo" effects so much favored by the eighteenth century composers; and finally a highly developed figure of great brilliancy and energy in which the violin again has a long cadenza. The solo instruments in the fifth are flute, violin and harpsichord, and the wise ones say that the use of the harpsichord for this purpose, besides its invariable appearance as a member of the orchestra, was a bold and original stroke on Bach's part. Here there is another and much longer cadenza, now for the harpsichord, in a true bravura style. The slow movement is a trio for the concertino without orchestral support, bearing one of Bach's very rare characteristic directions "affettuoso," and in his most tender and appealing mood—though here the modern audience may have felt that in these days there is not so much time for such lengths as the eighteenth century had. If it did, it may have had the impression effaced by the hastening jig-like character of the finale—a character that is shared to some extent by the finale of the sixth concerto. The true effect of this composition is hardly to be gained in a modern performance; it is nearer the line of chamber music than any of the others; and the dark color given by the violas, gambas, violincellos and double bass is not wholly reproduced.

In fact, with all the care that Mr. Stokowski evidently lavished upon the performance of these six concertos, they were still a good way from their true effect. They are not at home in the great modern concert hall, or in the hands of a great modern orchestra, to say nothing of the lack of the characteristic tone of the harpsichord and the viola da gamba. The solo players devoted themselves seriously to their task, but the violin was disappointing in a certain lack of authority and power and the pianist was somewhat unduly self effacing in his effort to avoid emphasizing the modern quality of his instrument. These players of the concertino were, in the fourth concerto, Messrs. Gusikoff, violin, and Kincaid and La Monaca, flutes; in the fifth, Messrs. Gusikoff, Kincaid and, at the pianoforte, Kaufman, and the two violas in the sixth were Messrs. Bailly and Lifschey.

The transcription of the choral prelude "Ich ruf zu dir" gives a beautiful, truly pbetical result. That of the G minor prelude and fugue is skillfully made, if it must be made; but the organ is constantly missed—for like most pieces by great masters, it sounds best on the instrument for which the great master intended it. But the playing was at a speed that quite robbed it of its character—except the last page, that was broadened out of all recognition.

ENGLISH GIRLS ARRIVE TO HEAR GALLI-CURCI

Two Workers Hoarded for Two Years to Indulge in Opera Here for Three Weeks.

Two years ago Louise and Ida Cook, sisters, blond, and members of the English working girl class, spent five successive evenings listening to Galli-Curci sing from the concert platform in her London début. Each evening the sisters returned to their home in the southwest part of London, delighted to the point of exaltation. And then and there they began to hoard their surplus shillings, planning to obtain leave of absence when Galli-Curci should happen to sing in opera in New York.

Yesterday the sisters landed from the Berengaria to meet with a typically English reception in the way of weather. They had written to Galli-Curci explaining their desire to spend most of a three weeks' sojourn in New York at the Metropolitan, and tonight, when the singer appears in Verdi's "La Traviata," they will occupy orchestra seats. They expect to attend the opera voraciously during January before they have to return to work in an English Government office.

The sisters, who are of medium height and both in their early twenties, met Galli-Curci back-stage in Albert Hall, London, but being part of an immense crowd that came to be introduced, they were sure she wouldn't remember them. However, they will meet her again this time, so all will be well.

Not being especially heavy of purse, the sisters came over third class. One week of the five allowed them by the British Government for an American vacation passed at sea, and another week is destined to be spent likewise. The sisters regret that all five weeks cannot be spent listening to music.

Of the New York skyline, regarding which every incoming traveler is asked to express an opinion, Miss Louise Cook couldn't say much. It was wreathed in mist when the Berengaria docked. One thing in New York, however, impressed both sisters. That was the great profusion of "lifts," or elevators, as they were told to call them while here.

Opera List Also Varied by Return of German Stars.

Mme. Galli-Curci, for whose return this season Verdi's "Traviata" is restored at the Metropolitan this evening, will open the opera's eleventh week next Monday with the season's first hearing of Rossini's "Barber of Seville." Chamlee, De Luca and Pinza also will sing and the ballet, "Skyscrapers," will complete a double bill. Next Tuesday the company gives a first "Trovatore" at the Brooklyn Academy with Rethberg and Martinelli.

"Die Götterdämmerung" will be a first harbinger of the coming "Ring" cycle, when Wagner's tragic human finale of the cycle is sung independently before next week's Friday subscription. In it Larsen-Todsen, Branzell and Bohnen will make their reappearance for the balance of this season.

Other operas are "Tannhäuser" next Wednesday, with Jeritza and Taucher; Thursday matinée, "Rigoletto," Galli-Curci, and evening, "Forza del Destino," with Ponselle; Saturday matinée, "Africana," Ponselle and Lauri-Volpi, and Saturday night, Jan. 15, "Falstaff" and "Skyscrapers."

The coming Sunday concert, again for the opera "emergency fund," will have for singing stars the Misses Easton, Ponselle, Attwood and Telva, Messrs. Chamlee, Basiola, Rothier and Ludikar, with the orchestra under Bamboschek.

ENGLISH ARTISTS HEARD.

Nina and Westell Gordon, singers of a familiar type of English ballads, found compatriots from overseas to greet the brother and sister entertainers in a joint program at the Town Hall last evening. The tenor's composition, "Far-Away Bells," was one of the best liked, and he later played a 'cello obbligato to three more of his own songs. The soprano, who was also the pianist, gave charming imitations of Gertrude Lawrence, Beatrice Lillie and Irene Bordoni.

Miss Gordon added what she called "a faint impression" of Dame Melba in the "Lucia" mad scene and one not so faint of Sir Harry Lauder in a roaring sailor chantey. She also played a half dozen imitations of composers, giving "Three Blind Mice," the recognizable likeness of a Mascagni intermezzo, Liszt rhapsody, Chopin nocturne, Sousa march and Rachmaninoff prelude.

Announces European Plays.

Gilbert Miller, who returned from Europe on the Majestic last week, announced yesterday that he had arranged with several important playwrights to present their next works in America. They included Sir James M. Barrie, W. Somerset Maugham, Ferenc Molnar and Alfred Savoir. He also purchased the American rights to a play entitled "Interference," in which Gerald du Maurier is soon to act in London under the Miller management.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The Moscow Theatre Habima, now at the Mansfield Theatre, will continue their engagement next week at the Cosmopolitan. They will offer "The Deluge" on Monday night for the first time during their current engagement.

"The Black Cockatoo" failed to give a performance at the Comedy Theatre on Monday night, and has been formally withdrawn. "New York Exchange" will move to that house from the Klaw next Monday.

"The Spider," by Fulton Oursler and Lowell Brentano, has been put into rehearsal by Albert Lewis, with a cast including John Halliday and Regina Wallace. It is described as "a play of the varieties."

Eugene O'Neill's "Lazarus Laughed," unproduced here, will be acted at the Goodman Memorial Theatre in Chicago in March. Kenneth Macgowan and Thomas Wood Stevens will assist in the production.

Allan Dinehart will play the leading male role in "Sinner," now in rehearsal. Clairborne Foster is also in the cast.

Ruth Gordon will have the principal role in Maxwell Anderson's "Saturday's Children," due to open here on Jan. 17.

There will be an extra Thursday matinee of "Beyond the Horizon" at the Bijou this week.

Theodore St. John, a young actor new to New York, will play Oswald in Mrs. Fiske's revival of "Ghosts" coming to the Mansfield next Monday.

"The Ragged Edge," an adaptation by George Abbott of a play by Francis Lanier, will be produced soon by William A. Brady Jr. and Dwight Deere Wiman. Robert Ames will have the leading role.

Laurance D'Orsay will soon be seen in Keith vaudeville in a sketch by Edgar Allan Woolf. Robert Warwick is also about to return to vaudeville.

CORNELL MUSICIANS GIVE A CONCERT HERE

The Cornell University Glee, Banjo and Mandolin Clubs ended a tour that has taken them to Detroit, Indianapolis, Baltimore and way points with a concert to a full auditorium last night at the Hotel Plaza, where they went through the old stand-bys and some new songs and instrumental pieces with vigor and the deftness that comes of coaching and practice.

H. L. Merriman, a junior from Pennsylvania, and his partner, R. W. Kinne, '28, of New York, a baritone, did much to make a hit of the several numbers in which they appeared. The portly young Mr. Merriman was a huge success with the audience as a comic, whether he happened to be imitating "the leader of a big brass band" or a fountain, and he essayed both. D. C. Angevine, '27, and J. B. Wilson, '29, both of New York, supplied the music on a marimbaphone, while Mr. Merriman went through the motions he conceived to be those of a fountain.

The Glee Club showed ability at choral work in their singing of "A Song of Steel" by Charles Gilbert Spross, and Rudyard Kipling's "Danny Deever" to the score of Walter Damrosch. As encores came "Imogene Donohue" and the "Chorus of Peers" from Sullivan's "Iolanthe." The setting as well as the music of "In a Clock Store" by Orth caught the audience and called for further encores.

Four young men with banjos made hemselves popular with selections from the classical as well as the popular. They were C. F. Spindler, '27, of New York; A. M. Laidlaw, '27, of New York; E. R. Van Arsdale, '28, of New York, and D. Lewis, '27, of California. The following men did good work as an octette: K. M. Young, '27, of Rhode Island; F. M. Pelton, '28, soloist, of Pennsylvania; E. B. Brauner, '29, of New York; R. M. Chase, '27, of New York; N. C. Northrup, '29, of New York; W. R. Morgan, '27, of New York; R. T. Banks, '27, of New York, and W. C. Sutherland, '28, of Maryland. Eric Dudley directed the Glee Club and Dexter S. Kimball Jr., '27, son of the Dean of Sibley College of Engineering at Cornell, acted as leader. George L. Coleman, '95, directed the Mandolin Club; Egbert B. Littlewood, '20, led it.

DROPS QUESTIONABLE PLAY.

Totten-Herts Productions Heed the Mayor's Drive.

Joseph Byron Totten and Harry B. Herts, who recently formed a theatrical producing company under the name of Totten-Herts Productions, yesterday made public a letter to Mayor Walker in which they announced that they had withdrawn a prospective production from their schedule as the result of the Mayor's drive for clean plays. The play in question was a dramatization of Reginald Wright Kauffman's novel of some years ago, "The House of Bondage."

The letter to Mayor Walker was in part as follows:

"The undersigned desire to inform you that, deferring to your recent action regarding the plays in the New York theatres, they have canceled all plans for their announced production of 'The House of Bondage,' despite the fact that this play preaches a very vital moral, but which might, according to your opinion, be objectionable."

INSULL PLAY TO CLOSE.

Chicago Woman's Company Said to Be Losing $1,000 a Day.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—A thousand dollars a day is the deficit under which Mrs. Samuel Insull's repertoire theatre company has been operating in the Studebaker Theatre, according to gossip in theatrical circles today, after announcement that the Insull project would terminate its 1926-27 engagement on Jan. 15.

When Mrs. Insull's organization took over the Studebaker $80,000 was paid to Frank Gazzola for the five-year lease. The rent was $35,000 a year.

The current play, "The Dice of God," in which Mrs. Insull is starring, will be continued until the closing performance.

Although the venture has not reached the heights of success that might have been hoped for, the season has been satisfactory, J. Clarence Hyde, Vice President and General Manager, declared, speaking for Mrs. Insull.

STOPPING A "BOOM."

There is an air of tragi-comedy in the accounts of Governor SMITH's efforts to prevent anything like an organized movement in his behalf for the Presidency. What other candidates are at great pains to create he would incontinently destroy. The starting of a Presidential boom is easy in its initial stages. All you have to do is to induce volunteers to serve on a committee, to get your man prominently "mentioned" in news dispatches and otherwise, and to lay in a good supply of official campaign stationery. Just now, for example, many letters are reaching the East bearing the legend, "LOWDEN for President." When it comes to invading other States than the aspirant's own, the work increases in difficulty. It then requires numerous emissaries, visiting statesmen, prominent citizens casually and innocently on their travels, but not at all averse to talking about "the one man who can be elected," &c.

All this familiar machinery, which others covet, Governor SMITH will have none of. Not only will he do nothing personally to round up delegates to the next Democratic National Convention, but he will permit no friend of his to set about doing it. Not with his knowledge and consent will any committee send agents to various parts of the country to scatter words of kindness in his interest. He would discourage even the unattached gentlemen who are so eager to enroll themselves among the "original Smith men," as well as those politicians who, thinking no less of themselves than of the candidate, are anxious to hitch their little wagons to the rising star. Governor SMITH, in other words, is showing as much anxiety to kill off his boom before it gets started as the traditional candidate for the Presidency is to do everything to make his boom flourish like a green bay tree. This is strictly in line with the course which the Governor has laid down for himself. He is going to stick to his job at Albany. The strategy upon which he has decided—and a great deal is to be said for it—is not to seem too keen about climbing, but to wait until the time may come when his party will say to him, "Friend, go up higher."

This may be good tactics for the Governor, but he may nevertheless rob the Presidential campaign of much of its gayety. Were his friends permitted to go out and organize and work actively for him, there would be delightful additions to the series of dark political mysteries uncovered and secret forces drawn to the light. We should have seen the Brewers seeking to disguise themselves in Texas or Georgia for the sake of Smith delegates. There would have been terrific plotting by "The Scarlet Woman," and the De Fidei Propaganda would have been frightening little children in the South in their beds. All such pleasures of the canvass will be denied us if Governor SMITH maintains his resolute stand. Yet there will be one curious result. The more his friends are forbidden to talk about him, the more he will be talked about. The very spectacle of a fit man not consumed with anxiety to become President inevitably has the effect of making a great many people wonder whether that is not the kind of President they would like to have.

EUROPE'S MINOR TROUBLES.

A Vienna dispatch in yesterday's TIMES presents a somewhat doleful picture of Central Europe at the beginning of the new year. Primarily it deals with the failure of the Locarno settlement to produce immediate results east and south of the Danube. Stabilization there has not yet been attained. This is contrary to the general impression, which regards the process of appeasement as originating precisely in Central Europe and moving westward. Before the Dawes plan there came the economic rehabilitation of Austria and Hungary. Two years ago Poland offered ground for gloomy anticipations. She is not yet out of the woods, but is emerging. In Yugoslavia the conflict between Serbs and Croats shows signs of abating. Greece seems to have climbed out of chaos upon firm ground.

If Vienna, nevertheless, sees a troubled outlook in Central Europe, the explanation lies in the kind of difficulties anticipated. They are, compared with the basic post-war problems of Europe, minor troubles. When we speak of stabilization on the Continent we think of fundamental issues, virtually of two issues. Is Europe climbing back to economic health? Is Europe safer against war than a year ago? Perfect stabilization has not been attained anywhere, not even in Great Britain, nor in France, nor in Germany. They all have hard rows to hoe. But with Locarno a fact, with Franco-German reconciliation growing, with the leading nations of Europe winning back to economic health, we are justified in speaking of the Continent as, in essence, stabilized.

The troubles enumerated in the Vienna summary are troubles of a secondary nature. The situation is certainly complicated enough. Here are more than half a dozen States still engaged in groping and "orienting" themselves. Any number of permutations and combinations among them are conceivable. Belgrade a year ago played along with Rome as against Vienna and Berlin. Because of recent events in Albania the Yugoslavs now want to play with Berlin and Vienna against Rome. A year ago Greece under PANGALOS played with Belgrade against the Bulgars. She is now courting Sofia against the Yugoslavs. Under the old order this might have meant mischief. Today we need not take the manœuvres too seriously. In the background stands the guarantee of the League and Locarno that these gropings and shiftings shall not eventuate in catastrophe. Greece at the end of 1925, says the Vienna dispatch, was on the verge of war with Bulgaria. Precisely. But the League stepped in and disciplined Greece and there was no war. What would once upon a time have been crises are now troubles.

The diplomatic game will go on in Europe. But the promise is that it will remain a game, at least as far as the fortunes of Europe as a whole are concerned. Highly significant is the chief reason cited in the Vienna dispatch for the present uncertainty in Central Europe:

> Momentarily it [Franco-German friendship] has no stabilizing influence, because it forces States which banked on Franco-German hostility as one of the few European verities either to revise their views or to consider so revising them.

If the nations of Central Europe are thrown a bit out of gear because they counted on war between France and Germany and must now face the prospect of peace between them, it is a "troubled outlook" to which the world may easily reconcile itself.

MYSTICISM AND PROSPERITY.

Though his pelage be a little gray, we love to think of the Bull Moose trampling the snow at this season. Unfortunately, the herds are mostly in reservations now and the call can be so deceitfully imitated by a birch-bark trumpet that a most unmooselike spirit of caution prevails. Here is our admired friend, Mr. WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE, dripping with prosperity but still unreconciled. Fain would he have all years 1912. He wants to be a "crusader." Every once in a while he hops on the remnants of the Lafollettian wagon, but he admits that it's no use. The muckraker's work is done for the moment, and the country is contented and prosperous—barring the farmers. This happy-unhappy state of things coinciding with Mr. COOLIDGE'S Administration, Mr. WHITE looks at him with a sort of friendly hostility and tries to account for him philosophically.

He finds Mr. COOLIDGE "as much of "a New England mystic as was RALPH "WALDO EMERSON." Mr. EMERSON was not a mystic, but a transcendentalist. He stood for extreme spontaneity and individualism. He was a revolter against Calvinism. Mr. COOLIDGE, as a Republican, might be called a Calvinist. He accepts the full Republican creed. He may even believe vaguely that there is a relation of cause and effect between it and prosperity. But to call a common-sense philosopher of the Franklin school a "mystic" is a comic derangement of epitaphs. Mr. WHITE is a transcendentalist in following his individual intuition rather than reason when he says that Mr. COOLIDGE'S "mysticism "is founded upon this tenet that, given "prosperity, justice must follow."

What ground is there for attributing to Mr. COOLIDGE this fantastic theory of the inevitable concomitance of "prosperity" with "justice"? Prosperity may engender abuses that have to be corrected, but it also provides more leisure, more time for thought, more fields and means for the activities of all who seek to further either for themselves or others their conception of "social justice." Has the American Federation of Labor, for example, ever been more strongly led or more earnest in working for the fulfillment of its plans than in these fat times?

Mr. WHITE forgets, too, how under the pressure of economic disaster "social justice" is apt to take the form of unsound finance. He tells us that Mr. COOLIDGE is "without the feeling "for the whole of the country of "CLEVELAND." That is an assumption, and mighty few of our Presidents can stand comparison with that great energy and will; but Mr. CLEVELAND was "a great business President." The repeal of the Silver act; the reform, however frustrated by his party, of the tariff; the issuance of bonds to protect the gold reserve and keep gold and silver at a parity, were the work of a "business President." With his fondness for simplification, Mr. WHITE finds that to President WILSON the business of the Government "was peace on earth."

Of Mr. WILSON as a world figure, that may be said; but there is also Mr. WILSON the business President, whose Federal Reserve system is our main guarantee of financial stability and shield against panics. We know nobody but Mr. WHITE who affects to believe that prosperity is inconsistent with the Good, the Beautiful and the True. His fits of homesickness under this dispensation are not affectation. The old bull moose longs for the yard. The comfortable capitalist is bored by his capitalism. How much more fun it would be to Ford it through Kansas, telling a delighted and capitalistic yeomanry that the United States is hell-bent! Such little occasional diversions are essential to Mr. WHITE'S health.

AN UNUSUAL DEBATE.

Colonel SMITH of Illinois has not yet offered his credentials to the Senate, but that does not prevent the Senate from discussing them just as if he had. This is one unusual aspect of the debate. An actual "case" is not before the Senate, but it proceeds to pronounce judgment just the same. This is one of many respects in which it differs from the Supreme Court of the United States. Another thing which makes the Senate debate out of the ordinary is that a question of the right interpretation of the Constitution has been raised, yet there is no possibility of getting a judicial decision on it. Some Senators take the position that the "intent" of those who wrote the Constitution was to prevent the Senate from looking into the qualifications of a member, beyond the stipulations laid down by the Constitution itself that he must be 30 years old, at least nine years a citizen of the United States, and, when elected, an inhabitant of the State for which he is chosen.

The Senate was gravely warned yesterday that should it seek to exercise "unlimited power" over the admission or rejection of a Senator, it would be guilty of an act grossly unconstitutional. Yet if this were so, there would be no way of bringing it before the Supreme Court. It is impossible to imagine that tribunal asserting jurisdiction, when the unchallenged provision of the Constitution is that "each "House shall be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of "its own members." Thus the argument has to be addressed to Senators as if they were acting as judges on a nice constitutional point, yet without resort to an appeal from their decision.

It might have been better if the decision in such matters had been left to a court, instead of to either House of Congress. Such is the English practice. The judges, not fellow-members, perhaps fellow-partisans in Parliament, pass upon the due election of members. However, as our Federal Constitution elects the other course, there is nothing for it but to permit the Senate to be its own interpreter: It is safe in exercising a power which there is no court or other outside branch of Government to dispute. It may be wrong, against the spirit of the Constitution, against ordinary procedure, even against the proprieties, to reject a Senator simply because for one reason or another it does not like him; but if it does this, there is no way of stopping it or obtaining redress.

LOANS ON WAR BONUSES.

The First National Bank of Bridgeport did not hesitate to make loans on soldiers' insurance certificates on Monday when, for the first time, under the law, they could be used as collateral. "We consider it a civic duty," said President WOLFE. Many bank officials may not have seen the matter in that light. To deal with ex-service men needing money was more or less troublesome. The sums wanted were in many cases small and identifications were sometimes difficult. Furthermore, there were banks which did not know the guarantees of the Adjusted Compensation act of 1924; particularly, they did not seem to realize that behind the certificates stood the Federal Reserve Board and the Director of the Veterans' Bureau. A bank lending money on the certificates could not lose. In Secretary MELLON'S words, the transaction was a "business proposition." He thinks that, with full comprehension, the banks will "soon turn to these loans." The fund for the payment of the certificates now stands at $400,000,000. This year their estimated loan value is $200,000,000.

The law says that "any national "bank, or any bank or trust company "incorporated under the laws of any "State, Territory, possession, or the "District of Columbia, is authorized" to make a loan on a certificate for "any amount not in excess of the loan basis." That basis is defined. The interest charged is not to exceed "by "more than 2 per centum per annum "the rate charged at the date of the "loan for the discount of ninety-day "commercial paper under Section 13 "of the Federal Reserve act." If the borrower fails to pay his debt at maturity, the Director of the Veterans' Bureau may accept the certificate and note, cancel the latter, satisfy the bank's claim, and restore the certificate to the veteran when he makes good both principal and interest. Should he not do that before maturity of the certificate, there shall be paid to him the balance that is due. If he dies before he makes payment, or before maturity of the certificate, the equity shall be paid his beneficiary, or, if there is none, into the estate of the veteran. The bank making a loan may "sell the "note to, or discount or rediscount it "with, any bank authorized to make a "loan to a veteran," the certificate being transferred.

The interests of veterans are always safeguarded, but it can hardly be expected that many of them will be familiar with the provisions of the law. All the more reason, therefore, why banks should regard it as a "civic duty" to put up with the trouble of making loans on the certificates. It is not to be supposed that many bank officials will now make an insuperable difficulty of accommodating needy veterans who have such good collateral to offer in the adjusted service certificates. Veterans would, of course, obtain quicker service by furnishing identification through persons known to the banks. The certificates "are," says Representative FISH, "as good as Liberty bonds." That is true, but they are not as easily negotiable.

A HAUNTED COURT HOUSE.

Is the new Court House haunted? Perhaps the ghost of TWEED has maliciously touched it. Twenty-four years ago the city undertook to find new quarters for the Supreme Court. It took ten years to pick a site, and then somebody discovered it was over an ancient pond where ROBERT FULTON used to conduct his experiments. That didn't make a very good foundation, and they bought another site next door. A dispute arose over plans, and the circle was displaced by the hexagon. The city dumped ashes into the gaping hole. During the war the site was used as a concentration camp.

Work on the foundations actually began in 1920, only to be followed by a controversy over the respective merits of limestone and granite which in the end sent HETTRICK of the "limestone ring" to prison for collusive bidding. After the contract for the superstructure was finally let it took fourteen months to quarry the granite, and there were more delays due to a severe Winter. Then Mayor HYLAN and Controller CRAIG got into a lovely row over the project, and the finishing contracts were held up. The city had a Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity; why shouldn't it handle the electric installations and save the city money? That reasoning appealed to the Board of Estimate, and the Court House waited a few months for fixtures which should have been ordered long before. Last Summer a vandal came along and smeared the metal doors of the building with acid.

Surely a convincing case has been made out for a genuine haunt. But as if the evidence were not complete, Mr. GUTHRIE and Judge SEABURY now announce that this $30,000,000 building is too small for the purposes for which it was designed. How the ghost of TWEED must rock with laughter over that final touch of irony! While the Supreme Court has been waiting at the door, it has grown too corpulent to enter. The tactful representatives of the bar are not inclined to be too censorious in the premises. When the project first took shape in 1908 there were 9,725 cases on the court's calendar the first of the year. In 1910, when it was first proposed to house the City Court also in the new building, the number of cases had actually shrunk to 7,067, and it was not much more in 1919, when the Board of Estimate approved the plans. Who could have expected that by 1927 the cases on the calendar on New Year's Day would have jumped to 29,466?

Now some other place must be found for the City Court, for surely the Supreme Court ought to be given elbow room for a while after waiting so long in cramped quarters. But where? The bar suggests that there is room near by to build a new and commodious building for the junior court, and that in the meantime it might be housed in the old County Court House, soon to be vacated by the Supreme Court. Temperamentally, perhaps, but by no means should that ancient monument to graft be allowed to encumber City Hall Park indefinitely, even though that might give rest to a perturbed spirit.

OUR LADY OF THE BOOKS.

Canada has taken a hand in the literary argument between the United States and England. It is not a very weighty part she is taking, but it is noteworthy, just as is the crying of the little girl whose big brothers will not let her play with them. When she has grown a little older it may mean that the big brothers must mind their game carefully if they are not to be beaten.

Enough international comment to fill several volumes is written every year by Englishmen and Americans on the manners, peculiarities, art and literature of cousins across the sea. But neither pay much attention to Canadian production along these lines, and Canada has become vocally reproachful. An article in The Toronto Star, headed "English Authors Do Not Write Books on Canada," sums up the injured feeling and lists a number of the injuries. English lecturers sometimes, not always, spend a short time in Canada, but they do not linger to see the beauties of the country and get acquainted with the people; they rush away to the States, where they spend most of their time. Some of them talk of settling down, never returning to England, but it is not in Canada that they plan to live. Of those who have visited the "Lady of the Snows," only Lady ASQUITH has given as much as several chapters to her, and for this she is singled out for praise.

The others are regarded half in sorrow, half in anger. Mr. DRINKWATER was pleasant company, but he wrote never a line on his eager hosts. Mr. CHESTERTON "blinked at us paradoxically," and Mr. JOHN BUCHAN failed to find a "Greenmantle" in the northern woods. There were a few lectures by Mr. WALPOLE, ST. JOHN ERVINE and Mr. YEATS, but no writing, and WELLS, MASEFIELD, BENNETT and BELLOC, all of whom visited the States, did not even set foot across the border. As for the English women writers, whose trips to this country seem to be considered an unmixed blessing for us, they shun Canada, and she doesn't know why.

Any country with a small market for literary production, especially when it has reached a point of appreciation such as is now found in Canada, is certain to be sensitive to anything resembling condescension. LOWELL spoke for Americans when we went through a period of artistic endeavor which was not viewed with complete sympathy abroad. The crudity of many of our writers is still laughed at by heartless English critics, but they also confess admiration of certain others whose writing is rooted in the soil. Canada surely does not want any one else to write the stories that will be better told by Canadians. She may be impatient, but the rewards of native production are worth waiting for.

ANTI-FOREIGNISM GROWS IN CHINA.

Reports from China indicating increasing signs of animosity toward foreigners are disquieting. Although there were no deaths in the latest anti-British riots at Hankow, the temper there displayed is but further evidence of a movement which has been gathering headway in the last few months and which, unless checked, may result in serious acts of violence. The seeds of hate sown two years ago by Russian agents have grown copiously. Although hatred has been directed primarily against the British, and secondarily against the Japanese, the Chinese people are not especially prone to distinguish between foreigners. Where the flag clearly covers the foreigner or his possessions distinctions may be made. But antagonism to the British has been too often translated into antagonism toward all "foreign devils." Such a movement gathers force slowly at first, but soon acquires perilous momentum.

It would be unfair to charge that any of the Chinese war lords deliberately intend to drive out the foreigners. The danger lies in their inability to check Chinese mobs, which have for so long been told by misguided and self-appointed "leaders" that foreigners are responsible for all the ills of China. The natural deduction is that China will be cured of all her troubles if she gets rid of the hated aliens.

Were this movement well reasoned, and did its leaders have constructive plans for righting China's wrongs, foreigners could view it with greater equanimity. All that Americans and English want in China is the right to trade and to go about the country in comparative safety. They seek no territorial concessions, no special privileges which will infringe the rights of the Chinese. The talk about "imperialism" is, as the British Minister to China aptly said, "pure moonshine." The very power which has been loudest in stirring up the cries of "imperialism"—Soviet Russia—is the one which most directly threatens the territorial integrity of China.

There seems little that Americans or British can do to stem the tide of anti-foreignism. Force neither should nor will be used, unless, of course, the Chinese bring it upon themselves by repeating the methods of 1900. Conciliation seems simply to have provoked the Chinese leaders to renewed demands. To withdraw altogether from China may be the only solution, although this is certain to hurt the Chinese as much as the foreigners. Americans will be relieved to learn that the American Minister to Peking, Mr. JOHN V. A. MACMURRAY, is returning at the end of the month to confer with the State Department. But much may happen between now and the date of his arrival. China has in truth become one of the "danger-spots" of the world.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Last Hope of the Untamed West.

Governor DILLON of New Mexico, after proclaiming his hostility to evening dress and his resolve to be contained in a "plain business suit" at the inaugural ball, lapsed from austerity and "compromised" by appearing "in a tuxedo," doubtless with the proper accompaniments. Is "BILLY" ADAMS of Alamosa, the next Governor of Colorado, made of sterner stuff? He represents a noble decorative idea, no such humdrum ugliness as "a plain business suit."

A great cattleman, he swears by the flannel shirt, the careless bandanna, "the fur-trimmed chaps of a cowboy." These, with a few other luxuries and necessaries, have been his "formal dress" for forty years. Shall that free neck submit to the yoke of a "biled" shirt? "I never have worn full dress and I never will, if it's what I think it is," cries "BILLY," imitating artlessness. He has never been seen without his spurs, say the jokers, and fears that they would bite the swallow-tails.

Will he "compromise," as Governor DILLON did? One suspects that he will, and that the Colorado press-agent has been busy. The ball is on Jan. 11. According to The Rocky Mountain News, "the new year will mark the beginning of a new Colorado." Will it also mark the beginning of a new "BILLY" ADAMS?

Havana's Shining Example.

Commissioner GALLATIN on his return from Havana spoke of the lack of litter in the parks of the Cuban city. He failed to make it plain whether New York's parks would be cleaner if we imported Havana's park police force or if we imported Havana's crowds.

Unfortunately, his observations have been made public at what might be termed the peak of the closed season for park litterers. Not even the recent mild weather led many into Central Park for purposes of newspaper reading or picnicking. The public, therefore, will not pay so much attention to Mr. GALLATIN'S tale of contrasts as it would if Spring were here.

Perhaps Mr. GALLATIN has brought back with him the secret of Havana's clean parks. If this rests in a litterless citizenry, he has the opportunity between now and May to bring up the New York public in the way found most effective in Havana. If the secret lies in more effective use of authority, Mr. GALLATIN may be able to take the matter up with the Mayor some evening, or perhaps quite early of a morning, during the Winter, and enlist his support for a larger park police force with greater powers.

Women's Obedience to Fashion's Rule.

Philosophers, poets and several other classes of men falling somewhere between have said in their own manner that women are remarkable creatures. A really extraordinary accomplishment, one that defies analysis or explanation, is their capacity for physical change. It has been mentioned by the poets, but it has never had the serious consideration it deserves.

When a man shows an idiosyncrasy that enables him to look short and blond one week and tall and dark the next, he goes on the stage and draws down a fat salary from the vaudeville producers. But this faculty in women is so common among them that no notice is taken of it.

There is, for example, an announcement from the Vienna hairdressing convention that the sleek cropped head which we are accustomed to see will not be with us in 1927. Hair will be curly, falling in ringlets on the forehead and drawn into a cluster of curls at the back of the head. The bob will be feminized, softened, lengthened, fluffed and curled. A man ordered to change his ordinary haircut to such waving beauty would feel that it simply couldn't be done, at least not overnight. Women, however, not only do not balk at the idea; they actually make the change.

Then there is the news about feet. They must be smaller and daintier during the coming year. It sounds impossible. Hair does eventually grow. It can be curled, and additions may be pinned on. But feet are solid flesh and bone. How are women going to manage? It is not for man to question nor to answer. His to wonder and admire, for if small feet are required women will have them.

Household Help Under Communism.

It does not sharply mark off Soviet Russia from other nations to announce that domestic servants are now one of the privileged classes under the Communist régime. They occupy the same station in most capitalistic countries. The surprising feature is that there should be, under a proletarian system, a sufficiently large number of domestic servants to constitute a class.

Yet it is a fact that two years ago the number of household workers in Moscow was close to 100,000 for a population of about a million and a half. In New York State in 1920 the number of persons engaged in domestic and personal service was 475,000 for both sexes.

A servants' trade union would be a natural development in a country like Russia where every occupation is unionized, including teachers and Government employes. Whether the privileges of a month's vacation with pay and one day off a week exceed the advantages enjoyed by household help in the United States, in practice if not by legal enactment, American housewives are in the best position to determine. It seems to be a fair enough provision that Russian servants can be dismissed only for the most substantial reasons. In this country employers of domestic help would hail with delight some such form of protection for themselves.

A PLAN FOR DEBT PAYMENT.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It appears to an inexpert though careful reader of the newspaper literature on the European debt situation, more particularly just now the French situation, that there is an obvious though neglected method for settlement in sight.

Thinking now about the French debt to the United States, and assuming that all the others may be subjected to the same treatment, is it not feasible to settle that knotty problem in this way?

It is, I understand, a fact that under the present suggested terms of settlement the United States cannot hope to receive more than half of the gross amount of the debt, and will have to wait sixty-two years for the final payment. If this is a correct statement, why should not this Government at once cut the debt in half, and immediately assume the loss of half of it?

Then allow the French Government to issue bonds for the other half and sell them in this country, or wherever they please, and turn the proceeds over to us in liquidation of all indebtedness to us.

Such bonds would sell readily here, and at a low rate of interest. The French Government could fix any reasonable terms for payment of the bonds. If they were long-term bonds, with fair provision for amortization, they would sell here all the better as permanent investment.

A mere observer may fall into error if he attempts to dabble in matters that are not in his line, but I am so simple as to believe that all of our European debt complications can be straightened out in this way, or some quite similar way, and thus save our national face.

Of course, a simpler solution would be for us to acknowledge that we advanced money to the Allies to aid them in fighting war into which we had entered while we gathered men and munitions to make our aid effective, and cancel the book obligation. We fought with money for a time. It is as logical for us to ask France to return to us the men killed in battle as the money spent in battle. Or is it?

GEORGE FRENCH.

A Historic Tennessee Institution.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A few years after his graduation from Princeton, in 1775, the Rev. Samuel Doak located in Western North Carolina (now East Tennessee) and became "the apostle of learning and religion" to this region. The school he started in 1780 was chartered as Washington College in 1795. For nearly a century and a half it has done good service in spite of the handicap of a meager equipment.

In 1892 steps were taken to enable it to respond more widely to the need of its unique field—where life to most is one long struggle against exacting conditions. Two farms were purchased, and with other facilities for student self-help, since added, Washington College has come to mean opportunity to increasing numbers from homes of isolation and poverty. The academic schedules now in use, with coordinate courses in vocational agriculture, have been found best adapted to the requirements of these under-privileged mountain boys and girls.

The construction of modern highways, one of which skirts the campus, has made the institution accessible as never before. Its expansion has been so rapid in recent years as to necessitate the enlargement of its facilities. The major part of the building program, extending over three years, was completed last Fall. With adequate support Washington College can respond effectively to its larger opportunity and become more than ever an instrument of usefulness.

The material is right. The people are all of sturdy American lineage. Hid away by Providence for a time of need, as Woodrow Wilson once said of them, there never has been a time when their steadying influence was more needed. But for intelligent and efficient participation in the affairs of State and nation on the part of all, education is indispensable.

The Appalachian region is like an inexhaustible mine many extensive leads of which are unexplored. To facilitate the work of making this vast reserve available will be to render a service of strategic and lasting value to the country at large.

Any who are interested may communicate with the undersigned.

REV. JAMES T. COOTER,

Hope Long Deferred.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I heard two clerks in a ready-made clothes shop on Fifth Avenue talking about efficiency. One of them told how a client of the house had died and his widow had come in to buy a new suit in which to bury her husband and the clerk who waited on her was so efficient that he persuaded her to buy an extra pair of trousers.

I thought this young man would hold the record, but the Tax Commission at Albany seems to have him beaten.

On March 10, 1926, I paid my State income tax in full, with the understanding that if the law was passed giving the rebate of 25 per cent. my extra payment would be returned. I have not received any rebate.

THE CARAVAN.

When I fare forth to Paradise
I'll have a caravan
Of shadowy mules and camels
Go with me if I can.

I'll load it with a west wind
A-blowing off the sea,
The drowsy, lazy murmur
Of a bumblebee,

A tumbled poppy smoothing
Her rosy skirts at dawn,
The smell of new-mown grasses
On a plushy lawn.

I'll load them with a dogwood branch
Across the sky of May,
A thrush's lonely flute song
At the close of day.

There will be bales and bales of joy
Which doesn't spoil like grief,
And lots of homely human love
And shiny young belief.

And when I reach the portals
The happy folk within
Will crowd about the gateway
To see what I bring in.

And I shall tell the angel
Who stands there and directs,
"There's nothing dutiable here,
Just personal effects,

For these things are a part of me,
They're all that I could bring."
Then he'll pass them into heaven
By order of the King.

BAR HONORS JUDGES WHO GET NEW POSTS

EX-JUSTICE CLARK LAUDED

Elihu Root and Samuel Seabury Urge Action to Hasten Work on Clogged Calendars.

The court room of the Appellate Division, First Department, was crowded with distinguished lawyers and jurists who gathered there yesterday afternoon to honor Justice Victor J. Dowling on his elevation to the position of Presiding Justice and to welcome Justices James O'Malley and Joseph M. Proskauer, who filled vacancies on that bench.

The occasion was also made one of tribute to Justice John Proctor Clark, who retired from the Presiding Justiceship after twenty-six years of judicial service, eleven years of which were spent as Chief Justice. Former Justice Clark, Elihu Root, William D. Guthrie and other distinguished lawyers made addresses, in which the personnel of the Appellate Division during the thirty-one years of its existence was extolled.

The great problem before the court, it was emphasized by many speakers, is that of clearing the great congestion of calendars which now causes long delays in the settlement of cases. Former Justice Samuel Seabury proposed the establishment by legislative enactment of a Judicial Council, composed of Supreme Court and Appellate Justices, presided over by Justice Dowling and invested with the power to make rules of procedure to expedite the administration of justice.

Ceremony Opened by Guthrie.

William D. Guthrie, President of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, presided. In his introductory address Mr. Guthrie said:

"We of the bar of the First Department express our appreciation of the importance, significance and lesson of a noteworthy and memorable occasion. It is noteworthy because of the retirement, in full vigor of mind, under the inexorable mandate of our State Constitution as to age limit of judicial service, of a Presiding Justice who has served as a Justice of this court for more than twenty-one years, whose term of eleven years as its Presiding Justice has been longer than that of any of his predecessors in that great office, and who also is the only Presiding Justice who in the thirty-one years of the existence of the court has served to the end of his possible term and would be still serving if his unselfish devotion were the controlling factor.

"The occasion is also noteworthy because the incoming Presiding Justice, the Hon. Victor J. Dowling, has already served in the court for seventeen years, a much longer term than any other Presiding Justice had ever served before his appointment as the head of the court, and likewise especially noteworthy and memorable because of the fact that had the bench and bar of the whole judicial district been polled, as we confidently assert, the same choice of a Presiding Justice and of the two Associate Justices promoted to this court, the Hon. James O'Malley and the Hon. Joseph M. Proskauer, would have been the selection of the profession, with immeasurable satisfaction and good wishes on the part of all."

Root Urges Swifter Courts.

After a eulogy on the services of the Appellate Division, Mr. Root said:

"One difficulty about the administration of justice with us is that we have come down from a period through which the trial and argument of causes was like a prize fight, a gladiatorial contest, that furnished the chief amusement throughout the country for the people who would flock to the court house or the school house where court was held in order to hear two distinguished counsel lambaste each other.

"And the Judge refereed the game. There were but two parties, with the Judge holding the balance equal between them.

"But now that the public has baseball and the movies, it seems unnecessary that Government should furnish a further kind of amusement under the name of judicial proceedings, and it seems as if we ought to be able now to consider that there is a third party to every trial and argument, and that is the people of the country, who maintain the organization and pay the expense of the administration of justice; the people who are interested not in one side or the other of the particular case, but interested in having justice done.

"And a lack of that is the reason, or one reason, why there is this vast accumulation of cases on the calendar of the trial courts, because our organization has not been adapted to preserve the rights of the people of the State of New York in having justice done, so that it should be swift and certain and available to all, and so that it should not be clogged up upon the calendar or postponed until the Great Calendar."

Other speakers were George W. Wickersham, Charles S. Friedrich, President of the Bronx County Bar Association; John G. Milburn, for many years President of the State Bar Association, and Justice Dowling, who responded gratefully to the tribute.

SEEK BEETHOVEN MEMORIAL

BERLIN, Jan. 4 (AP).—For some time the city authorities have been worrying because no worthy memorial to Beethoven exists in the capital. Last Fall the municipality invited prominent artists to submit designs for a tribute to the great German composer, to be erected in one of the principal squares. All the designs, however, were rejected as short of the standard set.

Now a second attempt is being made. A competition open to all artists has been initiated, with prizes of $1,250, $750 and $400, respectively, for the three best designs. In case this fails, a further $2,500 has been appropriated for additional tests.

The models in the present competition are to be cast in plaster on the scale of one to ten and must be submitted before Feb. 21 next. The cost of the memorial has been set at $60,000.

MRS. RALPH ELSMAN WINS DIVORCE SUIT

SETTLEMENT OF $203,000

RENO, Nev., Jan. 4 (AP).—Mrs. Beatrice J. Elsman obtained today a decree of divorce in the District Court here from Ralph Elsman, former Brooklyn (N. Y.) gas capitalist. With the decree went a cash property settlement of $200,000.

Custody of their two-year-old son, on which the couple seemed to be unable to agree, was awarded to the father, Mrs. Elsman having the right to visit the child at reasonable times in this county, and to have him two weeks, twice a year, but in this county.

The decree was awarded on grounds of cruelty. The specific allegations were not made public. Mrs. Elsman previously had received a home at Great Neck, L. I., valued at more than $100,000.

Ralph Elsman is Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Kings County Lighting Company, in which he bought a controlling interest in 1920, when he was 36 years old, after having been employed as an office boy, oiler, fireman, lamp trimmer, meter reader and designing engineer by various gas companies.

Mr. Elsman has been married twice, the second Mrs. Elsman becoming his wife at Gardnerville, Nev., on Oct. 22, 1923, a few days after he had obtained a divorce from his first wife. He met her, it was said, while she was employed as a manicurist at 120 Broadway, where he had his offices. They lived at 46 Arleigh Road, Great Neck, until last January, when she filed suit here for a separation, and left the house.

Mr. Elsman filed suit for absolute divorce at Reno in September, following his arrest there on his wife's complaint of assault and battery which was dismissed. He charged his wife with desertion after their quarrel in Nevada.

HARRY LEHR OPERATED ON.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 4.—Harry S. Lehr, former social leader of Baltimore, Newport and New York, who rushed across the Atlantic from his Paris home for treatment at Johns Hopkins Hospital, underwent an operation at the hospital today. Dr. Walter B. Dandy, Associate in Clinical Surgery and personal friend of Lehr, was the surgeon.

The operation, according to the physician was successful, and Mr. Lehr is reported to be resting comfortably. The nature of the operation, which is understood to have been necessitated by a brain ailment, was not disclosed.

According to his sister, Miss Fannie Lehr, Mr. Lehr suffered from a similar illness in Paris three years ago. At that time he was treated by French specialists, who feared that there was an abscess on the brain. When the complaint recurred recently, Mr. Lehr come to this country for treatment.

ELLEN TERRY BETTER.

Famous Actress's Physicians Report Continued Improvement.

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP).—Friends of Ellen Terry, England's great actress, were relieved today when they learned that improvement in her condition had been maintained. Dame Terry is suffering from an attack of bronchitis, and as she is in her seventy-ninth year fears were entertained that serious developments might ensue.

The attending physicians today, however, in their official bulletin, indicated a satisfactory improvement and reported that their patient was quiet and cheerful.

David Belasco Improving.

The condition of David Belasco, theatrical producer, who was hurt early New Year's morning in an automobile accident, was reported as much improved yesterday afternoon. His secretary, Thomas A. Curry, said at the Hotel Gladstone, 114 East Fifty-second Street, where Mr. Belasco has an apartment, that while still suffering from shock and concussion caused by the accident, Mr. Belasco had passed a comfortable night and that his present condition caused no alarm. Already, said Mr. Curry, the patient had expressed a desire to leave his bed and confer with his associates regarding a forthcoming production. It is not expected, however, that he will be able to attend to any business before three weeks or a month.

Teachers Honor Dr. J. S. Taylor.

Taylor, who will retire from active service as District Superintendent of Schools on Feb. 1 after fifty years in the public school system, was the guest of honor yesterday at a luncheon given by teachers of Public School 88, Clark and Broome Streets, of which Miss Margaret Aiken is Principal. About fifty teachers and guests were present, including Mrs. James J. Walker, wife of the Mayor, her mother, Mrs. Helen Allen, and Commissioner William J. Weber of the Board of Education.

Meat Imports Order Modified.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP).—Protests of Argentina and Uruguay against restrictions on imports of their fresh and chilled meats have resulted in modification of the regulations by the Department of Agriculture, which will permit imports into the United States, under rigid inspection, for a period not to exceed two months. The new orders do not suspend or postpone the regulations which went into effect Jan. 1. They instruct officials to be lenient during two months, so that Argentina and Uruguay may adjust their meat distribution.

EDISON SLEEP LEGEND GETS CONFIRMATION

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 4 (AP).—Thomas A. Edison dozes, if he does not get eight hours of sleep, says Dr. H. M. Johnson of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research, whose experiments on the subject of sleep have convinced him that toxins generated by muscular fatigue act as stimulants to the nervous system, including the brain.

"Mr. Edison sleeps eight hours a night, or more," Dr. Johnson said, terming a myth the story that Edison sleeps only four hours each night. "When he doesn't get that much, he dozes in his chair the next day. That legend has been a standing joke among his associates. Harvey Firestone always gets a good laugh out of it."

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Jan. 4 (AP).—Thomas A. Edison sleeps but little more than four hours a night, and that is no myth, William H. Meadowcroft, secretary of the inventor, said today in reply to the statement of Dr. H. M. Johnson of the Mellon Institute at Pittsburgh.

"I have been associated with Mr. Edison for forty-five years," Mr. Meadowcroft said, "and I know that up until two or three years ago he did not sleep over four or five hours a night. In reality he worked double shift.

"At the urging of Mrs. Edison he increased his sleep to about six and one-half hours a night, but even now he sometimes works through without any sleep."

FAVORS YOUNG FOLK IN POLITICS, SHE SAYS

Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt Believes They Would Aid 'Wretchedly Organized' Democrats.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt outlined a program for strengthening the Democratic Party in New York State, in an address last night before the Democratic Junior League, at its meeting at the Hotel Ambassador.

She said that the Democratic Party was "wretchedly organized" throughout the State although it had unity in the larger cities. She suggested that the State Committee conduct intensive campaigns in two or three Republican counties at a time, saying that such action would increase the party's power in rural districts where it was needed. Mrs. Roosevelt criticized the men of the party for what she called "their inability to comprehend the value of sustained organization."

"Men think they can organize the vote six weeks before election," she said, "but women generally believe in all-year-round active political work. The formation of political clubs for boys and girls over 15 would add to the party's voting strength, and women throughout the State are active in this work."

In reply to questions she said that women were slowly overcoming the masculine idea that politics was a passing interest with women. She attacked the "cut-and-dried" procedure at State Committee meetings, saying that she never had seen any spontaneous action there. She also said that opportunity should be given at these meetings for comparison of individual problems, and that they should dispense with some of the formality to increase cooperation between the members.

ALBEE AIDS ACTORS.

Eleven Troupers Held In Altoona Jail Since Christmas.

ALTOONA, Pa., Jan. 4 (AP).—The plight of eleven actors, men and women, who have been in jail here under $2,500 bond since the day before Christmas following an alleged attack on a clerk in a local hotel on Dec. 19, prompted E. F. Albee, head of the National Vaudeville Artists' Association, to act in their behalf, his interest resulting in their obtaining legal advice today for the first time since their arrest and the assurance of freedom on bond tomorrow.

Edward Madden, Lieutenant of police; Harry Hart, hotel operator, and James Montgomery of Altoona, are also under $2,500 bond under the same warrant that charges the actors with felonious assault with intent to kill. The victim, Thomas Daley of Altoona, is a patient at a local hospital, suffering from concussion of the brain and a fractured skull.

Henry Chesterfield, executive head of the Vaudeville Artists' Association, after making a personal investigation, today expressed himself as "entirely satisfied that all the theatre people are innocent of the crime."

JUDGE RECALLS PRISONER.

Centre of Baumes Laws Fight to Plead—May Not Be Resentenced.

County Judge Franklin Taylor signed an order yesterday in the Kings County Court recalling Harry Simmons from Sing Sing Prison to plead to an information, presented by District Attorney Charles J. Dodd, charging that he is a fourth offender. Simmons will appear tomorrow morning at 10:30.

The order was signed because of a writ of mandamus obtained by Mr. Dodd from the Brooklyn Supreme Court and upheld by the Appellate Division. Simmons is serving a three-year sentence as a first offender. The information reveals three previous felony convictions against him, and Mr. Dodd held that he should have been sentenced to life imprisonment under the Baumes laws. Judge Taylor decided that such a sentence would be too severe, since Simmons was convicted of minor offenses.

The prisoner is being recalled to plead to the information. It is understood that he will not be resentenced, and in that event Mr. Dodd must obtain another mandamus. The courts will then decide on Judge Taylor's stand. In its last decision, the Appellate Division held that Simmons merely had to be arraigned to answer the information. If he pleads not guilty, a jury will decide as to his criminal record.

$25,000 Fire Near Naval Hospital.

Fifteen automobiles were destroyed in the Ill-Bee Garage, 94-208 Flushing Avenue, near the Naval Hospital in Brooklyn yesterday when fire of undetermined origin swept the rear of the garage. Damage was estimated at more than $25,000. No one was injured and the patients in the Naval Hospital were not affected by the flames or smoke. Three alarms were sounded because of the proximity of several large industrial establishments.

AMBROSE M'EVOY, NOTED PAINTER, DIES

WORK BROUGHT HUGE FEES

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Ambrose McEvoy, portrait painter, almost as well known in the United States as in Great Britain, died of pneumonia here today at the age of 49. Mr. McEvoy was a son of Captain McEvoy, noted Irish inventor, who was an officer in the Confederate Army during the American Civil War. He studied at Slade School with Augustus John and Sir William Orpen, but for a long time was left behind by them in the race for fame. His recognition did not come until he realized that his special talent was for romantic portraiture. From then on his progress was rapid and in a few years he became the most successful of British painters.

Among his sitters in this country were Lady Maud Carnegie, Lord Dabernon, John McCormack, the singer, and former Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald.

In New York he painted many persons prominent in the Four Hundred even at a thousand guineas ($5,000) a portrait. His portrait of Mrs. Claude Johnson, widow of one of his stanchest friends and patrons, has just been presented by Mrs. Johnson to the National Gallery of British Arts as a memorial to her husband. It will now be a memorial to McEvoy as well.

During his student days Ambrose McEvoy was a friend of Whistler. His first picture to attract the attention of English society and bring his work into vogue was a full length portrait of the then Duchess of Marlborough, the former Consuelo Vanderbilt, now Mrs. Jacques Balsan of Paris. This picture was exhibited at the Grosvenor Galleries in 1916.

McEvoy's portraits were noted for their style. The artist had the ability to catch some trait which expressed the personality of his sitter and to combine this with a dramatic value which gave his pictures distinction and set them apart from mere conventional reproduction of the sitter's physical characteristics.

He was a member of the New English Art Club, the International Society of Painters and the National Portrait Society. His works are hung in the Luxembourg Galleries in Paris, the National Gallery of British Art in London, the Municipal Gallery of Johannesburg, South Africa, and other galleries.

His mother is a well-known club woman in Brooklyn and a former President of the Brooklyn Woman's Club. He received his B. A. at Columbia in 1924 and his M. A. in 1925. He was manager of the Columbia University gun team, editor and contributor to The Jester and telegraph editor of The Columbian. He was also a member of Sigma Xi, a scientific fraternity of the university.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 5.—The northwestern disturbance has continued to move east-southeastward and it now has two centres, one over Rhode Island (Block Island 29.50 inches) and the other over Western Ontario (Oswego 29.84 inches). It has been attended by rain within the last twenty-four hours in the Middle Atlantic States, and rains or snows in the North Atlantic States, the Ohio valley region and the Upper Ohio Valley. Another disturbance is central off the Northern California coast and is causing rains in the North Pacific States. High pressure prevails from British Columbia and Western Canada southward to the Gulf of Mexico.

The temperature is normal or above at all stations in the United States and Southern Canada and it is more than twenty degrees above normal in portions of the Plains States and Rocky Mountain region. Except for local snows in Western and Northern New York and rain or snow in Northern Maine on Wednesday, fair weather will prevail almost generally east of the Mississippi River during the next two days.

The temperature will continue above normal, but it will fall somewhat Wednesday night in the Northeastern States.

The following storm warning was issued tonight:

Northeast storm warnings display 8:30 P. M., coast of Maine, and warnings down Boston to Delaware Breakwater. Storm of marked intensity over Rhode Island, moving northeastward.

DROP MANVILLE WILL SUIT.

Fifty-five Associates Are to Get $3,000,000 in Stock as Bequests.

Fifty-five executives and department heads of Johns-Manville, Inc., will receive bequests of $3,000,000 in stock under the will of Thomas F. Manville, late head of the company, without further litigation, it became known yesterday, when a suit for the construction of the will was withdrawn, and the executors applied to the Surrogate to have the inheritance tax determined.

Mr. Manville's will, giving 40,000 shares of stock to his associates at half the value, was found possible of construction in fourteen different ways by the Fifth Avenue Bank, named as executor, and for that reason the action to construe the will was brought. The withdrawal was said to be due to the decision of Thomas F. Manville Jr., son, and Lorraine Manville Gould, daughter, the chief heirs, to have the stock disposed of as their father wished. It was said that the son had intended to see that the Johns-Manville employes and executives received any shares of the estate he might gain if the court decided adversely against them in construing the will.

Under the will twenty-one associates of Mr. Manville got stock at half price, which made a gift of about $70,000 to each one, while thirty-four received a gift of stock worth nearly $46,000 each.

The late Theresa F. Irving of this city, a descendant of Washington Irving, bequeathed to the Washington Irving High School a portrait of her famous ancestor. It was learned yesterday at the Board of Education. On acceptance by the board the portrait will be hung in the high school.

IMMIGRATION LAW WORRIES PRESIDENT

Two of Three Quota Investigators Said to Balk at Signing Report.

DIFFER ON POINT OF LAW

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—There is evidence that the Administration is greatly embarrassed by those provisions of the Immigration act of 1924, which require apparently that new quotas of admissible aliens shall be proclaimed by the President on or before April 1 next.

The embarrassment arises chiefly through the fact that under the new method of apportionment prescribed by Congress there will be a marked reduction in the number of immigrants admissible from the Scandinavian countries and that part of Ireland now embraced in the Irish Free State, with a heavy increase in the number admissible from England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland and increases for Italy and Russia.

There are reports that two of the three members of the commission authorized by Congress to ascertain the new quotas with the assistance of experts have declined to sign the report showing what these quotas would be if the new law became effective. The three committeemen are Frank B. Kellogg, Secretary of State; Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, and James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor.

White House Denial.

At the same time denial was given at the White House today to a statement in THE NEW YORK TIMES last Sunday that President Coolidge had requested the commission to suspend its work of ascertaining the new quotas for the reason that it had been discovered that their figures would require a reduction of immigration from Northern Europe, contrary to the purposes of some of the framers of the law.

The statement printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES was based on information obtained in an informed official quarter. In view of the reticent attitude of these authoritatively concerned, it is not possible to give any detailed account of what is being done with reference to the embarrassing situation that confronts the Administration, but enough is known to justify the statement that the provisions of the statute for the allocation of admissible alien immigrants among the various countries of the world is proving a source of much worry in which party political concern is manifest.

While the law known as the Immigration act of May 26, 1924, was designed to direct the President to proclaim the new immigration quotas on or before April 1 of this year, doubt has been raised as to whether the apparent requirement is mandatory. Many officials fervently hope that it is not. A high official of the Government is credited with having given an opinion that it is mandatory, while others construe it as leaving to the discretion of the President whether he shall proclaim the new arrangement of percentages of immigrant admissibles.

The basis of the doubt expressed in regard to the alleged mandatory feature of the provision is apparent from its language. The law says:

"Such proclamation shall be made on or before April 1, 1927. If the proclamation is not made on or before such date quotas proclaimed therein shall not be in effect for any fiscal year beginning before the expiration of ninety days after the date of the proclamation."

In some quarters this is construed as meaning that the President need never make the proclamation of new quotas. The opposition and uncertainty produced by the law is evident from the fact that the Commissioner General of Immigration has recommended that the national quotas provisions of the law be repealed.

National Origins Plan.

Under the Immigration act of 1924 the number of alien immigrants admissible to the United States is fixed at 150,000. The "national origins" plan provides that these 150,000 shall be apportioned among the countries of the world on the basis of the population returns of the census of 1920 in the proportion that may best be understood by giving an example.

It is estimated that of the 1920 population, 51,747,680 residents of the United States were of stock originating in Great Britain and Northern Ireland. Of these, 44,017,628 were descendants of Colonial stock and persons who arrived in the United States from Great Britain and Northern Ireland between 1790 and 1920.

Through this manner of apportionment, instead of through the present method of basing the apportionment on the number of immigrants from Great Britain and Northern Ireland "admitted" to the United States in the single year 1890, the number of persons residing in Great Britain and Northern Ireland who would be admissible to the United States under the proposed new apportionment, with the 150,000 annual limitation, would be increased from 34,007 to 85,135.

Immigration from what is now Free State Ireland would be reduced more than 20,000 by the new process, from Germany more than 30,000, and there would be large proportionate reductions in the number of admissibles from Scandinavian nations and other countries of Northern Europe.

From the standpoint of party politics the situation is disconcerting, with the prospect of resentment aroused among the large Scandinavian, Irish and German populations of the United States.

Doctorless Town Has No Deaths.

DUNBARTON, N. H., Jan. 4 (AP).—The little town of Dunbarton, which does not even boast a resident physician did not have a single death in 1926. Records kept by the town officials disclosed today that although there were several funerals, all were for persons who had died elsewhere and had been brought back to rest in the town cemetery. The last census showed the population of the town to be 405.

"Peur du Froid"

Who but the ingenious Jean Patou would have thought of this clever name for his new fur-lined dalmatique!

The newest fur fashion to be worn under the Winter coat made—much like a bishop's robe, except that it is sleeveless—of an exquisitely soft silk crepe and despite its lining of stenciled lapin, is very, very slim and souple. In fact, when one's coat is open the dalmatique looks just like a frock.

JEAN PATOU created the dalmatique as part of an ensemble. Wanamaker's reproductions of the dalmatique are $195; of the frock, $59.50.

A hat that is unmistakably stamped with the individuality of this clever modiste whose meteoric rise was the sensation of Paris last season. Wanamaker's you know, had the distinction of being first to present her hats to New York.

"Mon Succes"—her latest hat—has much the feeling of the beret, but handled in an altogether new manner, emphasizing that very important backward slant. And, as another proof of its newness, Goupy has made it of felt and Milan straw—for felt and straw are both very important in the new mode, and together they form an unrivaled combination!

Insurance Companies Credit the Baumes Laws and Efficiency of Police for Drop in Crime.

Losses by burglary, theft and hold-ups in this city have decreased in such a marked degree that the burglary insurance companies are hailing 1926 as the most prosperous for this class of risk in the last decade. Insurance men ascribe this condition to the operation of the Baumes laws, a larger police force with greater efficiency attained under Commissioner McLaughlin, and the cooperation given by Judges in the work of supressing crimes.

The executive of one of the companies said yesterday that the loss through theft amounted to approximately $3,000,000 a year. This, he explained, was the loss to the companies and did not represent the total of losses in the New York district. The loss to the companies, he said, had been reduced between 30 and 40 per cent. in the last twelve months.

"The most important local interest before the New York public today is undoubtedly the Baumes laws," said William A. Thompson, Vice President of the National Surety Company. "These laws have now been in effect six months, and during that time they have been so effective in preventing and reducing crime and forcing professional criminals to cease their dangerous activities that the robbery, burglary and hold-up losses of this company have actually been reduced 39 per cent. in dollars, and 25 per cent. in numbers. In the last six months of 1925, while the crime wave was still at its height, the amount of burglary and robbery insurance claims paid by the National Surety Company in Greater New York was $135,607.97.

"In the closing half of the year, during which the Baumes laws were in effect, the burglary and robbery insurance claims paid by this company in Greater New York were $96,091.62. The number of burglary and robbery claims paid by our company in the last half of 1925 in the same territory was 406, while in the same period for 1926 the number of New York claims fell to 303, a decrease of 25 per cent. The volume of our business both in premium income and in the number of policies written during the last half of 1926 was somewhat in excess of the figures for 1925.

"This reduction is in some measure due to extra care in underwriting and administrative restrictions enforced by the company regarding some of the most hazardous lines of burglary insurance, but there is no question that the decrease in losses is chiefly due to the working out of the Baumes laws and the vigilance and spirit of the Police Department.

"The burglary insurance companies, representing many millions of capital, are heartily in favor of the new laws and very earnestly urge that they be kept strong and stern. The criminals will be driven out of our community and the jurisdiction to which they flee will likewise enact similar severe measures of punishment, and the result will inevitably be a general reduction of crime and losses throughout the whole country."

Burglary insurance men said that house and apartment burglaries have been practically cut in half during 1926. They give credit to the police, and point to the fact that an increased police force has increased watchfulness and made this class of crime unprofitable for the criminal. They report the practical elimination of the fire escape thief and the dishonest window cleaner.

DE LAMAR SUIT HEARD.

Suit by Thomas Murtagh of 500 West 159th Street, former Battalion Chief, against Miss Alice De Lamar, daughter of a former Vice President of the International Nickel Company, for $150,000 for injuries alleged to have been received on June 16, 1924, at a fire in a garage at Miss De Lamar's home, 143 East Fortieth Street, proceeded yesterday before Justice Philip J. McCook and a jury in New York County Supreme Court.

Thomas J. O'Neill, Murtagh's lawyer, alleged that C. F. Brown, an employe of Miss De Lamar, had erroneously informed the Battalion Chief that there was no fire burning in the basement of the garage. He said Murtagh then entered as flames in a hot-water heater caused an explosion which disfigured and injured him so that he was forced to retire from the department.

W. L. Glenney, lawyer for the defendant, outlined the defense as admitting such a fire was burning, but maintaining that Brown had so informed Murtagh, and that when he entered the basement he did so with this knowledge and therefore at his own risk.

The case was adjourned till 10 o'clock this morning. Miss De Lamar, who received $10,000,000 of her father's $20,000,000 estate, was not expected to take the stand.

FIGHTS SHARK WITH FISTS.

Australian Boy Leaps on Fish's Back to Save Comrade, Who Later Dies.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Jan. 4 (AP).—The heroism of Stanley Gibbs, 15, of Port Hacking, who fought a shark for the life of a friend, proved unavailing today when the companion died of injuries the fish inflicted.

According to dispatches of the encounter reaching here, Mr. Gibbs jumped overboard and straddled the back of the shark when it attacked Marwyn Allum, 15, a comrade. With nothing but his fists as weapons, he frightened the fish so it released its hold on the younger boy.

A second attack on Allum, however, as he was being dragged in the boat, inflicted further injuries from which he died a few hours later.

Only an Honest Bootlegger, Says Man Held as Pickpocket

In the line-up at Police Headquarters yesterday morning was Abraham Fisher of 240 Rivington Street, known to the police as the "crying pickpocket," who had been arrested Monday night at the Astor Place station of the east side subway.

"What are you doing here?" asked Inspector Coughlin.

"I'm going straight," protested Fisher. "I was just taking this bag to a friend's house to get some whisky and sell it and make an honest dollar. On the level, Inspector, I'm going straight."

His assertion that he was only an honest bootlegger failed to impress the police, for he earned his sobriquet by protesting, after practically every one of his thirty arrests since 1905, that the detectives "had him wrong" and that he was "going straight." In Tombs Court he was held without bail for a hearing today.

BEQUEST TOO SMALL FOR TOWNE PROJECT

Court Asked to Approve Change in Terms of His Will to Erect Building for Employes.

But These Are Worth $420,000, Not Half Enough to Pay for Structure, Trustees of Fund Say.

Although the late Henry Russell Towne, Chairman of the Board of the Yale & Towne Manufacturing Company, left more than $500,000 in his will to erect and maintain a service building for the 4,500 Yale & Towne employes at Stamford, Conn., the sum was not half enough to complete his project. Suit was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by trustees named in the will for approval of a substitute plan they have effected.

The will provided a gift of 6,000 shares of Yale & Towne stock to be held by trustees, who were to be the three oldest members of the Yale & Towne directorate in point of service. Schuyler Merritt, John H. Towne and Joseph A. Horne qualified as trustees. The suit filed yesterday was brought in their name against the Attorney General of New York State, the Bankers Trust Company as depositary of the trust and the Yale & Towne Manufacturing Company. The complaint says Mr. Towne had contemplated a building at a cost then estimated at $650,000, exclusive of equipment, but which cannot be built now for less than $750,000 to $1,000,000.

The trustees say they have entered into an arrangement with the Yale & Towne directors by which a service building will be erected on land within the plant at a cost of $282,215. The company has agreed to pay the taxes and maintenance cost of the building, which, with the welfare work, will cost $40,000 a year, it is estimated. The trustees also assert that the 6,000 shares are worth $420,000 at the present market value. An answer filed by the Yale & Towne Company pleads that the relief asked for by the trustees be granted.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—A dispatch from Moscow, via Copenhagen, announced that one of Russia's most famous actors, M. Larski, has been executed at Archangel by order of the secret police.

M. Larski was formerly a member of the Russian Imperial Theatre Company and was intimately connected with members of the Russian aristocracy who emigrated to foreign countries.

J. B. DUKE'S ESTATE NOW $53,451,778

EXECUTORS FILE ACCOUNT

The estate of James Buchanan Duke, former President of the American Tobacco Company, amounted to $86,809,140.02 when he died in October, 1925, which was increased by accrued interest and principal to $89,704,859.60, but has now shrunk to $53,451,778.76 through payments of bequests, taxes and expenses, according to an accounting filed by the executors yesterday at Somerville, N. J.

The payments included the following: Administrative expenses, $84,804.75; funeral expenses, $16,156.12; debts, $731,916.82; Federal inheritance tax, $6,560,061.53; State inheritance tax, $2,581,356.57; specific bequests, $23,570,545.10; residuary bequests, $2,265,668.75; interest on bonds for trust fund for Mrs. Nanaline Duke, his wife, $81,418.13; interest on bonds for trust fund for Doris Duke, 13-year-old daughter, $377,718.

The accounting showed that when Mr. Duke died he owned Government, State and municipal bonds valued at $18,605,700.71, and industrial and railroad bonds and stocks valued at $62,448,383.70. Cash, notes and accounts receivable amounted to $4,524,624.71. Furniture in his homes at 1 East Seventy eighth Street, Newport, R. I., and Charlotte, N. C., and in his office at 511 Fifth Avenue was valued at $681,021.60, his automobiles at $19,400 and his private car and equipment at $35,000. Income collected since his death amounted to $2,597,580.12; assets received since his death, $60,409.33, and realization of assets, $737,729.99.

Somerset County, N. J., which incurred heavy expenses from the Hall-Mills trial, is entitled to 5 per cent. (more than $125,000) of the State inheritance tax. Surrogate Calvin McMurtrey of Somerset County is expected to get about $39,000 in fees.

The executors are Mrs. Duke, George H. Allen and William R. Perkins, business associates of Mr. Duke. Mr. Duke maintained a 20,000-acre estate with thirty-five miles of paved roads and many beautiful statues and landscapes in Somerset County. His widow and daughter spend some time on the estate, but do not maintain it in its former splendor.

Mr. Duke's will left most of his estate to his wife and daughter, but added $10,000,000 to the $40,000,000 Duke endowment which he had established in 1924 for Duke University in Durham, N. C., and $7,000,000 from the residue to the same institution.

WORK FOR FRENCH JOBLESS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—The Council of Ministers devoted most of its meeting today to consideration of the unemployment problem in France and the means of combatting a serious crisis should the fears of some pessimistic observers be realized.

Despite the alarming prognostications made in December by certain labor leaders, Albert Sarraut, Minister of the Interior, and André Tardieu, Minister of Public Works, told their colleagues that no unemployment crisis existed.

For 50,000 men reported to be out of jobs throughout France there is more than enough temporary employment to provide them with the necessities of life. In fact the Department of Public Works alone has jobs for 10,000 men, but so far only 500 have come forward for them.

The official figures for Paris are 13,000 workless, although it is explained that this does not represent the total but only those who have reported themselves at the Government offices.

An undetermined number—probably more than 100,000 men and women—are, however, working half time in France and a still further increase in this class may be expected in January and February, according to economic experts. The traditional French thrift which prompts every one from laborer up to put away a certain percentage of earnings serves well in unemployment periods such as the present and accounts in a measure for the relatively few who report themselves to the official agencies as without jobs.

The metallurgical trades, silk, leather and de luxe trades in Paris and the hotels are hardest hit so far, but unemployment is fairly evenly spread over the country with the result that no feeling of panic or deep concern is yet apparent among the working classes.

Agitation continues in favor of the return of foreign workmen to their own countries and no more foreign labor is permitted to come to France.

SERVICES IN NEW CHURCH.

Pre-Dedication Exercises Held at Park Avenue M. E. Edifice.

The first pre-dedication service of the new Park Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Eighty-sixth Street near Park Avenue, was held last night with a former pastor, the Rev. Arthur Thompson, and a former Sunday school pupil, the Rev. George Mooney of Paterson, N. J., contributing reminiscences of old days. Others who spoke were the Rev. John L. Davis of Grace Methodist Church, and the present pastor, Dr. P. G. Weyant.

This evening there will be addresses by Dr. Wallace MacMullen and Dr. John R. Finley. Tomorrow will be "Community Night," and Friday there will be a devotional service conducted by the Rev. Fred W. Hanan. On Sunday the official dedication will take place. The new church cost $250,000.

"QUEEN OF COOKS" HERE.

Miss Rosa Lewis, proprietor of the Cavendish Hotel in London, arrived yesterday on the Cunard liner Berengaria. She is known as the "Queen of Cooks," and her dishes were greatly in demand by the late King Edward VII. She is in this country to dispose of seven rare tapestries. Asked what she thought was the right sort of hotel she replied:

"It should be without music and without palm trees knocking you in the face. I like the sort of a place where John can take Mary for a good meal and if Alfred wants to come in it will not be too high-toned for him."

Mayor Performs His Second Wedding, Marrying Couple in Ritz-Carlton Hotel

Mayor Walker performed his second wedding ceremony yesterday when he went to the Ritz-Carlton Hotel and married Miss Florence Bryan Selwyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Maitland Goldsmith of 260 West Seventy-second Street, and Harold D. Wimpfheimer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Wimpfheimer of 825 Fifth Avenue. The wedding was in the Crystal Room and was witnessed by relatives and friends of the couple.

The first time that the Mayor exercised his magisterial right to perform such a ceremony was under somewhat different conditions. It was on Oct. 4, 1926, when he married "Mr. and Mrs. Broadway" in the presence of 50,000 residents of Brooklyn at the end of a campaign by the Brooklyn Broadway Merchants' Association. At that time he married Miss Dorothy L. Krinsler and Arlie N. Marton of 1,000 Halsey Street, Brooklyn, on a platform erected at the intersection of Broadway, Lafayette and Patchen Avenues.

At yesterday's ceremony Mrs. Clarence Wimpfheimer was matron of honor and Miss Eleanor Rothschild and Miss Mildred Wimpfheimer were maids of honor. The other bridal attendants were Mrs. Harry Frank Jr., Mrs. Sylvester May, Mrs. J. H. Newman Jr., Mrs. Edwin Hilson, Miss Amy Wimelbach and Miss Florence Levy.

Clarence Wimpfheimer, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The ushers were Bernard Denzer, Edgar Rossin, Harry Frank Jr., Robert Oppenheimer, Robert Hammershlag, George Kurzman, Fred Heimerdinger, Wallace Meyers, Louis Loeb and Walter Oppenheimer. The ceremony was followed by a dinner and dance.

After a wedding trip in Europe, Mr. and Mrs. Wimpfheimer will live in this city.

M'GINNIES SPEAKER FOR THE THIRD TIME

Assemblyman Russell B. Dunmore of Oneida, Is Expected to Be Named Today as Majority Leader.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 4.—Officers for the 1927 session of the Legislature were nominated in party caucuses at the Capitol tonight.

Assemblyman Joseph A. McGinnies, Republican, of Chautauqua, was unanimously renominated for Speaker. This will mark the third time that he has been chosen to preside over the sessions of the lower house. Immediately after he is formally elected tomorrow he is expected to announce the appointment of Assemblyman Russell B. Dunmore of Oneida as majority leader, succeeding Simon L. Adler of Rochester. Assemblyman Edmund B. Jenks of Broome, leader of the dry forces and ally of the Anti-Saloon League, has announced that the drys were out to show their strength and that he would make a fight for the majority leadership. Tonight, however, it was declared that he was out of the running.

Senator John Knight of Wyoming, who for the last three years has acted as President pro tem. of the Senate, was renominated for that post at the caucus of the Republican members of the Upper House. Senator Bernard Downing of New York City was renominated by the Democratic Senators for minority leader. This will mark his second year in that post.

Assemblyman Maurice Bloch of New York City was nominated for Speaker at the caucus of the Democrats. This means that he automatically will become Democratic floor leader, a post in which he has served for the last few years.

Fred W. Hammond of Syracuse was renominated for Clerk of the Assembly for his fifteenth term. Harry W. Haines of Yonkers was renominated for Sergeant-at-Arms. He has served in that place for fourteen years.

Ernest A. Fay of St. Lawrence was renominated by the Republican members of the Senate for Clerk. C. R. Hotaling of Selkirk was nominated for Sergeant-at-Arms and Henry Whitbeck of Cherry Valley for Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms.

APPRECIATES MILK ISSUE.

Governor Thinks He Should Do Something for Bullock.

ALBANY, Jan. 4 (AP).—Governor Smith told newspaper correspondents at the Capitol today that he felt under moral obligation to William F. Bullock, head of the Bureau of Research of the Republican State Committee, whose investigations made the New York City milk supply one of the issues of the last campaign. In the course of a conversation on the milk issue one of the correspondents said jokingly that he understood Bullock was on the Governor's payroll.

"No, I'm not paying his salary," Governor Smith said, "but I do feel that I am under moral obligation to do something for him."

SMITH STICKS TO WORD.

ALBANY, Jan. 4 (AP).—Governor Smith today declined to make an address in Altoona, Pa. A committee from the Pennsylvania city extended the invitation.

The Governor said his chances of going outside the State to speak were like "Kathleen Mavourneen."

"It may be for years or forever," he said, paraphrasing the song.

The Governor explained that in his inaugural address he had said he would do nothing to win the Presidential nomination except to keep at work in Albany.

PIPE DREAM, SAYS GOVERNOR

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 4.—When asked about the statement of Charles D. Hilles, new Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Republican State Committee, that the political strength of Governor Smith was waning, the Governor dismissed it today in one sentence.

"Every Republican is entitled to his pipe dream this early in January," was his comment.

To Dedicate Charity Headquarters.

Congressman Emanuel Celler, President of the United Jewish Aid Societies of the Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities, will be the principal speaker Sunday at the dedication of the new headquarters of the societies at Lewis and Myrtle Avenues. Other speakers will be Commissioner of Charities Bird S. Coler and Supreme Court Justice Mitchell May. The new building will contain four new departments; a dietetic department, psychiatric department, dental clinic and diagnosis clinic.

STATE INCOME TAX LIKELY TO BE LOWER

Phelps Will Again Offer a Bill for 25 Per Cent Reduction by Legislature.

HE WOULD ABOLISH LEVY

Assemblyman Lord Plans to Ask Wiping Out of Direct Tax and Restoration of $20,700,000.

ALANY, Jan. 4.—A bill providing for a 25 per cent. reduction in the State income tax, sponsored by Assemblyman Phelps, Republican, of New York City, will be one of the first measures of importance to be introduced at the 1927 session of the Legislature when it convenes tomorrow at noon.

Assemblyman Phelps fathered the income tax reduction bills of 1925 and 1926 which had been urged by Governor Smith. These measures saved more than $11,000,000 for the income taxpayers of the State in each of those years.

Despite the fact that the cost of State Government for the next fiscal year may reach the $200,000,000 mark, which would be an increase of about $16,000,000 over last year's budget, the general belief at the Capitol is that the fiscal leaders of the Legislature, by keeping the special appropriations as low as possible, will be able to reduce the income tax again.

In a statement accompanying the announcement of his purpose, Mr. Phelps said:

"Governor Smith has favored these bills at the last two sessions and I am confident that he will again throw his support to a measure of this character. The personal income tax hits the largest portion of our population and works a hardship upon many of our workers, heads of families and young men and women who are relied upon for the support of families. This should not be. The war has been over for eight years and it is time, I am persuaded, to relieve the people of unnecessary burdens. Personally I am in favor of abolishing the income tax altogether."

The Assemblyman then pointed out that figures issued by the Controller's office indicated that the State's resources for the next fiscal year would exceed $204,500,000 if the total appropriations did not exceed the figure of last year, and a surplus of $18,500,000 would be available to provide a cut in the income tax, Mr. Phelps estimated.

"Of course," continued the statement, "the amount of direct tax to be levied must be determined after all the appropriations bills have been passed on or determined upon. I feel, however, that this tax, too, which bears so directly upon the property owner and the rent payer, should be limited to a figure not exceeding that of last year, 1 mill.

"The State of New York should set an example for her citizens by practicing economy in the first place and by giving the taxpayers the benefit of that economy. These are days of tremendously high prices, and it is only fair and just that the State should do everything in its power to relieve the situation until the operation of economic law brings us back to something like normal conditions."

An attempt will be made by Assemblyman Bert Lord, Republican, of Chenango, to provide something entirely new and almost unheard of in tax reduction. He is planning to introduce a resolution calling for the abolition of the direct tax on the ground that it is not necessary. He said he also was considering the introduction of a resolution which would call for the return to the taxpayers of $20,700,000 collected last year by the State through the direct tax.

This announcement by Mr. Lord caused the fiscal leaders of the Legislature to smile. They pointed out that it would be utterly impossible to abolish the direct State tax because it is a tax that balances the budget. The direct tax is never fixed until the closing hours of the session, when the Legislature is in a position to know just how much money will be needed to carry on the affairs of State. If the income from other sources is adequate, no direct tax is levied on realty.

CUNIFFE'S MOTHER TO SUE.

Claims $11,900 Found on Bandit's Body by Police of Detroit.

Mrs. Bridget Cunniffe of 772 Ninth Avenue, mother of James (Killer) Cunniffe, will sue the police of Detroit for the recovery of $11,900 found in his pockets after the shooting that resulted in his death and the deaths of two others in Detroit on Oct. 30, 1926. This was revealed through the granting of letters of administration to her on the gangster's estate, in the Surrogate's Court yesterday.

In her petition Mrs. Cunniffe says the assets of her son's estate consist of "a claim against the Department of Police of the City of Detroit, Mich., approximately in the sum of $11,900 which represents a sum of money seized by the police and removed from the body of the deceased."

It was said at the office of Ryan & Bowers of 247 Park Avenue, Mrs. Cunniffe's attorneys, that she believes this sum was not loot from the numerous robberies committed by the bandit. A contest with the Government for the money is probable, it was indicated, as the Government considers the sum to be part of the $180,000 taken in the mail robbery in Elizabeth, N. J.

LEGION CHIEF URGES LOANS TO VETERANS

TAYLOR REPLY REASSURING

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—An appeal to bankers to accept the adjusted service certificates of World War veterans as security for loans was made today by John Thomas Taylor, Vice Chairman of the American Legion's National Legislative Committee, in a telegram to Melvin A. Traylor of the First Trust and Savings Bank, Chicago, who is President of the American Bankers Association.

Mr. Taylor wired Mr. Traylor after he had been informed that hundreds of war veterans carrying their insurance certificates had crowded Washington and other banks yesterday seeking loans which they did not get. The certificates acquired a legal loan value on Jan. 1, and, while banks in Washington were crowded yesterday and some today by veterans with certificates, it is said that not more than 10 per cent. of the applications were granted.

Mr. Taylor's telegram read:

"Reports from all parts of the country show that comparatively few loans are being granted by banks on adjusted service certificates, and that in many instances banks are refusing these loans altogether. Under the law there is more than ample money in the Treasury to protect loans on certificates, the Veterans Bureau now having $320,000,000 reserve for their redemption.

"This disposes of the question of safety. The Federal Reserve banks are required under the law to rediscount such loans made by the banks, so this disposes of the question of tying up bank funds. Therefore, there only remains the question of whether the bank officials of the nation are willing to sacrifice a little time and trouble in behalf of the men who freely gave on the average nearly a year of their time to the colors eight years ago.

"Unlike the making of these loans, this sacrifice of time on the part of the veterans was accompanied by great risk, not of money, but of life itself. The type of man who now needs to borrow upon his certificate is the very type who has insufficient funds to maintain a bank account and therefore would not previously be a customer of the bank from which he seeks a loan.

"We appeal to you as the head of the American Bankers Association to remind your members that they should not so soon forget the sacrifices of these men eight short years ago, from which your members among others were the beneficiaries."

Mr. Traylor Sends Reply.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 (AP).—Fear of red tape in connection with payment of defaulted loans and doubt in the matter of proper identification and genuineness of signatures today were assigned as reasons why banks in general have hesitated to loan freely to World War veterans on adjusted service certificates in a telegram sent by Melvin A. Taylor, President of the American Bankers Association, to John Thomas Taylor, Washington representative of the American Legion. Mr. Traylor's message was in response to an appeal from Mr. Taylor.

"Impression is that the Government will be hypercritical on the question of signatures and identification," Mr. Traylor's reply said in part. "This, in my opinion, is the deterring factor, rather than the question of slowness of payment or tying up of funds. If proper authorities can give reassuring publicity on this point, I am sure the attitude of the banks in general will be entirely favorable."

In Favor of Making Loans.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—The Clearing House Committee of the Philadelphia Clearing House Association voted today to recommend to the association that the banks and trust companies of this city cooperate in making loans to World War veterans on their adjusted compensation certificates. This action followed yesterday's refusal of local banks to make such loans when thousands of ex-service men, armed with the certificates, sought cash for them or information as to why they were not honored.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 4.—Some Baltimore banks have relaxed their rule governing loans on soldiers' adjusted compensation certificates to the extent that they will make advances to their own clients or to friends of clients, provided the loan does not exceed the percentage stamped on the face of the certificates and is sought by the veteran named in the certificate. Bank officials, however, do not care for the business because of the rigid rules the Government has adopted and the almost endless amount of work to keep track of the loans and the borrowers.

BANKS HERE READY TO LEND.

Gen. Hines Stresses Importance of Identification of Veterans.

Brig. Gen. Frank D. Hines, Director of the Veterans' Bureau, who came to New York yesterday from Washington for conferences with leading bankers on loans to former service men on adjusted compensation certificates, declared that the banks generally had announced their willingness to make such loans and that no veteran who could properly identify himself should have any trouble in obtaining cash on his certificate.

General Hines and two of his assistants, following a survey, said that by noon fourteen banks, including several of the large Wall Street institutions, had given their cooperation and that doubtless many others would follow their example. The General declared that early reports of unwillingness of banks to make the loans were due to misunderstandings and the difficulty which is always encountered in getting new projects started.

"Veterans should remember," he said, "that adequate identification is one of the essentials. It would be well for the veterans to carry their discharge papers as the readiest means of identification.

"If the veteran fails to pay the money when due the bank holds his note, the certificate and accompanying affidavits for six months, after which the papers are turned over to the Veterans Bureau. We will promptly redeem the note with interest. The bureau then will hold the certificate and the veteran at any time may pay off the loan to us. If he does not do so the amount of the endowment policy will be paid to him at maturity, minus the amount of the loan. If he dies in the meantime his estate will receive the full amount, less the amount he had borrowed on his note.

"The banks may be assured of prompt handling of their business with the bureau. We will be prepared to clear all claims on the day they are received."

Veterans seeking loans continued to phone and visit the State headquarters of the American Legion in the Hall of Records. So great was the demand for information that it became necessary for State Adjutant Ralph W. Neelands to assign Clifford Novelli to handle the inquiries.

James J. Kennedy, Deputy Superintendent of Banks in this city, said that the certificates, according to an opinion of the Attorney General, could not be accepted by savings banks.

Philadelphia Craves Quiet; Starts War on Noisy Motorist

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—Civic groups have decided that the Quaker City is too noisy. As a result, the Director of Public Safety, George Elliott, today started a police campaign to rout the noisemakers.

The principal target will be the noisy motorist. In a combined report, doctors attack him as "detrimental to the health of the community," the Board of Education as an interference "with the discipline and proper instruction of pupils," and the business men as a contributor to "a decided decrease in the efficiency in their business transactions."

The city also should be made less smoky, in the opinion of committees from the United Business Men's Association, who instructed attorneys today to draw up an anti-smoke ordinance.

UNION CITY OFFICIALS NOW WORRY ABOUT PAY

Two sets of officials, one appointed by the Republican Mayor and the other by the Democratic majority in the City Council, continued to hold office in Union City, N. J., yesterday with little of the friction that marked the previous day.

All of those holding disputed places, however, expressed anxiety as to what would happen on Jan. 15, which is pay day. It is believed that none of the officials will receive pay until a court decision on which of them shall rule is forthcoming.

Practically the only strife during the day occurred in the Recorder's Court when Morris Umansky, the Republican Recorder, refused to allow William E. Day, Democratic clerk, to act as court officer and ordered policemen to remove Day. City Treasurer A. Michael Lepore, who has been acting as legal adviser in most of the disputes, ruled that Day would be living up to the letter of his appointment if he merely reported for duty each day and then left. Day thereupon departed.

Last night about 600 citizens were present at a meeting of the City Council, and policemen were on guard. The Democratic majority forced through the appointment of all Democratic members to every committee.

PATROLMAN A SUICIDE.

Patrolman Thomas Murphy of Traffic B was found dead in his home at 2,620 Bailey Avenue, the Bronx, last night with a bullet wound in his right temple. The body was found by Patrolman Seimers of the Kingsbridge Station, who had gone to look for Murphy when he failed to report for duty. The body was found in the bedroom, a service pistol beside it. An ambulance doctor pronounced Murphy dead, and the police called the death suicide.

Murphy leaves a wife and two small children. It was learned that she had gone, taking the, two children with her, to the home of her father, who is a police lieutenant, several days ago. On the table by the side of Murphy's bed was found a copy of a Kingston (N. Y.) newspaper with large headlines, "Three Students Commit Suicide."

IDLE HEART IS REVIVED.

Surgeons Restore Beats Before Operating on Man's Skull.

Having been revived after his heart had stopped, David Newburgh, 47 years old, a carpenter, living at 398 Howard Avenue, Brooklyn, is in Flushing Hospital in a critical condition. Newburgh was knocked down by a plank while working on a building at Kissena Boulevard and Maple Avenue, Flushing, yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Roseborough of Flushing Hospital diagnosed his injury as a fractured skull and took him to the hospital. Just as the ambulance arrived there Dr. Roseborough observed that Newburgh's heart had failed. In the operating room artificial respiration started Newburgh's heart beating again.

When this had been accomplished Dr. Roseborough and Dr. Joseph Thomas removed about two square inches of the skull to relieve pressure on the brain. Newburgh's chance of recovery was said to be slight.

TWO BURNED TO DEATH.

Special to The New York Times.

FREEHOLD, N. J., Jan. 4.—Charles S. Cook, a farmer of Howell, near Freehold, and his son, Howard, 10 years old, were burned to death, and Cook's wife lies in a serious condition in the Long Branch hospital, as the result of a fire that destroyed their home late last night.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook and their three children were in the living room when Howard and his father went to the kitchen to get a lamp to light their way to their bedrooms. Howard dropped the lamp and instantly father and son were enveloped in flames. Mrs. Cook ran upstairs to help them, but was forced to leap from a window for safety. She was burned on the neck and arms.

TREASURY SURPLUS UP TO $218,279,937

Receipts in First Half of the Fiscal Year Indicate About $500,000,000 for Full Year.

HEAVY PAYMENTS EXPECTED

Income Tax Collections for the Next Six Months Likely to Exceed $2,000,000,000.

WILL CUT DEBT A BILLION

Failure of Congress to Refund Any Taxes Will Swell Available Funds for Its Reduction.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 4.—The Treasury Department ended the first six months of the fiscal year 1926-27 on Jan. 1 with a surplus of $218,279,937.83. As income and profits taxes in the second half of the year, ending June 30, 1927, probably will be considerably heavier than has been estimated, because of the exceptional earnings of many corporations, a surplus of about $500,000,000 at the close of the fiscal year appears to be indicated, although officials still cling to the earlier prediction of $383,000,000 made by President Coolidge in his budget message to Congress. On Jan. 1, 1926, the surplus was $126,593,300.

Income taxes for the complete month of June were $429,228,919, about $6,000,000 less than had been estimated by Treasury experts, but $74,266,332 more than received during June, 1926, when the total was $355,962,587. For the six months of the fiscal year 1927, ended Dec. 31, $1,046,840,958 had been received in income taxes, compared with $855,769,015 in the same period one year ago, an increase of $191,101,194.

Miscellaneous taxes collected for the six months were only $334,455,345, compared with $487,889,572 in the same period in 1926, a drop of $153,433,226, due to the fact that some of the miscellaneous taxes were decreased or repealed. Customs receipts, reflecting heavy imports, were $318,617,897 in the six months of the fiscal year 1927, compared with $292,621,815 in the same period in the fiscal year 1926.

Heavier Receipts Expected.

Income tax receipts received during the last six months of the fiscal year 1927, from Jan. 1 to June 30, 1927, will be assessed against incomes earned in the calendar year 1926, and it is generally agreed that these incomes have exceeded those earned in 1925, on which the taxes paid for the first six months of the fiscal year 1927 were calculated. This and the fact that the higher corporation income tax rate of 13½ per cent. will be in force, it is believed by some experts, means that the income tax payments in the next six months will exceed $2,000,000,000, well above the total which officials are now willing to admit.

On the basis of the figures already at hand, it appears that the public debt will be reduced at least another billion dollars over the fiscal year 1927, ending on June 30. Funds set aside for the sinking fund and other items applicable by law to debt reduction, such as the payments received from foreign nations on their wartime debts, will aggregate about $566,000,000, and as there is small chance that Congress will make a return of any kind to the taxpayers, these may be added tentatively to the surplus revenues of $383,000,000 predicted by President Coolidge and which it is generally admitted represents the minimum.

This would show a debt reduction already practically assured of $949,000,000. As the chances are that the surplus will be well above $383,000,000, and may reach $500,000,000, it is a conservative forecast that the total debt reduction will be well over $1,000,000,000.

The gross public debt, which does not take into account money in the treasury general fund, was $19,643,183,079 at the beginning of the present fiscal year. The treasury statement of Dec. 31 shows the gross debt to be $19,074,655,337, and thus $568,517,742 debt reduction already has been made in the first six months of the fiscal year 1927.

As of Dec. 31, 1926, there also was $277,010,246 in the treasury general fund, so that the net debt—gross debt less the general fund—was only $18,847,655,091 on that date. On the basis of transactions during the calendar year 1926 the total debt reduction amounted to $1,173,506,301.

CALLS HELEN DANGEROUS.

Professor Erskine Says Her Beauty Was Deadly.

Professor John Erskine related ancient legends concerning Helen of Troy yesterday, not the familiar story which Homer told, but more picturesque and even scandalous accounts found in other classics. Most writers agreed, according to Professor Erskine, that she was ravishingly beautiful, but immoral and without brains.

Not long ago the author of "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" and "Galahad" was a little-known, scholarly lecturer at Columbia. Yesterday he was besieged for his autograph by many of the 1,200 women and a few dozen men who crowded the Town Hall to hear him lecture under the auspices of the League for Political Education.

"Helen stands as perhaps the only example in all literature of the terror of perfect beauty," said Professor Erskine. "Perfect beauty is harmless while it is being sought, but when it is attained it becomes dangerous and even deadly. It is my belief that Helen was a sad figure. She was confronted by a moral dilemma which confronts most of us today. We all like to be good, and we all like to be alive."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Yesterday's stock market was literally divided into two parts. In the morning there was a continuation of the impressive liquidation which has been under way since the turn of the year. In the afternoon the tone brightened up and when a few of the market leaders had demonstrated their ability to advance, most of the stocks on the list followed rather buoyantly. Short-covering, of course, played a big part in this quick turn-about in trend and was to large extent responsible for the gains ranging from fractions to as much as 4¼ points which were exhibited at the end of the day as a result of the erratic fluctuations.

The day's news from the stock market standpoint, at least, was rather mixed. The extra dividend of 75 cents declared by directors of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé road was hardly in line with Wall Street anticipation and the shares of this road sold down sharply, losing more than 4 points on the day. It is difficult to see just how the declaration of an extra dividend for the benefit of stockholders of a corporation, even though it is a conservative one, can be construed as a financial disappointment. Just at the moment, however, Wall Street is in a mood to express a keen measure of regret if its most optimistic prophecies are not completely fulfilled. An example of the same sort occurred last week when there developed a sharp decline in Allied Dye and Chemical shares, when the directors did not completely fulfill the forecasts which had been made of their probable decision. Possibly, these day-to-day fluctuations represent nothing more than the blowing hot and cold of purely speculative sentiment and will be forgotten are the month has run its course or, at least, will have been crowded into the background by the development of more important financial news.

There was continued ease yesterday in the market for money and prognostications made before the turn of the year that rates would work definitely easier when year-end settlements had been completed bid fair to come true. Call loans continued at 5 per cent., but there was some moderate and fractional shading of the time rate, while sixty-day acceptances dropped one-eighth to 3⅝-3⅝. So far as bankers are able to see, conditions in the money market for the next month or so are not likely to vary a great deal from those which obtained during November and December. The belief is widely expressed that the country will be confronted with an over-supply rather than an under-supply of available funds and that rates are likely to work lower.

In only one other market were the price movements yesterday worthy of note. This was in wheat, which declined sharply, on reports of exceptionally big crops and heavy shipments from the Argentine. Prices broke from 2 to 2½ cents per bushel in the active months, carrying them to new low levels for the season. In other commodities prices were nominal and fluctuations narrow and quite without significance.

Trading on the Stock Exchange, as has been the case every day this year, was of good-sized proportions, running well above the 1,400,000 share mark. These figures are being established daily on what is to large extent professional trading. There is no evidence to be seen that the general public is any more interested in the stock market now than it was during the last month of the old year, when trading was admittedly about 90 per cent. professional.

SANTA FE DECLARES 75C EXTRA DIVIDEND

139,200 SHARES ARE SOLD

Following a policy of conservatism, the directors of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway limited an extra dividend on the road's shares yesterday to 75 cents and declined to say whether the extra would be continued in future quarterly periods.

The additional payment is the first extra to be declared by the Santa Fe and, while regarded in some circles as a favorable development, failed to meet the expectations of the Wall Street group which had been talking of the possibility of a 40 per cent. stock or a 10 per cent. cash dividend. The result was a falling market in the shares which left them at the end of yesterday's trading 4¾ points below the previous day's close.

An index of the intense interest in the directors' action was seen in the fact that Atchison sales for the day on the New York Stock Exchange reached 139,200 shares, or nearly a tenth of total shares of all classes traded in on the Exchange. In the first two hours of trading 65,000 shares changed hands on rumors that the declaration would not be so large as was expected. The price was down more than 4 points when an announcement of the dividend appeared on the tickers. This read: "Three per cent. Santa Fe common dividend."

Announcement Recalled.

The stock started upward, but had gone hardly a point when the tickers flashed: "Please cancel the 3 per cent. extra dividend. Only one extra dividend of 75 cents was declared." The error was due to a misunderstanding of an oral announcement made by an official of the railroads.

An irregular market followed. The shares first dropped to 162¾, the low for the day; later sold at 163, and finally closed the day at 163¾. The dividend was announced orally, it was said, as "three-quarters of one per cent. extra" and was understood to mean three quarterly dividends of 1 per cent.

The refusal of the President of the road, W. B. Storey, and the directors to indicate whether the extra would be continued left the question open to guessing. Many bankers were of the opinion yesterday that the road would continue to pay 75 cents additional each quarter, thereby placing the stock on a 10 per cent. annual basis. They said a management of as extreme conservatism as that of the Santa Fe would not be likely to take a step backward. Others felt that it was unsafe to make any prediction.

Improvements for 1927.

The Executive Committee of the road at the meeting authorized the purchase of ten new locomotives as part of the 1927 expenditure program for which approximately $67,000,000 has been set aside. This amount will provide $24,000,000 to cover a carry-over of new construction work, $14,500,000 as a carry-over for new equipment and $24,670,000 for work to be undertaken in the course of the year. In this connection, President Storey explained that no extensions were contemplated, but there would be seventy or eighty miles of new double track work. The ten locomotives, it was estimated, would cost about $365,000.

Earnings of the road in 1926 were said to point to a new record for the company and probably would be in excess of $21 a share. The net operating income for the first eleven months amounted to $61,110,532, against $48,543,987 in the same period of the previous year. December's freight loadings were also in excess of those of December, 1925.

Both the extra dividend of 75 cents and the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 are payable on March 1 to shares of record of Jan. 28.

THREE GROUPS TO BID FOR CITY SECURITIES

Keen Competition for $60,000,000 Offering—Award to Be Made on Small Price Margin.

Three banking syndicates, headed respectively by the National City Company, the Chase Securities Corporation and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., will submit the principal bids for the $60,000,000 New York City 4¼ per cent. bond issue which will be awarded tomorrow. These groups were the chief bidders for last year's $75,000,000 New York City offering, and the syndicates will contain about the same line-up of participating houses that were aligned then. In addition, many smaller groups will bid for the issue, and there will be numerous bids for parts of the offering.

The award is expected to be decided by a small margin, as the absence of complexities will make for close bidding. The profit ordinarily is not large in an issue of this character, but keen competition usually develops because of the prestige associated with New York City bond issues, as well as their ready saleability. The last issue was awarded to the National City Company group on a bid of 101.0589, a basis of about 4.185 per cent. That was the third successive issue awarded to the National City syndicate.

Of the new issue, $37,500,000 for rapid transit construction, water supply and dock improvements will fall due in fifty years, and $3,500,000 for various municipal improvements will mature ten years earlier.

FUNDED DEBT CUT $287,000.

Consolidated Textile Reduces Total to $10,767,000.

In 1926 the Consolidated Textile Corporation retired approximately $287,000 of its funded debt through sinking fund operations. The total is now about $10,767,000, which is followed in the capital structure by 1,297,022 shares of no-par stock.

The corporation is now relieved of any responsibility for the fixed charges of the B. B. & R. Knight, Inc., bonds, the interest on which formerly amounted to about $515,000. The Knight concern has been reorganized as the B. B. & R. Knight Corporation, with no funded debt. Its capitalization consists of 80,921 shares of no par Class A stock and 26,974 shares of no par Class B stock, each of which has a $7 preference in dividends over the 5,000 shares of no par Class C stock. The Consolidated Textile Corporation owns the entire issue of B stock.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

A vigorous rally in the last half-hour of trading canceled losses that had been marked up in a large number of issues earlier in the day on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday. The late upturn followed a long period of weakness in the general list. Professionals operating for the decline were particularly aggressive in the morning and after the Atchison dividend announcement came out around 1 o'clock. Prior to this announcement the market had displayed a disposition to steady itself, but Wall Street's disappointment with the news was reflected in an urgent selling movement, not only in this stock, but in other active issues. Before the final rally got under way several "trading favorites," like Baldwin and United States Steel common, had touched new lows for the current movement. Most of these stocks, however, closed the day with sharp gains, Baldwin, for instance, being up 3 points at the end of trading. Other issues which showed substantial gains at the close were General Motors, Tobacco Products, Hudson Motors, Nash Motors, Pullman and American Waterworks.

Santa Fe Conservatism.

Viewed from every standpoint but one, the Santa Fe declaration was extremely disappointing to Wall Street. In the face of bitter criticism of the "ungenerous attitude of the directors," however, there were several opinions expressed that the 75-cent extra would be continued regularly unless unforeseen conditions arose, and the shares consequently placed upon a 10 per cent. annual basis. Even this interpretation did not satisfy the speculative element, which had been expecting as liberal a stock dividend as that declared by the United States Steel Corporation. These expectations failed to take into account that the Santa Fe in common with all other railroads, could not declare a stock dividend without subjecting itself to possible political antagonism and the cry of "stock watering."

A Short-Lived Thrill.

Wall Street, which had waited eagerly for the announcement of the Santa Fe's dividend action, was informed by the two financial news tickers about 1 o'clock yesterday that a $3 extra had been declared. There was a momentary flurry of strength in the Santa Fe stock as if the announcement had been construed as favorable. Within two minutes there came a correction. The directorate actually had declared an extra of 75 cents. The stock immediately sold off. The error, into which many of the waiting reporters had fallen, seemed to have been due to a misunderstanding of the verbal announcement. The time between the original announcement and the correction was too brief for any considerable amount of trading, but the incident caused some excitement in stock market circles.

Seeking New Loan Sources.

An executive of an international banking house remarked yesterday that the present year probably would witness the uncovering of several new sources of loans to help provide an outlet for the ever-increasing accumulation of surplus investment funds in this country. Many of the countries which have borrowed heavily here in the last few years have already filled their financial needs and will do most of their future borrowing at home. South America will furnish an increasing proportion of loans, but these already are the subject of severe competition. The general industrial revival in Europe is considered important from an investment standpoint. It is considered likely that various countries in the Balkans will obtain loans here and that the smaller countries of Central Europe will be borrowers. Representatives of the large Wall Street investment houses are covering a large part of the world in their search for desirable loan contracts.

An Overcrowded Short Interest.

One of the guesses which have been made by stock market students in the last two or three weeks was confirmed fully yesterday in the action of the stock market itself. This was the guess that short selling had been large in volume in the last few days and that it had reached a point where this side of the market was overcrowded. It took the bidding up of only a few leading issues yesterday to start the shorts covering, and when they did once start there was a veritable scramble to regain their commitments. Many of the professional speculators of Wall Street do not like the market at all, but, on the other hand, they are easily frightened out of their positions by even a gesture of defiance from the other side.

Reinvestment Aids Bonds.

The reinvestment demand, which had been awaited with interest, is fully up to expectations, as evidenced by the increased strength in the bond market. Both foreign and domestic issues continued to move up sharply yesterday under a broad investment demand. Several French Government and industrial issues sold at prices higher than any quoted in 1926, while domestic bonds, led by United States obligations, also strengthened. A long list of high-grade investment bonds moved up anywhere from fractions to several points, the industrial and railroad groups both sharing in the strength.

December Earnings.

The railroads probably will receive net operating income in December of about $95,000,000. Gains in the earlier part of the month were somewhat offset by losses in the last two weeks. Estimating from this basis, it appears likely that total net receipts for the year will exceed that for 1925 by $110,000,000, or the equivalent of about $2 a share on the stock of the roads which earned it. Fully half of the additional net, it appears likely, will go into the carriers' surplus accounts to provide for additions and betterments and afford insurance against hard times. The continuance of the favorable trend in 1927, however, probably would mean a more liberal rewarding of the stockholder.

Telephone Financing.

Possibilities for future financing by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, always an interesting subject in the utility field, came in for some discussion in financial circles yesterday. One suggestion made recently was that the company might be contemplating the division of its stock, but those who have studied the situation see no ground whatever for considering such a step as an immediate possibility. That financing of any kind will not be considered until the issue of stock authorized last year has brought in its full quota of capital to the company's treasury is the general belief in informed circles. As much of this stock was sold in instalments, this is not likely to take place for some time. When it does come, the next A. T. and T. financing would be, if precedent counts for anything, a bond issue.

MONEY.

TUESDAY, JAN. 4, 1927.

Money in sufficient volume again appeared to hold the rate for Stock Exchange call loans at 5 per cent., which coincided with Monday's range. A slight concession from this figure prevailed for the Street trades. Withdrawals were down to a minimum. Time money was traded in at 4½ and 4¾ per cent. for all maturities, but the volume of business was small. Paper brokers reported an easier tone and fractionally lower discount on "at named paper, 4¼ per cent. being the popular rate. Some paper was offered as low as 4 per cent. but there were no takers. Sixty-day acceptances declined ⅛ to 3⅝@3¾ per cent., but bank bills and money rate were unchanged.

Price, Waterhouse & Co., were as follows:

1924	2,899,273.47	388,502.32	5.9
1925	3,768,560.10	552,422.56	8.5

Net Sales and Net Earnings for the 10⅔ months ending November 20, 1926, were at the annual rate of $3,600,000 and $445,000, respectively.

Average net earnings for the five-year period shown above of $448,392.88 are equal to over 6.8 times interest charges on this issue of Bonds. On the above basis combined annual interest, and Sinking Fund Payments sufficient to redeem this entire issue by maturity, have been earned 3.2 times for the five-year average.

SECURITY: In the opinion of counsel, these Bonds will be the direct obligation of the Company, and the Indenture will provide that no mortgage except purchase money mortgages may hereafter be placed on any of the property of the Company without equally securing these Bonds.

According to the balance sheet as of November 20, 1926, giving effect as of that date to the organization of the present Company, issuance of these Bonds and the transactions above referred to, as certified by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., current assets are $1,837,085.21 as against current liabilities of $173,172.48, a ratio of over 10 to 1. The balance sheet shows $1,700 of net assets for each $1,000 of Bonds.

EQUITY: These Bonds will be followed by $500,000 Seven Per Cent Cumulative Preferred Stock, and by 50,000 Shares of No Par Value Common Stock, on which latter it is expected that dividends at the rate of $3.50 per share per annum will be inaugurated. The present day market value of these two classes of Stock is approximately $2,375,000, representing an equity of that amount junior to this issue.

SINKING FUND: The Indenture under which these Bonds will be issued will provide for a fixed semi-annual Sinking Fund of $25,000 ($50,000 per annum), plus an additional Sinking Fund based upon Earnings, to purchase these Bonds in the open market up to the redemption price, or if not so obtainable, by call at such redemption price; all bonds acquired for the Sinking Fund to be cancelled. The Combined Sinking Fund is estimated to be sufficient to redeem the entire issue before maturity.

PURPOSE: This financing will permit the executives in active charge of the business to purchase a controlling interest from Mr. Samuel Ross, formerly the sole owner (thus superseding the old system of management bonuses).

MANAGEMENT: The five executives who are at present buying a controlling interest in the Company have been in active charge of the business for a period of years, are in large measure responsible for the progress and success of the business and will continue its management. These men have been identified with the business for over twenty years. The Board of Directors will include representation of the Bankers.

GENERAL: While most cities in recent years have experienced real estate and building booms with wide fluctuations in values and activities, Washington has been peculiarly free of forced development and with no outstanding large industries the progress of the City has been sound and steady. Government building has progressed steadily and the Congress at its last session authorized an appropriation of $50,000,000 to be spent in building construction in Washington within the next five years.

2 FIRMS TO OPERATE TEXAS OIL PROPERTY

NEW POOL IS INDICATED

Cities Service Announces Operation of Test Well in Oklahoma Producing 5,500 Barrels Daily.

Dissolution of the Murchison-Fain Oil Company, an independent oil concern operating in Texas, has been followed by the creation of two separate companies to operate the properties after the division has been completed, it was learned yesterday.

The Murchison-Fain Oil Company was formed in June, 1925, as a trust estate for the holdings of Clint W. Murchison and Earnest R. Fain, who have operated as partners in the North Texas district for several years. The company has valuable producing properties in Wilbarger, Archer and Young counties. It also has two producing wells in Hutchinson County and a wildcat oil producer in the Wheeler County section of the Panhandle district, and is a joint owner of settled production in the Wortham field.

Earnest R. Fain, Charles McGaha and L. D. Fain have organized the Fain-McGaha Oil Corporation, with a capital stock of 100,000 shares of no par value to operate the Fain division of the properties. The company's headquarters will be in Wichita Falls. A drilling company has been formed as part of the enterprise. It will be known as the MacKechney Drilling Company.

Clint Murchison and associates will operate their share of the Murchison-Fain properties under the name of the Murchison Oil Company. The company has been incorporated with a capital stock of 77,750 shares of no par value. San Antonio will be the headquarters. The incorporators are Clint Murchison, E. M. Closuit and T. F. Murchison.

More than 9,000,000 barrels of crude oil will be delivered to the Humble Oil and Refining Company by the Marland Oil Company during the next three years under a contract recently negotiated. The Marland company has contracted to deliver 25,000 barrels a day to Humble from various Texas producing districts. The contract calls for the payment of the market price. Humble is also taking 30,000 barrels a day in the Big Lake district from the Reagan County Crude Purchasing Company, in which Marland has a 51 per cent. interest.

American Controlled Oilfields, Inc., is planning to purchase properties in the Panhandle field, according to Bates Wyman, President, who has recently inspected the field.

The Simms Petroleum Company has recently completed a well in which it has a half interest in the Church & Field area in Crane County, Texas.

The Prairie Oil and Gas Company, according to reports received in the financial district yesterday, has completed a well making 1,100 barrels initial, on a 640-acre lease in Section 37, Block 47, north of the Canadian River in the Texas Panhandle.

Indications of the development of a new oil pool were seen yesterday in the announcement by the Cities Service Company that one of its operating subsidiaries, the Indian Territory Illuminating Oil Company, has its test well Davis No. 1 in Section 13-8-6 now producing at the rate of 5,500 barrels daily from a depth of only four feet in the Wilcox sand. The new pool is about four miles south of the Seminole City field in Oklahoma. The company has another well in this new area, Livingston No. 1, which is nearing completion in the Wilcox sand and which produced at the rate of 400 barrels daily in the Hunton line.

Cities Service subsidiaries have already started twelve additional wells in this new area, in which they have 1,250 acres of leases and royalty interest in more than 400 acres. The company has completed a pipe line into these fields and is prepared to run oil from Okmulgee and Cushing, where it has 1,000,000 barrels of empty storage. The company has 200,000 barrels of steel storage in the Seminole field.

BANK FAILURES IN 1926 INVOLVE $212,074,999

Increases of 30% in Number and 29% in Liabilities in Comparison With 1925.

Bank failures in the United States in 1926, unlike commercial defaults, showed sharp increases both in number and liabilities by comparison with the record for 1925. Their total was 608, comparing with 464 in 1925, or an increase of 30 per cent., while the liabilities reached $212,074,999, or 29 per cent. more than the $164,698,510 reported for 1925.

The numerical increase in failures was due in large measure to the failure of a chain of small banks in Georgia and Florida as a result of the closing of the Bankers' Trust Company of Atlanta in July. The number of failures in the South Atlantic section was 150, those in the Central West reached 242, while the remaining 116 were in other sections of the country.

The following table, compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., shows the banking failures by sections for 1926 and the previous year, and the liabilities attendant upon the suspensions in 1926:

Middle Atlantic	3	8	$925,000
South Central	63	61	22,604,953
Central East	19	11	8,571,409
Central West	242	239	102,348,775
Western	21	56	3,238,420
Pacific	10	10	3,327,000

International T. and T. Corp. Not Expected in Field.

Advices saying that the Belgian Government had decided not to transfer its telephone system from public to private control were considered in Wall Street yesterday as precluding the prospect that the International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation might expand in this field. The corporation recently had accepted a bid for the rehabilitation of the Paris telephone system, and it had been thought likely that it might try to enter the Belgian field.

When the Belgian Government decided as a means to reduce its expenses to place its publicly owned railroads under private management, it was thought possible that a similar policy might be applied to its telephone system. It was said in Wall Street yesterday that the plan had not worked as expected and that in consequence the Belgian Government would not seek to apply the plan to its telehone system.

FINANCIAL OUTLOOK IN LONDON, PARIS, BERLIN

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The stock markets maintained a good tone today, but were less active than yesterday. Movements in gilt-edged stocks, as a rule, were again in favor of holders, the feature being a further rise of ⅝ in the 4 per cent. tax free war loan.

In the foreign market support was forthcoming for French railway sterling loans. Rentes, on the other hand, were fractionally lower. The Austrian loan was firm, being bid for at par. Bulgarian scrip, after being at 1 discount, closed at ⅝ discount. Reaction occurred in the Rumanian consolidated loan, which closed slightly above 41.

In the miscellaneous market, tobacco shares suffered a setback, imperial being most affected, with a net fall of 6d. The iron and steel group was generally easier, but movements were slight. Renewed buying of South African mining shares occurred. Some of it was on French account.

On the money market money and discount rates virtually were unaltered. A large amount was repaid to the Bank of England. Of bar gold available the bank secured £244,000. This is the first gold movement reported by the Bank since last Wednesday. Gold exchanges moved in favor of this country, the New York rate closing at $4.85½.

Paris Bourse Remains Steady.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—The tendency of the Paris Bourse remained steady, on the whole, during today's session, the market remaining calm and speculators generally holding aloof, except so far as concerned certain favorite values. Wiseacres significantly pointed to the fact for the first time since the wild storms of the franc collapse, recovery and return to a seminormal state of temporary stability, the character of the session never changed from the opening to the close, the uniform tendency being manifested throughout.

The only exception to the general firmness was French rentes which, after the recent upward movement brought quotations down, owing to buyers taking profits.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—Prices dropped sharply on the Berlin Stock Exchange today, mining, bank and industrial shares falling off generally between five and six points. The heaviest loss, 13 per cent., was suffered by Rheinstahl, which, however, regained four points in a rally recorded all along the line before closing time.

Today's fall, following the New Year's optimistic opening, is not regarded as evidence of a permanent decline in values. It is attributed to speculation and the desire of traders to turn their recent profits into cash to meet obligations due on settlement day tomorrow.

Fluidity of day to day money, which could be had plentifully for 5 per cent., helped to strengthen the market before the close.

DEPLORE HOUSE ACTION ON MAIL CONTRACTS

Resolutions deploring the failure of the House of Representatives to make appropriations for ocean mail contracts with American steamship lines for the year 1928, were adopted by the Executive Committee of the American Steamship Owners' Association, at a meeting at 11 Broadway, yesterday. These resolutions, transmitted to all members of Congress and to the President and his Cabinet, also urged that the Senate amendment restoring the necessary appropriation to the Post-office Appropriation bill be adopted.

Alfred G. Smith, President of the association, said:

"Mail contracts were authorized by the Merchant Marine act of 1920 as one form of encouragement necessary to build up American lines. This policy has been followed by all great maritime powers and by our own Government for three-quarters of a century. The Postmaster General and Shipping Board have approved the rates as just and reasonable and essential to the successful development of the lines. The appropriation is largely repaid from postal receipts and the American public now has fast, regular and frequent American flag communication with important foreign markets. Mail service builds business.

"The mail contract section is about the only helpful section of the Merchant Marine act that has been given effect and if it is nullified almost as soon as begun the future of the American marine will be jeopardized."

A proposal by the management of S. H. Kress & Co. to increase the authorized capital stock from 170,000 to 2,500,000 shares was approved yesterday by stockholders in special session at Eddyville, N. Y. The former capitalization consisted of 120,000 shares of common and 50,000 shares of 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock, both $100 par; the new stock will comprise 1,000,000 shares of special preferred $10 par stock and 1,500,000 shares of no par common.

Under the recapitalization plan the present 120,000 shares of $100 par common will be exchanged for 960,000 shares of no par common on the basis of eight new shares for each one old. The company's certificates of incorporation will be changed to read that the capital shall be not less than $12,000,000. Conditions are to be laid down under which the company may sell the 540,000 shares of no par common not exchanged for old common. It is also planned to issue 50,000 shares of no par common to employes of the company or its subsidiaries.

The new $10 par preferred stock will be redeemable at $11 a share and will bear cumulative dividends at the rate of 6 per cent. a share. A dividend of 25 cents a share is to be paid on the no par common on Feb. 1, and directors contemplate the declaration of additional dividends to holders of the new common, payable in new special preferred stock. Dividends in special preferred will be paid once or twice yearly on the no par common, so that each share of the latter stock will receive a dividend of 50 cents annually in special preferred stock annually.

All the outstanding 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock, amounting to 3,000 shares, was called for redemption as of Jan. 3, 1927, at $125 a share and accrued interest. The 50,000 shares of no par common to be sold to employes will be sold to them at not less than $50 a share in 1927 and thereafter at not less than 80 per cent. of the market price during a given period.

RESERVE BANKS MADE $47,600,000 IN 1926

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 4.—Gross earnings of the twelve Federal Reserve Banks for 1926 were $47,600,000, or about $5,800,000 more than for 1925, while current operating expenses amounted to $27,360,000, or $170,000 less than for 1925, the Treasury announced tonight.

"The banks set aside from their earnings $3,630,000," the statement read, "as reserves to cover depreciation charges and reserves for losses on discounted paper, &c., and paid dividends to member banks amounting to $7,329,000. Net earnings for 1926 amounted to $16,610,000, as against $9,450,000 for 1925.

"The Federal Reserve Banks of Boston, Richmond, Minneapolis and Kansas City paid a total of $818,150.51 into the Treasury of the United States as franchise tax.

"All of the net earnings of the eight other Reserve Banks were transferred to their surplus accounts as required by law, the surplus accounts of these banks at the end of the year being materially less than their subscribed capital. The total subscribed capital of the twelve Federal Reserve Banks on Jan. 1, 1927, amounted to $249,628,000, and combined surplus accounts to $228,775,000."

Full details as to the disposition of the gross earnings of each Federal Reserve Bank will appear in the forthcoming annual report of the Federal Reserve Board.

FINANCING CONCERN ASKS CAPITAL RISE

Electric Bond and Share Co. Stockholders Will Meet Jan. 12.

$50,000,000 MORE SOUGHT

Stockholders of the Electric Bond and Share Company have been notified of a special meeting on Jan. 12 at which they will consider a proposal of the directors, voted on yesterday, to increase the capital stock of the company from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000. The increase will be effected, should the plan be ratified, through an authorization of an additional $50,000,000 of stock, to be divided into 500,000 shares of $100 par, of which 250,000 shares will be preferred stock and 250,000 shares common stock.

Subject to the ratification of the proposal, 150,000 shares of the preferred stock have been sold at a substantial premium. In order to comply with the company's certificate of incorporation, which requires that at no time shall the outstanding preferred stock be so increased as to exceed the outstanding common, a stock dividend of 150,000 shares of the increased common at par has been declared on the common stock. Payment of this dividend will be made to the Electric Bond and Share Securities Corporation, owner of all the common stocks of the Electric Bond and Share Company.

In the notice to stockholders, the directors said:

"It is our opinion that the larger employment of the company's technical and financial staffs in a more diversified territory will be to the company's advantage, particularly in connection with the supervision and financing of hydroelectric and other power situations in foreign countries. The capital required by the company is large and must be constantly increased to meet the unusually rapid growth of the electric power business, and the nature of the service which the company renders its clients makes it necessary for the company to continue always in a strong financial condition."

The $15,000,000 par value of preferred stock sold by the company will be offered shortly by Bonbright & Co., Inc. Current prices for the stock are around 109. Part of the proceeds are expected to be used in the financing of a public utility property acquisition understood to be under consideration by Electric Bond and Share.

A decision in favor of the Ludlum Steel Company was handed down in the Supreme Court yesterday by I. M. Wormser, referee, in an action brought by Percy A. E. Armstrong against the company to compel the payment of $800,000, which he alleged was due him on royalties and patent rights. The company contended that it had discharged its financial obligations to him by paying him $21,430 after the suit was brought last year.

Mr. Armstrong, who until a short time before he brought suit, was an officer of the company, alleged that he was entitled to 50 per cent. of the gross receipts from certain sales of patented steel made exclusively by the company. The company contended that he was entitled to only 25 per cent. of the net profits. Neile F. Towner and Scott McLanahan appeared for the company.

In a letter accompanying dividend checks on prior preference and first preferred stocks of the Boston & Maine Railroad, mailed yesterday, Homer Loring, Chairman, said that "continuance of dividends is dependent upon the road receiving its full share of the passengers and freight in the territory it serves."

"The year 1926 has been one marked by excellent receipts and moderate expenses," the letter read in part. "Expenses for 1927 will be increased substantially by additional income taxes and higher labor costs resulting from the recent wage arbitration.

"We are prepared to give the best of service. We are building new freight houses and terminal facilities; Hoosac Tunnel has been enlarged; a substantial amount of roadway is being rock-ballasted, and an active tracing bureau is at the command of every customer."

PROSPERITY NOT SHARED.

Fred W. Sargent, President of the Chicago & North Western Railway, said yesterday that the Northwestern roads did not share the prosperity in 1926 shown by carriers in other parts of the country. They earned a return, he said, of 4.10 per cent. on their property investment, compared with 5.74 in the Eastern district and 5.28 per cent. for the United States as a whole.

Passenger traffic, he added, declined six-tenths of 1 per cent. in volume and four-tenths of 1 per cent. in revenue in the Northwest, compared with eight-tenths of 1 per cent. in volume and three-tenths of 1 per cent. in revenue for the entire country.

SEARS, ROEBUCK SALES RISE

Sears, Roebuck & Co. report sales for 1926 aggregating $272,699,314, against $258,342,236 in 1925, or a gain of 5.5 per cent. For December, 1926, the company's business amounted to $29,983,402, against $30,521,658 in December, 1925, or a decrease of 1.7 per cent.

Christmas business of the Fanny Farmer Candy Shops, Inc., showed a large increase over any preceding year, the total for the week ended Dec. 24 being $252,689, or an increase of 23.1 per cent. over sales reported for the week to Dec. 24, 1925.

"Russia's international trade is reaching pre-war figures," Edward F. Wise, Economic Adviser of the Russian Cooperative Movement, told the Export Managers' Club of New York at a luncheon yesterday at the Hotel Pennsylvania. He said the present regime was sustained by "men who have taken over a bankrupt concern and are running it back to prosperity."

EXPRESS WORKERS CLOSE WAGE PLEA

EMPLOYERS OPEN DEBATE

When Addison Bollinger, Grand President of the Order of Railway Expressmen, ended his brief before the Board of Arbitration in the Engineering Societies Building at 29 West Thirty-ninth Street yesterday he announced that the argument on behalf of the 65,000 express workers seeking an increase in wages of 12 cents an hour was closed. Three organizations representing the employes have presented claims to the board for the increase.

Mr. Bollinger discussed the financial condition of the American Railway Express Company to show that it was in a position to grant the increase. He said its gross revenue for the year 1925 was $290,000,000, and added that the figure had been given him by the company. He said that out of this amount $106,000,000 had been paid out in wages, representing about 36⅝ per cent. of the gross revenue. He spoke of high salaries paid to officers of the company, and said a fund of $2,135,378.35 had accumulated during the years 1921 to 1925 after all dividends had been paid and all operating expenses, including payments to railroads, had been deducted. It was his understanding, he said, that the fund was to be used for extra dividends and further payments to the railroads after it had reached an amount which would warrant doing so.

Mr. Bollinger said there were hazards in the business. He told of the variety of articles being shipped by express, including wild animals and reptiles. He said that on one occasion a lion broke loose and the messenger in the baggage car was endangered until the lion had been recaptured and caged. On another occasion a platform man's finger was bitten by a hog.

In discussing a budget of $2,408.68 prepared by a Government statistician as a minimum amount for a family of five to live on, Mr. Bollinger repeated his assertion of the previous day that the express employe in almost every instance received from $700 to $1,000 less than that sum. He said he believed the amount to be a fair estimate of the sum necessary for a family to subsist upon.

In presenting the company's side Mr. Gwynn told of conditions among the workers before the various express companies were consolidated. He gave a resumé of the wage situation under the Government control during the war days. He told of the conference with labor officials representing the employes and of a decision of the Railroad Labor Board in granting increases in pay and of the company's voluntary act in granting an increase.

He criticized the employes' representatives for making a comparison of wages paid to other workers not comparable with express workers. He said that when the officials of the workers first made a request for an increase in October, 1925, he wrote to the superintendents of the various districts throughout the country in an effort to determine whether the express workers were underpaid as compared with workers in similar lines. He denied that the hazards of the workers had increased in any great proportion and gave statistics of accidents and robberies and resultant deaths.

CONTESTS I. C. C. VALUATION

Charles E. Hughes Declares They Are Invalid for Rate-Making.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP).—Oral argument was concluded in the Supreme Court today in a case involving the validity of railroad valuations made by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Charles E. Hughes, for the Los Angeles & Salt Lake Railroad, told the Court the commission had taken an indefensible position in insisting that there could be a distinct valuation for rate-making purposes. Only an actual value was legal, he held. He pointed out that the valuation placed by the commission was slightly more than half what the railroad claimed to be its actual value.

To Show New Yellocab Truck.

John Hertz, Chairman of the Yellow Truck and Coach Manufacturing Company, announced yesterday that within the next few weeks the company would market trucks of one and two-ton capacity, equipped with the overhead valve, six-cylinder Buick motor. A complete line of these trucks will be exhibited at the New York National Automobile Show for the first time. The new vehicle is to be known as the Yellocab truck.

Absorbed by Elliott-Fisher.

The assets and business of the Sundstrand Corporation, manufacturers of adding, bookkeeping and calculating machines, have been purchased by the Elliott-Fisher Company. The Sundstrand factories and offices are at Rockford, Ill. Both Elliott-Fisher and Sundstrand products will be marketed in future by the General Office Equipment Corporation, an Elliott-Fisher subsidiary.

Monthly Wage Bill Up $75,000.

H. E. Byram, receiver of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, said yesterday that the recent increase in wages granted to the company's shop employes would add about $75,000 a month to its wage bill. He said the outlook for traffic was encouraging.

PLAN TO DISSOLVE HOLDING COMPANY

ONE CONCERN TO REMAIN

Penn-Ohio Edison Will Control the Utility Properties Through Four Operating Groups.

Another move to simplify public utility holding company structures was made known yesterday in the announcement that shareholders of the Republic Railway and Light Company would meet February 15 to approve dissolution of the company. R. P. Stevens, President, announced that the organization serves only as a holding company for Penn-Ohio Edison Company stock and that except for a small amount of cash it has no assets other than $6 preferred and common stock of Penn-Ohio Edison.

When the simplification is completed it is expected that the Penn-Ohio Edison Company will remain as the only holding company. This company will control the properties through four main operating groups. Involved in this plan would be the elimination of the Penn-Ohio Securities Corporation, which, with Republic Railway and Penn-Ohio Edison, forms a group of holding companies by which the system is now controlled.

In order to dissolve, Republic Railway must obtain cash to meet debts of about $1,700,000 and to pay the liquidation price and accrued dividends on a small amount of $100 par preferred stock outstanding. Directors will therefore offer to common stockholders of record Jan. 15 the opportunity to purchase one and one-half shares of Penn-Ohio Edison common stock at $26.75 a share for each share of Republic Railway stock held. No fractional shares will be sold. The amount of Penn-Ohio Edison stock to be allotted to individual Republic Railway shareholders will be computed to the next lowest even number of shares to which they would be entitled.

The net result of the proposed dissolution to Republic Railway common shareholders will be the distribution of four and one-half shares of Penn-Ohio Edison common to the holder of each share of Republic Railway common. This would be in addition to the right to purchase direct one and one-half shares of Penn-Ohio Edison common.

Republic Railway was formed in 1911 and acquired more than 98 per cent. of common stock in the Pennsylvania-Ohio Electric Company, later selling this stock to the Penn-Ohio Edison Company.

Government to Take $7,920,000.

The United States Government tomorrow will withdraw $7,920,000 of its funds on deposit in the New York Federal Reserve District. The call for the entire country amounts to $28,340,000. There will remain on deposit in this district $51,814,000 of Treasury funds.

SAVINGS BANKS TO ASK NEW INVESTMENT LAW

State Association to Propose Addition of Securities to List Now Legal.

The Savings Bank Association of New York is planning to renew its efforts to have certain public utility securities made legal for investment by savings banks in this State. The Mastick-Sargent bill, which would have permitted such investments, was passed by the Assembly last year, but failed in the Senate. It is expected that it will be introduced again.

The association expected also to introduce a bill to legalize railroad equipment trust notes for investment by savings banks. However, this form of investment would be restricted to notes of railroads whose bonds qualify for the legal list. Seventeen States have made these notes legal for savings bank investment.

The municipal bond situation also will come in for consideration. The law regarding investment by the banks in municipal bonds has not been changed since 1876. Under the present law limiting debt to 7 per cent. of assessed valuation, excepting waterworks and other self-supporting properties, securities of such municipalities as Philadelphia are not legal for savings bank investment in this State. The association probably will ask also that the minimum population of municipalities whose bonds are made investments should be reduced from 45,000 to 30,000.

C., B. & Q. BUDGET FOR 1927

Company to Spend $20,000,000 on Improvements and Equipment.

The budget of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, it was announced yesterday, provides for expenditure of $20,000,000 in 1927, equally divided between improvements and equipment.

Some of the major items are $950,000 for a new passenger station at Lincoln, Neb.; $2,290,000 for twenty-two miles of second track between Chicago and St. Paul and $580,000 for 218 miles of automatic signal apparatus. Equipment requirements have not been decided, but it is stated that seventy-five suburban cars and some freight cars will be constructed in the road's own shops.

The $20,000,000 appropriation does not include $3,000,000 carried over from last year. The budget for 1926 amounted to between $15,000,000 and $16,000,000.

Western Land Bank Omits Dividend

The Kansas City Joint Stock Land Bank has omitted the semi-annual dividend due Jan. 3, it was announced yesterday. The directors last year reduced the annual rate to 6 per cent. after the bank had previously maintained a dividend rate of 10 per cent. annually. The stock had recently moved up 80 per cent. on reports emanating from Kansas City that this dividend would be paid. The bank has capital stock of $3,800,000 and its bonds outstanding aggregate $44,000,000.

The letter from J. E. Aldred, Esq., President of the International Power Securities Corporation, is summarized as follows:

INTERNATIONAL POWER SECURITIES CORPORATION: This Company, incorporated in 1923 under the laws of Delaware, was organized by prominent American interests primarily to acquire carefully selected securities and obligations of leading electric light and power companies operating in the United States or foreign countries.

The operations of the Corporation are under the direction of men of long experience in the management of successful gas, electric light and power generating and distributing companies, and its Board of Directors includes representatives of some of the strongest business and banking interests in this country and abroad.

The Corporation's present authorized and subscribed capital stock is $5,000,000, of which $2,500,000 (in cash) has been paid in, the balance being subject to call. In addition to the $10,000,000 Series E Bonds constituting this issue the Corporation, upon the completion of this financing, will have outstanding $4,000,000 Series B 6½% Bonds due 1954, $9,886,000 Series C 6½% Bonds due 1955, $4,900,000 Series D 7% Bonds due 1936 and $2,000,000 6% Notes, maturing December 29, 1927, all of which are secured by dollar obligations.

SECURITY: Series E Bonds, in the opinion of counsel, will be direct obligations of International Power Securities Corporation and will be secured by a Mortgage in the principal amount of $10,000,000 made to the Trustee by Società Generale Italiana Edison di Elettricità (Edison General Italian Electric Company) and two of its subsidiaries. The "Edison" Company is both an operating and a holding company and is the oldest hydro-electric company in Europe, administering a system over 85% hydro-electric which will aggregate 1,300,000 horse-power by the completion of the plants now under construction. It constitutes one of the largest electric power systems in the world, producing nearly one-quarter of the total electric energy sold in Italy.

This Mortgage, in the opinion of counsel, will be not only a joint and several general obligation of the "Edison" Company and its subsidiaries, but will also create a first mortgage lien on four hydro-electric plants of these Italian companies, having an aggregate generating capacity of 187,000 horse-power; and the Company will covenant in the Mortgage that two additional hydro-electric plants with an aggregate capacity of 11,000 horse-power will be subjected to the Mortgage as a first mortgage lien not later than April 1, 1927. The six plants to be mortgaged are valued at over $15,000,000. Provision will be made whereby, upon the retirement by the Sinking Fund of approximately one-third and two-thirds respectively of this Series E issue of Bonds, certain of the mortgaged properties will be released.

EARNINGS: Net earnings of the Edison Company available for interest charges for the year 1926 (last month estimated) before depreciation will amount to approximately 138,000,000 Lire ($5,865,000), or over 3.5 times total fixed charges on the entire funded debt of the Company, including this issue. In both 1924 and 1925 the Company's net earnings amounted to over twice the total fixed charges on its entire funded debt.

EQUITY: The capital stock of the Edison General Italian Electric Company has paid annual dividends of at least 10% for the past sixteen years and is at present paying at the rate of 14% on its ordinary shares. It is listed on the Milan Bourse, and at current quotations has an indicated market valuation of more than $36,000,000.

Conversions made from lire to dollars at approximate prevailing rate of exchange of 4.25 per lire. Par of exchange equals 19.30 per lire.

Price: 96⅜ and interest, to yield 7.30%

We offer these bonds when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to the approval of counsel, Messrs. Simpson, Thacher and Bartlett, New York, S. G. Archibald, Esq., Paris, and Sig. GOODYEAR COMPANY SUES SEIBERLING

Seeks Judgment in Ohio Court for $1,311,416 With Seven Years' Interest.

PETITIONS CHARGE FRAUD

AKRON, Ohio, Jan. 4.—Suits were filed by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company in the Common Pleas Court here today asking judgment against Frank A. Seiberling, former President of the company, in the sum of $1,311,416.96, with interest on $281,154.45 from Nov. 1, 1919, and on the sum of $1,030,362.51 from Dec. 31, 1919.

The $1,030,362.51 represents money which Seiberling is alleged to have caused Goodyear to pay out in improvements for Goodyear Heights Allotment No. 2, for which he was to have paid personally. The $281,154.45 represents interest at the rate of 6 per cent. upon more than $11,000,000 in Goodyear money alleged to have been used by Seiberling for his own private purposes.

"Beginning on or about November, 1911, and at times subsequent thereto until on or about Oct. 31, 1920, in pursuance of a fraudulent plan and scheme to misappropriate moneys and other funds belonging to the plaintiff, the defendant, at times using as his tools certain of the officers, agents and employes of the plaintiff authorized to draw checks and other orders for the expenditure of the corporate funds of the plaintiff, wrongfully, fraudulently and illegally withdrew and misappropriated large amounts of money belonging to the plaintiff to the defendant's own use, without the knowledge or consent of the plaintiff.

First Amount Said to Be $11,651,417.

After itemizing the amounts alleged to have been misappropriated, the petitions continue that "the aggregate amount so withdrawn was $11,651,417.17, a portion of which was subsequently repaid."

The petitions continue:

"On or about Dec. 6, 1920, the defendant owed to the plaintiff, in addition to the amounts claimed herein, the sum of $3,744,729.06, being the unpaid balance of other funds of the plaintiff's misappropriated by the defendant to his own use during the year ended Oct. 31, 1920, with interest thereon.

"Discovery of such amount so owing was made by independent auditors, and in order to deceive the plaintiff into believing that there were no other amounts or claims owing by the defendant to the plaintiff, the defendant on or about Dec. 6, 1920, acknowledged and recognized the claim for $3,744,729.06, but wrongfully represented to the plaintiff and its Board of Directors that the only amount owing by the plaintiff to the defendant was the said sum of $3,744,729.06.

Asserts Deception in Audit.

"Because of the aforesaid concealments and misrepresentations of the defendant, the plaintiff was deceived into believing that there were no other amounts owing by the defendant to the plaintiff, and into failing to bring or prosecute any action at law, or to take any legal proceedings for the recovery of claims aggregating $1,311,416.96, plus interest thereon, until the period of limitation imposed by the statutes of the State of Ohio upon the institution of legal actions, therefore, had rendered it impossible for the plaintiff to institute and successfully prosecute any of said actions or any legal proceedings for the recovery of the amounts so owing by the defendant to the plaintiff, thereby causing the plaintiff to lose said rights of action, which were of the reasonable value of $1,311,416.96, with interest thereupon, which action the plaintiff would otherwise have instituted and prosecuted to judgment in its favor for the full amount of said claim and secured full payment of such resulting judgment."

RUBBER FUTURES TAKE SHARP UPWARD TURN

A strong market for crude rubber futures on the Rubber Exchange of New York, one not anticipated by the majority of operators, yesterday lifted the price range from 40 to 80 points above Monday's final schedules. Higher London cables, a fair amount of support and a steady outside market all combined to bring about the reversed trend. Total sales were 128 contracts; including 13 old contracts.

The February position led the upturn with a gain of 80 points. March and May each showed an advance of 70 points, while January, for which there was a good demand, sold up 60 points at midday, later easing off to an advantage of 40. June and July finished 60 and 50 points up respectively.

Reports from London indicated a firm tone there, prices closing ¼d. to ⅝d. higher. The April-June and July-September positions developed a late reaction of ¼d. from their highs.

The net after taxes, interest, amortization, rentals, &c., was $637,285, as against $ 5,952 in November, 1925. For the twelve months ended Nov. 30, 1926, gross earnings amounted to $26,345,520, the balance after interest, amortization, rentals, &c, $6,840,935, and the balance available for reserves and dividends on preferred and common stocks, $5,248,200.

Finds Machinery Market Dull.

The machinery market is now rather dull, but an accumulation of inquiries points to a fairly active first quarter, according to The American Machinist. Interest in labor-saving and cost-cutting equipment will continue. The automobile industry was the largest buyer of tools last year, and the trend toward refinements and lower production costs should result in further good business from this quarter.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Continued speculative demand for the Spanish pesetas brought a further sharp advance in that exchange yesterday, bills on Madrid rising 11 points to 15.52 cents, the day's top, but later reacting on profit taking sales to 15.47.

Traders have put the movement of the last several days down to an attempted boom on the part of speculators to lift the exchange on the theory of an early restoration of the gold standard, even though nothing appeared in the dispatches to substantiate the claim. It was recalled that a similar movement last year carried the rate up more than 2¼ cents in about three months.

The Norwegian kroner was another bill to engage the attention of the speculative fraternity in response to which the Oslo document sold up 13 points to 25.55 cents, with a final at 25.51 cents. Other Scandinavians, Swiss, Holland and German were dull. Both francs and lire were moderately heavy, the selling in these appearing to come from the Continent. Sterling was quiet and unchanged at $4.85⅛.

Brazilian milreis broke one-half cent, to 11.62 cents, the weakness being ascribed to the uncertainty over the Governemnt's plan for stabilization. Other Latins and Easterns were also easy, although the rupee was in good demand.

LUMBER CHARGE OPPOSED.

Trunk Line Association's Freight Committee to Hear Dealers.

The National-American Wholesale Lumber Association, Inc., will oppose at hearings before the General Freight Committee of the Trunk Line Association today a proposal by the railroads to charge 50 cents per 2,000 pounds of lumber or forest products loaded or unloaded at New York, Philadelphia, Wilmington, Baltimore and Hampton Roads. This charge, which would be made to cover labor costs, would apply where the carrier performs the labor, regardless of whether lighterage service is granted.

"Lumber consigned to New York for lighterage delivery is discharged from the cars to lighters at the rail terminals for delivery within lighterage limits, and this proposal would have the effect of increasing these rates 2½ cents per 100 pounds, notwithstanding the present rates to New York to include lighterage delivery," says the association's statement.

Inventories Absorb Hardware Men.

Inventorying is absorbing the attention of hardware jobbers and dealers this week, and wholesale buying is restricted to current requirements, according to Hardware Age. The sale of staple lines is very quiet, which leads the distributors to believe that fill-in business will be brisk in January.

"This issue of bonds is secured by a first mortgage on premises Northeast Corner Nineteenth and Walnut Streets, Philadelphia, opposite Rittenhouse Square, with a frontage of 160 feet on Walnut Street and a depth of 223 feet 6 inches through to Sansom Street, being premises known as 1821, 1823, 1825, 1827 and 1829 Walnut Street.

"On the Northeast Corner of Nineteenth and Walnut Streets is the Wellington, a fifteen-story apartment hotel, having a frontage of 50 feet on Walnut Street. The next 88 feet on Walnut Street to the eastward are premises formerly known as the Art Alliance properties. The next and most easterly 22 feet on Walnut Street are premises formerly known as the Barrie property, being No. 1821 Walnut Street. These together form one of the largest pieces of assembled real estate in the central part of Philadelphia.

"The rentals derived from the Wellington and 1821 Walnut Street alone, after payment of all operating charges and taxes on the entire mortgaged property, are more than sufficient to pay the interest on these bonds.

"In addition to the foregoing rentals, further income will be derived from premises 1823, 1825 and 1827 Walnut Street, (88 feet frontage) upon completion of contemplated alterations."

VALUATION

The property upon which these bonds are secured by a closed first mortgage has been appraised by Mr. Frank H. Massey, of Philadelphia, at $4,000,000, and by Mr. Herman W. Coxe, Real Estate Officer of The Pennsylvania Company for Insurances on Lives and Granting Annuities, at $4,050,000.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

The mortgage will be accompanied by the usual full title insurance by The Real Estate Title Insurance and Trust Company of Philadelphia and will contain provisions for the maintenance of fire and other insurance satisfactory to the Trustee.

The mortgage securing this issue of bonds provides for the deposit with the Trustee on the last day of each month, beginning January 31, 1927, of an amount equal to one-twelfth of the annual interest on this issue of bonds, and one-twelfth of the annual taxes assessed against the real estate mortgaged.

In the opinion of our counsel, Messrs. Duane, Morris and Heckscher, these bonds constitute

Imports of crude oil at the leading United States ports for December, average of 177,774 barrels, as against 1926, totaled 5,511,000 barrels, a daily 5,096,000 barrels, or a daily average of 169,866 barrels for November, 1926. For the week to Jan. 1, the imports aggregated 907,000 barrels, a daily average of 115,286 barrels, against 1,196,000 barrels, a daily average of 170,857 barrels for the preceding week.

Receipts of California oil at Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports for December, 1926, totaled 2,406,000 barrels, a daily average of 77,613 barrels, against 2,744,000 barrels, a daily average of 91,467 barrels in November, 1926. Receipts for the week to Jan. 1 totaled 934,000 barrels, a daily average of 133,429 barrels, against 470,000 barrels, a daily average of 67,143 barrels in the previous week.

Crude oil production in Mexico in 1926 declined from 306,091 barrels daily in January to 194,547 barrels daily in December, showing a falling off of 111,544 barrels in the daily output. Production in 1925 declined nearly 25,000,000 barrels as compared with production in 1924. The decrease in daily output for that period was 68,267 barrels. Production of the Mexican Petroleum Company last week showed a drop of about 37,000 barrels daily as compared with the corresponding period a year before. The production of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the second largest producer, showed a decline of nearly 50 per cent., or from 33,000 barrels daily in the week ended Jan. 2 to 17,000 barrels daily in the week ended Dec. 18.

American oil companies with interests in Mexico have not been advised of any change in the status of their operations as a result of the new petroleum law which went into effect on Jan. 1, it was said here yesterday. Those companies which have refused to apply for "confirmatory concessions," as required by the law, are continuing to operate their properties without interference, according to information received here.

Moderate Trading in Inactives.

Trading of moderate proportions was carried on in the newly-established inactive group on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday. This was the first trading to take place in this department since the so-called inactive issues were assigned to a separate post and new regulations established for them.

Bessemer Pig Iron Declines.

Bessemer pig iron is quoted at $19.50 to $20 in Pittsburgh, a decline of about 50 cents from recent prices to a point more in line with those asked for other grades.

RETORTS ON ACCORD WITH STANDARD OIL

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The dispute between the Board of Directors and the members of the voting trust of the British Controlled Oilfields reached a further important stage today with the publication of a letter written by the board to the voting trust which is held to constitute a damaging attack on the members of the latter body. References to the disposal of the company's assets to the Standard Oil Company form one of the most striking features in the letter.

The board of the British Controlled Oilfields, it will be remembered, issued last September a remarkable statement dealing with the heavy losses made by the company in its early history and in circumstances that appeared to call for an inquiry.

It also drew attention to the peculiar constitution of the company by which its real shareholders are deprived of any control over it owing to the intervention of the voting trust.

The voting trustees then issued a statement explaining that the management of the company's affairs did not come within the ambit of their powers. They made a particular point of the fact that the voting trust was constituted primarily to secure control of the company for all time by British subjects and to ensure that the output of the fields should in case of need serve only Imperial interests, and they added that they consequently did not regard with satisfaction the agreement made by Lord Buckmaster's board with the Standard Oil.

The reply now published by the board appears to be a crushing retort. It records a series of transactions which show that the company gave options to or contracted with foreign concerns with the active approval, in some cases, of the trustees and certainly without their opposition.

At the time of these transactions some of the trustees were also acting as directors. Most of these transactions were with the Standard Oil or its subsidiaries, or with the Royal Dutch Shell group.

The letter makes the disapproval by trustees of the agreement made last year with the Standard Oil, and since terminated, difficult to explain in view of their approval of the previous transactions with the same company.

Common Stock, no par	50,000 shares

Mr. L. H. Hendricks, President, summarizes his letter of January 4, 1927, as follows:

Organization and Purpose: The American Rediscount Corporation was incorporated under the laws of Maryland December 16, 1926. The Corporation owns substantially all of the capital stock of the Credit Corporation of America, the operating company, incorporated under the Banking Law of the State of New York. The purpose of this corporation is to furnish rediscount facilities for finance companies approved and admitted to its system under a relationship similar to that existing between the Federal Reserve Banks and their member institutions. Through the Credit Corporation the American Rediscount Corporation will engage in the discounting of approved acceptances and notes of selected finance companies operating in the United States.

Plan of Operations: Finance companies desiring rediscount privileges are required to purchase Membership Stock of the American Rediscount Corporation proportioned in amount to credit granted. Membership Stock thus purchased shall serve as collateral to the discount lines established, and shall be repurchaseable on cancellation of discount privileges given the owner of such stock. The plan of affiliating local finance companies is as follows:

1. The American Rediscount Corporation has divided the country into districts, from which one or more applicants for rediscount privileges will be selected. The rediscount privileges granted in each territory shall be non-transferable without the consent of the Rediscount Corporation and shall be subject to cancellation or alteration.

2. Each finance company must furnish satisfactory evidence of financial soundness and responsibility in accordance with the amount of rediscount accommodations to be granted.

3. Each finance company must enter into a trust agreement with a banking institution approved by the Rediscount Corporation. Under this trust agreement the finance company shall agree to deposit with such banking institution its customers' notes furnished as rediscount collateral together with the liens applying thereto. The notes are to conform in all respects to standards set up by the Rediscount Corporation.

4. Each finance company must agree to conform to the rules, standards and regulations as well as to the auditing and appraisals by the Rediscount Corporation. Periodical audits are to be required of every finance company operating under the plan.

Security: Under the system, the specific security for each $100 advanced by the Credit Corporation will be substantially as follows:

1. Installment notes of the face value of $110, endorsed by the finance companies, and with such other endorsements of manufacturers or dealers as are required by the finance companies, together with the chattel mortgages, liens or conditional sale agreements relating thereto, on which a substantial payment has been made by the installment purchaser.

2. Membership Stock of the Rediscount Corporation equivalent to a cash payment of from $15 to $20.

Capitalization: The present authorized capitalization of the American Rediscount Corporation consists of: (A)—50,000 shares ($5,000,000) of Cumulative 7% Preferred Stock, payable quarterly, which is convertible share for share into Class "A" Stock within two years from January 1, 1927, and thereafter such conversion provision shall continue unless cancelled by the Corporation after six months' notice; (B)—250,000 shares of participating non-cumulative Membership Stock. Such stock, after the payment of 1¾% dividends quarterly on the Preferred Stock and all accumulations thereof, is to receive non-cumulative dividends at the rate of $4 per annum before the Class "A" or Common Shares receive dividends, and after the Class "A" and Common Shares of the Company have received $7 per share in any year in dividends, the Membership Stock is to participate as a class equally in additional payments with the Class "A" and Common Shares made in such year; and, (C)—100,000 shares Class "A" Stock (of which 50,000 shares are reserved for conversion of 7% Preferred Stock) and 50,000 shares Common Stock, both of no par value. The Class "A" and the Common Shares are alike except that the Class "A" shares have no voting power.

Management: The American Rediscount Corporation will be managed by a Board of Directors and an Advisory Committee of prominent bankers. Mr. Laurence H. Hendricks, Comptroller of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, has been elected President to take office February 1st. The Counsel to the Advisory Committee will be Hon. Morgan J. O'Brien.

Offered for subscription in units of one share of Cumulative 7% Preferred Stock and one share of Class "A" Stock when, as and if issued and received by us, subject to the approval of our counsel, Messrs. Murray, Aldrich & Roberts. The right is reserved to reject any and all applications, and also, in any case, to award a smaller amount than applied for.

City of Montreal

Forty Year 4½% Gold Bonds

(Non-Callable)

Dated December 1, 1926 Due December 1, 1966

Principal and half-yearly interest (1 June and 1 December) payable in United States gold coin at the Agency of the Bank of Montreal, New York, or in Canadian gold coin at the office of the City Treasurer of Montreal. Coupon bonds of $1,000 denomination, registerable as to principal.

Montreal, the largest City and the most important manufacturing and shipping centre in Canada, is the second largest seaport on the Continent, and the largest grain-exporting port in the World. The City is the headquarters for the Canadian National Railway System and the Canadian Pacific Railway System. Many important financial and industrial institutions, including Canada's two largest chartered banks, have their head offices there.

The population of Montreal has increased from 277,829 in 1901, to the present estimated population of 952,875 in 1926. This rapid growth is due to the City's favourable geographical location as an ocean and lake port, its availability to low cost water power, its proximity to an immense territory naturally adapted to industrial development, and to the stable labor element throughout the Province.

BLAIR IS OVERRULED IN TAX REVIEW CASE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The appeal of David H. Blair, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, for a reversal of a decree of the District of Columbia Supreme Court requiring him to obey a subpoena of the Board of Tax Appeals was denied in an opinion of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia yesterday by Justice Van Orsdel.

The Appellate Court supported the board in its dispute with the Internal Revenue chief and declared the board was entitled to obtain from the Commissioner the evidence necessary to enable it to pass intelligently on his actions as an inferior officer in income tax cases.

The case was instituted by the Oesterlin Machine Company of Cincinnati, Ohio, against the Commissioner to compel him to answer questions touching the evidence, data and information on record in his office, on which he based finding that the company was deficient in payment of income and profit taxes to the extent of $1,128.37.

Mr. Blair challenged the authority of the Board of Tax Appeals to review his finding, on the ground that it involved the exercise of discretion, which is not reviewable, and also that it compelled him to disclose records of his office in violation of Section 3,167, Revised Statutes, which imposes a fine for such disclosure.

In overruling this the Appellate Court held that Congress did not intend to close the door to judicial inspection of tax records in the custody of the Commissioner, as the statute provides exceptions when "otherwise provided by law." The Commissioner himself, the Court pointed out, through the Secretary of the Treasury, has established a departmental policy respecting the furnishing of records and data in aid of judicial proceedings in the courts, which included, by the most reasonable interpretation, the present case.

The Court reviewed at length the authority of the Commissioner and analyzed his jurisdiction and that of the Board of Tax Appeals, and reached the conclusion that the board is vested with full reviewing jurisdiction over the finding of the Commissioner in cases where a deficiency arises from a determination under the special assessment provisions of the Revenue act.

The appellate power, said Justice Van Orsdel, included the authority not only to review but to investigate de novo the matters in controversy between the Government and the taxpayer.

To this end, he pointed out, the board may affirm, set aside or modify, in such manner and to such extent as it may advise, the findings of the Commissioner.

It would be a travesty to hold, said Justice Van Orsdel, that after Congress had vested the board with broad jurisdiction it could be denied by a subordinate officer of the Government the evidence needed to pass intelligently on the actions of that inferior officer whose decisions the board is specially vested with power to review.

The general secrecy acts in revenue matters are limited by the special legislation giving the board the authority to summon witnesses and to enforce the production of records and other data, the Court declared.

The Court referred to the picture drawn by the solicitor for the Commissioner of the possibility of unlimited abuse of this power by the board and declared it was not impressed with it. It must be assumed that the board will not abuse its power, asserted the Justice, and will call only for such documents as were used by the Commissioner in reaching his decision. But the power, he said, was vested wholly in the discretion and judgment of the board, and the Commissioner had no option in the matter.

The decision is expected to settle a much-disputed matter in the Treasury Department which has hampered the functioning of the Board of Tax Appeals.

STOCKS IRREGULAR OVER THE COUNTER

GAINS IN INDUSTRIAL GROUP

Divergent Trends Apparent in Bank and Utility Sections—Several Issues Easy.

Irregularity prevailed throughout the session on the over-the-counter market yesterday. Sugar stocks, in response to a general advance in the prices of the refined product on the previous day, again came in for a display of activity and strength such as marked them on last Friday. Rises of from 1 to 3 points occurred in Central Aguirre, Holly Sugar and Savannah Sugar Refining.

In the industrial section, good inquiry obtained for the silversmith issues, with International Silver common advancing a point and the preferred 2 points to a new current high, while Gorham Manufacturing maintained its recent gains. United Milk Products, American Piano, Southern Baking, Newport Company prior common and Merck & Co. preferred were all stronger, with advances of from 2 to 5 points.

Bank stocks were more irregular than on Monday. Hanover National and Mechanics Bank of Brooklyn were in considerably better demand, while easier tendencies appeared in Chelsea Exchange, National City, Guaranty Trust, United States Mortgage and Trust and Lawyers Title and Guaranty.

Utility stocks were also irregular, with rather extreme easiness in Augusta-Aiken Railroad and Electric preferred and National Power and Light preferred. Connecticut Light and Power senior issues were higher.

New Cars for Missouri Pacific.

The Missouri Pacific Railroad has placed orders for 3,000 miscellaneous freight cars to cost approximately $6,000,000. It is expected to place additional orders for 100 ballast, 100 gondolas and twenty caboose cars.

BIG SAVING PLANNED BY PORT AUTHORITY

WOULD POOL ALL TUGS

An exhaustive analysis by the technical staff of the Port of New York Authority, which is now nearing completion, indicates that an annual saving of about $2,500,000 might be effected by unified operation of railroad carfloat and lighterage service in New York Harbor.

At present each railroad maintains and operates its marine equipment entirely apart from that of any other carrier. The Port Authority, in a statement made public yesterday, declares that by pooling the tugboats of all the roads and by having operation directed centrally the sum named could be saved.

Some idea of the extent of the railroad navy in New York harbor may be gathered from the fact that there are, according to the latest reports, 139 tugs, 36 steam lighters, 358 carfloats, 1,199 barges and analogous craft. Freight handled by these vessels throughout the calendar year is upward of 37,000,000 tons.

The system produces duplication of effort and interference, which, it is thought, can be eliminated. Tugboats are operating with tows often of only one or two lighters, whereas many of these vessels are capable of handling tows of ten or twelve lighters. One company's tug often runs light in one direction while that of another company will run light in the opposite direction. The tugs of one company are constantly called upon to proceed to a specific point for switching service when tugs of another company are available in the same location, but cannot be thus employed because of separate corporate ownership. The cost of such duplication bulks large each year and is an important factor in what the carriers, in every rate hearing, declare to be the "high terminal costs" at this port.

The plan suggested by the Port Authority experts contemplates the segregation of short tows to and from certain localities with tugs of lesser capacity than that type necessary for heavy long-haul tows in flotilla formation. It provides also for the consolidation of tug switching service at terminals, so that the slack of one company can, in a sense, be taken up by the surplus of another. Special shifting tugs would be located away from railheads where steamships and other operations are intensified, thereby providing prompt and efficient switching service without the necessity of waiting for tugs to arrive from distant points to perform such operations.

According to the figures gathered by the Port Authority the total cost of towing service under individual railroad operation in October, 1924, was $832,600. The Port Authority staff finds that the cost, with central dispatching and pooling of tug boats, would have been $572,000, showing a net saving for one month of $260,000.

Nicholas, Disinherited Son, Loses.

Grosvenor Nicholas, son of George S. Nicholas, an importer, who died in 1922 leaving a $2,000,000 estate and cutting off the son, will not share in the estate under a decision of the Court of Appeals made known yesterday. The action of Surrogate Pelletreau of Suffolk County in admitting the will to probate after he had set aside the verdict of a jury which held the father was incompetent to make a will, was upheld.

MAY WHEAT REACHES NEW LOW FOR CROP

MILLS ARE ON SHORT TIME

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—Liquidation was on in wheat at the start, with May off as much as 2 cents at the opening to a new low on the crop. Heavy selling on stop-loss orders was in evidence, and with local pressure and selling by traders to protect themselves the decline was easily attained. When May was around $1.30 there was free buying by shorts and commission houses, and a rally came at the last, but net losses were 1¼ to 1⅝ cents, with May leading. July also sold at a new low for the season.

Weakness abroad was the main depressing influence, Liverpool being 1⅝ to 1¾ pence lower on pressure of new Argentine grain at lower prices, while Buenos Aires was off 1⅜ cents at the last, February in the latter market being 2⅝ cents under Liverpool March. This was the widest difference of the season. Chicago May was only 9⅝ cents under the same future in Liverpool. Winnipeg showed comparative steadiness with a loss of 1⅜ cents for the day. Export demand continues slow, with sales of 400,000 to 500,000 bushels in all positions, largely Manitobas.

World conditions are again proving to be the dominating influence in shaping the trend of wheat values and, while the domestic situation is regarded by some operators as gaining strength, to a large extent the action of foreign markets is expected to determine the course of values here for the time being.

Foreigners are apparently waiting for the markets to steady before buying cash wheat on a large scale. Mills continue to report a slow flour demand and many are running on short time, although having liberal orders on their books. It is feared in some quarters that unless there is an upturn in prices cancellations may be reported before long.

Primary arrivals of wheat today, 579,000 bushels; week ago, 808,000; last year, 765,000. Shipments, 314,000 bushels; week ago, 369,000; last year, 481,000.

Corn showed stubborn resistance to pressure and while off fractionally early with wheat, it reversed its action later and closed ¼ cent higher, with local short covering and also buying credited to an Eastern operator a factor. Sentiment in the main is bearish, and the rally was regarded as due largely to an oversold pit condition.

Primary arrivals today, 812,000 bushels; week ago, 855,000; last year, 2,044,000. Shipments, 266,000 bushels; week ago, 276,000; last year, 438,000.

Weak Foreign Markets Influence Trading in Wheat.

Increased activity characterized wheat futures on the New York Produce Exchange yesterday, but in the early trading prices broke 2 cents to 2⅝ cents to new low levels for the season, the influence against the market coming from weak foreign markets and pressure from the Argentine. General selling, with scattered liquidation, uncovered numerous stop-loss orders. Considerable realizing took place on the decline and rather wide selling by an interest with Continental connections caused a heavy tone at the close.

Oats at New York sold off ⅛ cent in the early trading under scatter pressure and some liquidation, with weakness in other grains. Profit taking and support from local cash handlers brought about a rally, however, to within ⅛ cent of yesterday's closing prices.

Viennese Tells Europe's Trade Aims

Alfred Tyrnauer of Vienna, representative in this country of the Central European Economic Congress, spoke last night on the reorganization of Central Europe at Cooper Union under the auspices of the People's Institute of New York. The aim of the congress, he said, was to abolish customs barriers of Central European States and reorganize the economic fabric of Central Europe to the end that a trade federation might be effected ultimately.

BOND INTEREST NOT READY.

Trustee Reports Deposit Not Made for Park-Lexington Issue.

With the publication of a ruling by the Committee on Securities of the New York Stock Exchange that the first mortgage leasehold bonds of the Park-Lexington Corporation, owners of the Grand Central Palace, must be traded in at par after Jan. 3 it became known that holders of the bonds were unable to collect interest due on Jan. 1. At the Empire Trust Company, trustee for the corporation, holders who went to cash their coupons on Monday were informed that no money had been deposited for interest charges.

It was reported in Wall Street that Dillon, Read & Co. which floated the original issue of $5,500,000 in 1923, had been purchasing coupons on the bonds yesterday through the Chemical National Bank. Executives of the company would neither deny nor affirm this, but they said that on a prior occasion when money for the interest on the bonds was not "there on the dot" they had paid the interest. They denied that there was any default on the bonds, but stated that it was merely a case of the money not having been deposited on time.

FROM OIL TO ELECTRICITY.

The history of lighting in this country almost is told in the changes made in the first lighthouse built by the United States as an independent government, at Cape Henry, at the entrance of Chesapeake Bay. In 1792, according to Nation's Business Magazine, the lighthouse used fish oil. Sperm oil was substituted in 1810, but when the whale fisheries began to decline other oils were sought, first rapeseed or colza oil, and later lard oil.

Next, kerosene was used. In 1910 there was great improvement. Wick lamps were discarded, and vaporized kerosene, with an incandescent mantle, was installed. This lasted a dozen years, when an electric incandescent was substituted.

SEES BRIGHTER FUTURE FOR PACKING INDUSTRY

Tracing the vast changes which have occurred in the last few years in the live stock and meat industry, F. Edson White, President of Armour and Company, in an address recently before the Institute of American Meat Packers, declared that notwithstanding present problems, the meat packing industry looks "to the future with greater confidence than at any time since the war."

Belief that the packer could charge any price for his product and compel the consumer to pay it, was ridiculous, Mr. White said, although that viewpoint, he asserted, is "very popular among certain agricultural economists.

"Of all the intermediary agencies between production and consumption, the packer alone feels the pressure from the producer for high prices and from the consumer for low prices, and, in his efforts to put all of his products into the trade, he finds the final prices almost automatically adjusted for him," Mr. White continued. "Between the packer and the producer, every one is interested in obtaining high prices because they create profits and stimulate volume of production. The upward pressure is tremendous and very few consumers are able to realize its force.

"On the other hand, between the packer and the consumer, every one is interested in securing such prices as will stimulate consumption. At a low price level, all classes of people are interested in meat, but each rise in price eliminates certain classes with low purchasing power as related to the rest of the meat buying public. As prices rise, the packer finds his meat backing up in his coolers, and as prices fall, he find his outlets broadening."

The development of refrigerating facilities has brought about a great change in the industry, Mr. White pointed out. The volume of pork sold in fresh form in 1900, he stated, was approximately 25 per cent. of the total production of pork, while today, owing to the development of refrigeration, it exceeds 50 per cent.

Mr. White also called attention to the fact that the packing business is far less seasonal than a quarter of a century ago when "nearly every packer looked on Winter as a time for accumulating stocks and on Summer as a dull operating, but live merchandising period.

"The trend present in most post-war business has invaded our own," the speaker continued. "What we were at first pleased to call 'hand-to-mouth' operations, and even to condemn because of the feeling that those following the policy were afraid to back their business judgment, has now become standard all through the the retail and wholesale trades. During the period in which the stocks accumulated as a result of wartime policies were being worked off, considerable discomfort and even disaster resulted from this method of doing business—witness the packer's experience with hides and provisions—but today many of us have reached the belief that the policy of quick turnover is the foundation of continued prosperity. It is becoming more and more apparent that our best business policy is the one new standard for almost all manufacturers; namely, the holding at a minimum of all inventories from raw materials to finished products.

"Furthermore, it is obvious that the successful application of these principles is going to depend on carefully budgeted programs, calculated months in advance, and firmly adhered to.

"As we enter the new year, therefore, we find our industry in a dynamic situation, its course direct, and its questions clearly defined.

"Our issues are problems of yesterday versus today, of the old régime versus the new, of adaptability versus rigidity.

"The world will always be impatient of the comfort of the few when it seeks the welfare of the many, and the retention of the standard practices of our generation means nothing to the passing crowd. Our livelihood in their service, and our ability to meet the demands they create, is the measure of our fitness."

TRANSIT SAFETY URGED.

The City Parliament, consisting of delegates from various community councils of the greater city, at a meeting at City Hall last night, unanimously adopted resolutions calling upon Governor Smith and Mayor Walker to use their executive power and recommend legislation "that will not alone assure the commencing of the immediate replacement of wooden cars by steel ones on all the elevated lines in the City of New York, but also demand forthwith through the Transit Commission the installation of safety devices, such as modern block signals, automatic switches and what is termed as the dead man's button on the levers of control boxes in all motormen's cabs."

Emil Greenberg, Chairman of the Bath Beach Community Council, who recently appeared before the Transit Commission, introduced the resolutions and cited figures to show that 119 persons had been killed and 534 injured since 1918. He also quoted figures to show increased income of the B. M. T. Corporation in 1926, to offset the plea that the company could not afford improvements.

H. A. Bayers, Vice President of the Union Bus Corporation, spoke on bus franchises and urged the parliament to support the petition of corporations that are not subsidiaries of the subway corporations.

Auto License Branches to Close.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Charles A. Harnett announced yesterday that all branch offices which have been in operation during the last six weeks to issue 1927 licenses would close tonight. One exception will be the branch in the Armory at Sixty-second Street and Columbus Avenue, where only taxicab and bus license plates are issued. That branch will remain open until Friday night.

COTTON PRICES GAIN AFTER EARLY DROP

Buying Follows Report That Final Ginning Figures Will Be Lower Than Expected.

RISE OF 20 TO 22 POINTS

Three Weeks' Unfavorable Weather Has Checked Farm Work and Ruined Much Cotton.

After a slight decline during early trading yesterday which carried prices 30 to 35 points from high levels of last week, the cotton market turned and recovered a quarter of a cent the balance of the session.

A sharp upturn of a dollar a bale occurred in the March position in New Orleans which started active buying here the last hour with final quotations 20 to 22 points higher on the day. Owing to the narrow character of the market, professional operators covered during the morning and at the same time increased domestic and foreign trade demand was attracted by the lower range of prices.

Reports from Memphis that the impression was gaining ground there, that final ginning figures might turn out nearer 17,500,000 than the official estimate of 18,618,000 had a decided influence on the course of the market. Three weeks' unfavorable weather not only curtailed ginning operations and rendered farm work impossible, but ruined a large amount of cotton.

As prices yesterday were virtually the same level as existed three months ago, stability of both contract and spot markets in the face of the movement of over 10,000,000 bales into sight since the early part of October has increased the volume of trade price fixing on all slight recessions. The demand for contracts in New Orleans developed more activity in the local market and when a ten-point rally failed to bring out cotton, prices advanced more easily the last hour of the session.

While January continued at a discount of about 20 points under March, there was more demand for the spot month than at any time since notice day a week ago. January in New Orleans continued to sell above New York, whereas at this time last year January here sold 10 points over prices on the Southern Exchange, while March sold half a cent over New Orleans.

Port receipts for the first two days of the week ran 45,000 under last week, while interior stocks lost 4,000 bales compared with a gain of 5,000 bales during the first three days last week. Quotations at Southern markets were advanced 19 to 30 points, the price of middling being raised 30 points in Little Rock to 12.30c, and 25 points in Dallas to 11.95c.

Some High-Priced Issues Reach New High Levels—Trading Is Light.

Price movements on the New York Curb Market were irregular yesterday. Trading was comparatively light and most of the issues moved within a narrow range.

A few of the high-priced and volatile issues fluctuated rather sharply at times, some touching new high levels. Procter & Gamble, for instance, advanced to 191 for a gain of 6 points. Pillsbury Flour new stock was up 5 points. A few of the sugar stocks had a flurry of strength, notably Central Aguirre and Fajardo, both of which sold off before the close. Initial trading in Hudson's Bay Company took place at 30.

Among the tropical oil stocks, Caribbean Syndicate was a feature, moving up 2 points to above 25. Standard of Ohio, following the announcement of the proposed stock split-up, was weak in the morning, but rallied in the afternoon. Continental Oil featured the low-priced Standard Oil issues.

Only fractional price changes took place in the bulk of the utility group, industrial issues moved listlessly.

MORE ONE-WAY STREETS.

McLaughlin Thanks School Superintendents for Traffic Rule Ideas.

The new traffic regulations of the Police Department which went into effect on Jan. 1 embody many suggestions made by District Superintendents in the city public school system, according to a letter written by Police Commissioner McLaughlin to Superintendent of Schools O'Shea and given out yesterday by Dr. O'Shea.

"Of all the suggestions we have received," Mr. McLaughlin write in part, "the ones submitted by your District Superintendents and Principals are by far the most valuable. They do not contain a single thought that is not feasible." Mr. McLaughlin said that requests had been made for appropriations for the extension of the traffic control light signal system and that plans for the extension of the one-way streets in Manhattan, recommended by two of the District Superintendents, were already under way. He said it was planned to extend the system as soon as possible to 125th Street.

FORD PRAISES SMITH FOR HIS POWER STAND

Charges Muscle Shoals Committee Plans to Make $50,000,000 Gift to Combine.

COST TO FARMERS HEAVY

DETROIT, Jan. 4.—"Nitrates or Battle Cruisers?" is the title of an editorial in the Jan. 8 issue of The Dearborn Independent, Henry Ford's newspaper, which charges the Joint Committee on Muscle Shoals with the intention of presenting the "power combine" with a $50,000,000 gift in the agreement to build a new air nitrogen fixation plant at the Shoals. The editorial scores Governor Peay of Tennessee for his sympathy toward granting perpetual rights on Cove Creek and the Tennessee River, which it is claimed would mean another $50,000,000 gift.

"The Joint Committee on Muscle Shoals," says the editorial, "recommended the power combine's offer proposing to build a new air nitrogen fixation plant at Muscle Shoals estimated to cost from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000. The Chairman of the Joint Committee has recently, on the floor of the Senate, urged the acceptance of the power combine's offer, but he did not explain to the farmers of the country nor give any reason why they should pay $1,000,000 a year interest on a new nitrate plant to cost the farmers some $50,000,000 in fifty years. This is a needless capitalization, and, as we have said before, it is a betrayal of the farmer in favor of the financier."

"Governor Smith of New York," it adds, "has furnished the country an example in his efforts to protect the rights of the people of his State on the St. Lawrence River. Governor Peay of Tennessee, on the other hand, has shown sympathy with the desires of the power combine on the Tennessee River. Governor Smith stopped the Power Commission of his State from giving away the power on the St. Lawrence River to the American Superpower Company. Governor Peay urges the Federal Power Commission to make a gift of $50,000,000 to the American Superpower Company on the Tennessee River, for that is precisely what a perpetual permit for the Cove Creek dam, a tributary of the Tennessee, means."

PEASANTS QUITTING RUSSIA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Some 13,000 Russian families are seeking deliverance from Bolshevist rule and oppression and are settling in Canada during the coming Spring, according to The Daily Mail.

Forerunners of this multitude of emigrants arrived in London last night. They are members of seventy Russian peasant families and when the steamer carrying them entered the Thames, says The Daily Mail, they all took part aboard in a service of thanksgiving for their release from bondage and for the protection they are to be given under the British flag.

HALTS ROAD AID TO TEXAS.

Government Asks Assurance State Will Maintain Financial Aid.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP).—Temporary withdrawal of approval of Federal aid road projects in Texas has been ordered by Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads, until satisfactory financial showing has been made by the State on certain phases of the projects.

The Government is determined not to approve any further highway projects for Federal aid until the State shows that payments due to contractors are being met promptly, that funds are available to take care of reconditioning and maintenance of highways and that funds are available for proposed new contracts.

SUES UNION'S OFFICERS.

Member Seeks to Halt Spending of $50,000 of Electrical Workers.

Joseph A. Lynch of 264 West Nineteenth Street, a member of Local 3 of the Electrical Workers' Union, filed a suit in the United States District Court yesterday to restrain President Richard L. O'Hara and sixteen other "so-called" officers from spending $50,000 of the union's money.

Lynch in his complaint alleged the defendants had been removed from office by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and that they controlled and dominated the affairs of the local "by and through coercion, restraint, intimidation, bribery, allocation of work," &c.

Charges against the defendants, according to Lynch, were preferred in Local 3, and through resolutions adopted by the local its treasury is threatened with a loss of $50,000 to be expended in defending the "already ousted" officers.

Edward Hoffman, a clerk in the offices of the Organization Committee of the International Electrical Workers' Union, 32 Union Square, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Otto A. Rosalsky in General Sessions on an indictment charging him with violating the Sullivan law. His arrest, his attorney said, was due to information given to the police by members of Local 3. Hoffman was held in $5,000 bail for trial. His home is in Chicago.

FIVE-DAY WEEK IS PLANNED.

Newark Building Trades to Consider Trial Next Summer.

Plans to give the five-day week a trial next Summer will be considered soon by the Newark Building Trades Council, labor officials said yesterday.

The delegates will be asked to place the plans before the various unions for their consideration. The Board of Business Agents in the council are said to favor the plan, and among the workers there is strong sentiment to give it a trial.

Because of some union agreements with employers it was said it would be necessary to delay putting the plans to a trial until the Summer.

Fred Scholl, President of the Business Agents Board, said yesterday that if the experiment is successful similar arrangements may be made elsewhere.

NEARING AGREEMENT ON RADIO REGULATION

Senate and House Conferees Have Settled Most Points for Compromise Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—A solution of the prolonged controversy over radio legislation seems to be in sight. The conferees over the Senate and House bills reached an agreement today on nearly all the important issues in dispute. It is hoped that before the end of the week final settlement will be reached.

A compromise is being planned on the chief point of contention—whether an independent commission or the Department of Commerce shall govern radio. Under the new proposal virtually all control and regulation would be left with the Department of Commerce except the allocation of licenses and wave lengths, which might go to a commission of five appointed by the President.

The agreement is practically reached on how Government regulation shall be applied, but there is still a controversy over how far regulation shall go, especially whether broadcasting stations shall be penalized for discrimination in allowing the use of their stations and what body shall regulate charges for radio service, if any.

CONSENTS TO RECEIVERSHIP

Guardian Mutual Casualty Insurance Company Called Insolvent.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 4.—Appointment of a receiver for the Guardian Mutual Casualty Insurance Company of New Brunswick was asked in a bill filed in the Chancery Court today by C. Raymond Lyons, President of the company as well as a creditor, who alleged that the concern is insolvent. The charge was admitted in an answer entered by Alexander Balint Jr., counsel for the company.

Vice Chancellor Buchanan said he would grant the petition and directed both parties to return tomorrow when the receiver will be designated. Mr. Balint was named as counsel to the receiver.

The company was organized last April after the Legislature had passed a bill compelling taxicab operators to carry liability insurance of not less than $5,000 for each car. A recent udit by the State Department of Banking and Insurance is said to have uncovered the insolvency.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—4½ per cent. for the best names. Monday—4½ per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Many Novelty Negligees.

The increasing demand for novelties on the part of buyers has caused an unusually large assortment of negligees to be prepared for Spring showing. While these garments are not so elaborate and expensive as those offered during the holiday period, they are ingeniously designed and worked up in all kinds of lightweight materials. These include both georgette and novelty crepes, as well as satin and figured silks that are in demand all through the year. The new models show a lavish use of lace for flounces and as insertions. Most of them open down the front, according to reports from manufacturers represented in the United Women's Wear League of America, though some slip-on effects are included in the lines now being shown to the retail trade.

More Call for Pongees.

The call for pongee has been growing steadily. Both retailers and garment manufacturers have been placing orders for these Chinese silks, which are counted on to have a very good season. The fabrics are well suited for sports wear, it was pointed out yesterday, and will be a feature of later models in combination with other novelty cloths. The children's dress trade is also giving much attention to the goods for small children's garments. Some buying is being done by men's shirt manufacturers, although the popularity of broadcloth has cut down the sales to this trade.

Retail Aid in Pushing Suits.

While suits are being well sampled for Spring, in both sports and dressy types, there are some manufacturers who would like to see retailers cooperate more effectively in the revival of the suit vogue. The stores can either "make or break" the suit, they contend, not so much in holding back buying but in the way in which the merchandise is presented to consumers in the next few weeks. If there is a real effective presentation of the suit through style shows, advertisements and other media, the chances of a real vogue for the merchandise are excellent. In other words, as one manufacturer put it, the consumer should be made to feel she must have a suit in order to be in style. In such a situation, he said, orders for the merchandise will take care of themselves and both retailers and manufacturers should benefit.

Spring Silk Underwear Orders.

Orders for Spring lines of women's silk underwear are developing nicely, following the extremely active holiday period just closed. Changes in the new offerings are more in the fabrics used and their decoration than in the styles of the garments themselves. Brocaded crêpe in pastel colors is one of the novelty underwear fabrics featured. Much use is also made of lace in tailored garments. Dance sets continue to be outstanding items in practically all lines. Rayon merchandise is selling well, both for sales and for regular stock delivery during the next few weeks. The finer deniers of rayon are being increasingly used for underwear.

Some Blankets Are Priced.

Additional quotations on 1927 lines of all-cotton and part-wool blankets were given out yesterday, when prices on the new season's products of the Massachusetts Cotton Mills, Inc., were announced by the Pepperell Department of Bliss, Fabyan & Co. at levels about 10 per cent. under those of the 1926 opening. Three new lines have been introduced. Among them are "Pradet," a 70 by 80 inch block-plaid effect, all cotton, which is priced at $1.80 a pair, and "Penwit," an all-cotton block-plaid effect of similar size, that is priced at $2.45 a pair. Also new is "Canoret," a 66 by 80 inch part-wool plaid, twill weave, that is priced at $2.60 a pair. Among new prices on well-known brands previously in the line are: "Prescott," $1.75 a pair; "Pegseat," $2.27½ a pair, and "Western Carnival," $1.95 per single. All of these measure 66 by 80 inches. In the crib blankets, several lines of attractive dobby and jacquard effects are offered for the new season. The fenutred crib blanket "Wamba," which measures 36 by 56 inches, is priced at $1.55 per single.

Jobbers Buying Sweaters Better.

The extent to which jobbers' stocks of sweaters were cleaned up during the holiday season has resulted in a materially improved demand for these goods on the part of wholesalers. Among the lines that have felt the improvement most are ribbed sport coats, in heather mixtures, to retail at $5 to $7.50, and the better grades of "shakers" to sell over the counter at $5 to $10. Both V-neck coat and crew-neck pullover effects in the latter have been taken well lately in such staple colors as black, navy and cardinal. All of these lines have been ordered for Fall delivery, and the business taken in them to date either equals or slightly exceeds that done in a similar period up to this time last year. For Spring shipment, novelty "crickets" still lead in demand, the favored "numbers" running to smaller patterns and less vivid color effects. Two-tone combinations, many of them with heather grounds, are much in favor.

Infants' Novelties Numerous.

Manufacturers of novelties, having found the infants' and children's field to be a very profitable one, are laying plans for an excellent business this Spring. In the celluloid toy lines that are going to be played up strongly are banks made of that material. They come in a number of shapes and sizes, but none of them is too large for a child to grasp. A large line of Easter novelties for little children is now on the market, among the offerings being the increasingly popular floating bath toys. Among the novelty dolls now shown here for wee folks is one that is made of French powder-puff velvet, and it is said not only to be soft and "cuddly," but indestructible. Dolls and toy animals of the same material are also shown and are taking well.

Not Much Snap to Gray Goods.

Aside from some pretty fair-sized trading in spot and near-by 100.60 carded broadcloths, which sold at 11 cents, not much of interest occurred in the local gray goods market yesterday. Most of the printcloth sales were for prompt shipment, and they included 39-inch 72-76s at 6¾ cents, 39-inch 68-72s at 7¼ cents, 38½-inch 64-60s at 6¾ cents, and 38½-inch 60-48s at 5½ cents. In the sheetings, some business was done in 36-inch 5-yard and 5.50-yard goods at 6 and 5¼ cents respectively. For 37-inch 3.95-yard drills, buyers paid 7¼ cents. The rest of the market was without particular feature.

Sports Vogue to Help Knitwear.

With a marked sports vogue indicated for Spring and Summer, manufacturers of knitted underwear look for improved sales of their wares. Novelty effects in profusion are being offered in individual garments or combinations of sports apparel. Fancy napped surface cloths, jersey weaves and rayon knitted fabrics are used. Production is not as large as it has been at this time for past Spring seasons, and the expectation is that prices will not be stressed to the unsettlement of the trade. Trading up to some degree has been practiced by the trade, manufacturers and jobbers say, and with adequate retail support the situation promises distinct improvement.

PENSION COMMITTEE HEARS M'LAUGHLIN

He Says Only Way to Cut City Share of Police Pensions Is to Stretch $1 to $1.20.

40% NOW RAISED PRIVATELY

Subcommittee to Study Problem of City Work for Those Past Age Limit and Report Jan. 18.

Controller Berry's expert commission, which has been charged, under authority of the Board of Estimate, with recommending such revision of the city's various pension systems as may tend to strengthen them and place them on a sound actuarial basis, met yesterday in the Controller's office.

Police Commissioner McLaughlin was the first witness. He said 60 per cent. of the police pension fund was contributed by the city and 40 per cent. by private funds raised by police games and other means.

When the Police Commissioner was asked by Edmund P. Holahan, Chief of the Division of Pensions, Finance Department, if he knew any way in which the city's share could be reduced, he replied, smilingly, "No way unless you can find some method of stretching a dollar to a dollar and twenty cents."

It was figured that it would cost 33 1-3 per cent. of the 1925 payroll of the Police Department to put the police pension system on a sound actuarial basis. In other words, it would mean a $10,000,000 police pension allotment in the city budget instead of $2,750,000 as at present. These facts were developed during the examination of George B. Buck, actuary of the city pension system, by Deputy Controller Frank J. Prial.

A resolution was adopted instructing a subcommittee, named at the hearing, to see if it would be feasible to find some sort of employment for employes who have reached the age limit. Heretofore such employes have had no choice, especially policemen, firemen and street cleaners, but complete separation from the city service. The subcommittee will also ascertain whether it would be advisable to make new conditions as to retirement for new employes of the Police, Fire and Street Cleaning Departments.

The next hearing will be held Jan. 18, at which time the subcommittee will report.

FOR ETHICS IN WORLD TRADE

Two Rotary Envoys From Britain Here to Improve Conditions.

Two leaders of the Rotary Clubs of Great Britain and Ireland, the Rev. W. Thompson Eliot, Canon of Leeds Cathedral, and Vivian Carter of London, arrived yesterday on the Berengaria to confer with American Rotary leaders on their campaign to diminish unethical practices in international trade. Mr. Carter called bootlegging one such unethical practice.

The official nature of their visit, he explained, was to represent the British Rotarians at a meeting of the directors of the Rotary International, in Chicago next Monday. Involved in this representation, Mr. Carter said, was an effort to increase popular good-will among business men here for a campaign which European Rotary clubs are waging through the League of Nations. According to Mr. Carter, they hope through the League of Nations to write into international law some restrictions on business malpractice across national borders.

"We believe that bad business practices in international trade are among the great causes of international friction," he said, "and therefore of war.

"We have succeeded in getting the Economic Conference of the League, to be held in Geneva in May, to place some items dealing with the causes of international misunderstandings in trade, upon its agenda."

Among the practices which he said should be declared unethical by international agreement are bribery, unfair trading, cornering of markets, misleading prospectuses, conspiracy against the laws of other countries for profit, disregard for contracts, and piracy in trademarks, designs and patents.

Canon Eliot declared his belief that this year would see marked recovery in England from the ills arising in the coal strike. He said that England and the Continent seemed better off politically and economically than they had been since the war.

RIDING CLUB LEASES APPROVED BY COURT

Justice Cavegan Has Granted Permission for Deal With Hotel Interests.

SALE INVOLVES $975,000

Savoy-Plaza Realty Corporation Is to Take Over Fifty-eighth Street Property.

The Riding Club of 7 East Fifty-eighth Street was granted permission yesterday by Justice Cavegan of the Supreme Court to sell the leases on its realty holdings, consisting of ten city lots; to the Savoy-Plaza Realty Corporation for $975,000.

The property, which is directly in the rear of the new thirty-three-story hotel that is being erected on the Fifth Avenue block front from Fifty-eighth to Fifty-ninth Streets by the buyers of the Riding Club leases, is owned by the Astor estate and was leased to the Riding Club in 1915 for a period of twenty years, with renewals.

Club to Acquire Durland Property.

The petition on which the order was granted disclosed that the Riding Club will acquire the property of the Durland Riding Academy at 3 West Sixty-sixth Street, consisting of fifteen city lots.

The contract for the sale of the leases provides that the Savoy-Plaza Realty Corporation will assume the cost of certain alterations estimated at $20,000 and that the Riding Club will receive in payment for its leases $305,000 in cash and the stock of the Durland company, valued at $670,000. The Durland company owns the Sixty-sixth Street property, consisting of stables, riding ring and clubrooms, subject to a mortgage of $550,000.

The Durland company and William Durland agree to furnish a bond for all of the known liabilities of the Durland company now outstanding and also to deposit $100,000 in escrow for one year to meet the unknown liabilities. William Durland is to give his personal bond to cover the unknown liabilities for three years.

The order provides that the proceeds of the sale of the leases are to be used to make alterations and improvements in the buildings to be acquired.

The Fifty-eighth Street property, the petition discloses, is estimated to be worth $2,300,000, and one of the reasons advanced for selling the leases is that at the expiration of the present leases the rental will be materially increased.

Renewal Clauses in Lease.

The renewal clauses in the leases provide that the Riding Club will then have to pay 5 per cent. a year rental on the property's then valuation, estimated at $115,000, as against a present rental of $37,500.

Another reason urged for making the change is that the Durland Academy is within 200 feet of Central Park and the Bridle Path, while the property of the Riding Club is more than twice that distance from the park, and equestrians have to ride through the most congested traffic district in the city, thus endangering pedestrians, vehicular traffic and horses.

The last clause in the court order provides that the Riding Club is to have reserved for it certain ornamental windows and other fixtures in its present clubhouse.

Dallas B. Pratt of 270 Park Avenue is President of the Riding Club, which was organized Jan. 18, 1883, as the Gentlemen's Riding Club. The name was changed to the Riding Club two years later.

The petition shows that the Riding Club, besides its leases sold for $975,000, has assets of $76,138, cash in bank, $29,985 bonds and $7,000 value of equipment. It has no liabilities aside from current accounts.

The Savoy-Plaza Realty Corporation composed of the United States Realty and Improvement Company and the Childs Company, which is erecting the hotel at a cost of about $15,000,000, on the Fifth Avenue blockfront adjoining the Riding Club's present home, has no immediate plans for the improvement of the club site.

Purchase Protects Hotel Light.

At the time the agreement was signed to purchase the lease it was said that the Savoy-Plaza Corporation was buying to protect the light and air of its new structure and that at some future date it may be improved.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 4.—A decision of importance to property owners of Mount Vernon and vicinity was handed down today by Supreme Court Justice Morschauser, in which he held that the former provision of 50-foot setbacks in residence "B" districts under the zoning law still applied instead of 5-foot setbacks.

Justice Morschauser said that he made this ruling as a result of his decision that an amendment passed several years ago by the Common Council reducing the setback provision was not properly adopted. He holds that the advancement of the public hearing was not consistent with the action taken and that as a result the amendment was without effect.

The decision was in an action started by Mrs. Lena Friedlander against the 465 Lexington Avenue Corporation (Joseph Samuels), who planned to erect an apartment house at Oakley and Cary Avenues, Mount Vernon.

Mrs. Friedlander owns property near there and contended it would be damaged if an apartment were erected. She appealed to the Zoning Board of Appeals when a permit for the apartment was issued by Inspector Burden, but the board sustained the action of the Inspector. The case was then taken to court. Justice Morschauser holds that the permit was improperly issued and that the Zoning Board should have reversed the Inspector. He allowed $900 damage and costs to Mrs. Friedlander.
